Audit by District Auditor (No. 2 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Chorley MB, Adlington UD, Withnell UD, Chorley RD.

The district which covers an area of approximately 80 square miles is situate within Central Lancashire and a substantial portion of its area falls within the area of the Central Lancashire New Town. Borough status has been granted. The area comprises a blend of town and rural areas and stretches from the Pennine Ridge at Rivington, Anglezarke and Hoghton on the eastern boundary to the coastal plain of West Lancashire on the western boundary. The principal urban centre is the former Borough of Chorley. The area is exceptionally well served for transport purposes being situate both on the M6 and the M61 and has a direct rail link to Manchester. In addition to the high quality farming areas in the western coastal plain the easterly parts of the district are of outstanding natural beauty and are proposed to be included in a countryside park.

Audit by Approved Auditor (Armitage and Norton).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Christchurch MB, Ringwood and Fordingbridge RD (part).

Christchurch incorporates some rural areas but a considerable part of the borough comprises urban development. During the past two decades there has been a rapid growth of residential estates and this type of development is still proceeding.

There is some light industrial development within the district, the main part of which is confined in a comparatively small area. Government experimental work is also carried out at two establishments within the area at the present time.

The borough is a holiday resort with beaches at Highcliffe, Friars Cliff and Mudeford Sandbank—all under the control of the council which has provided beach chalets at the last two places. Stanpit Marsh which adjoins Christchurch Harbour is owned by the council, and although it has been declared a Nature Reserve there is no restriction on public access. There are a number of recreation grounds and open spaces within the borough and the maintenance of many of these areas is undertaken by the council. The river frontages, Town Quay and Mudeford Quay are also maintained by the council which owns the Haven House Inn at Mudeford Quay.

The council also maintains a 25-metre 6-lane heated indoor swimming pool which is open all the year round. The building was opened in 1973 and includes a teaching pool.
Mayoral annual allowance: £2,500.

Amenities include a civic theatre and halls complex, golf course, sports centre, swimming pool, parks and recreation grounds. The surrounding countryside is delightful and includes Rockingham Castle, Deene Hall and Kirby Hall, all of which are historic buildings. The Corby Development Corporation has planned the development of Corby on modern lines and the shopping centre is now very substantial. Corby Development Corporation's housing and related assets passed to the District Council on the 1st April 1978.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April, 1974:
the county borough of Coventry;
in the administrative county of Warwickshire—in the rural district of Meriden, the parishes of Allesley and Keresley.

Coventry, which received its original charter of incorporation in 1345, was constituted a separate county in 1451, but was rejoined to the County of Warwick in 1842. It became a county borough in 1888 and on 3rd June 1953, H.M. Queen Elizabeth II commanded that the City's Chief Magistrate should be styled "Lord Mayor". On local government reorganization, the Authority became, as from 1st April 1974, a Metropolitan District enlarged by the addition of the above areas of Warwickshire. The district was granted a Borough Charter as from the date of reorganization; H.M. The Queen also approved the grant, with effect from the same date, of the title and dignity of "City" to the district and the use of the style "Lord Mayor" by the Chairman of the Council and the style "Deputy Lord Mayor" by the Vice-Chairman.

The Council House was officially opened in 1920, but St. Mary's Hall, a 14th century building, which was the municipal centre for some hundreds of years, is still used for subsidiary civic purposes. The Council controls large areas of common land and is the owner of large estates and properties, including the 280-acre Coombe Countryside Park, adjoining the eastern boundary of the City. Extensive housing and re-housing schemes have been undertaken and central re-development, incorporating a traffic-free Precinct and an inner-ring road system, carried out following the severe air raid damage inflicted on the City during the last world war. The great development in the engineering, motor-car, tractor, aeroplane and electronic industries led to an extremely rapid increase in population which has now stabilized. Significant recent educational development includes the University of Warwick and the Lanchester Polytechnic.

Lord Mayor's annual allowance: £3,800 (Deputy Lord Mayor: £1,000).

Audit by District Auditor (No. 3 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Skipton UD, Settle RD, Skipton RD (part).

The district was formed by the amalgamation of the former Urban District of Skipton, the greater part of the Rural District of Skipton, and the Rural District of Settle.

Skipton itself is a market town, a focal point of trunk roads and a natural shopping centre for a large rural area. The district is mainly agricultural (cattle rearing, milk and sheep) but industry is encouraged, particularly in Skipton and the larger towns and villages.

Much of the district is situated within the most beautiful part of the Yorkshire Dales National Park. Features of the district are Barden Tower, Bolton Abbey, Skipton Castle, Malham Cove, pot holes, caves, waterfalls, and the three peaks of Whernside, Ingleborough and Penyghent.

The Council owns the Aireville Estate, Skipton, of which 27½ acres are open to the public as a natural park, and includes covered swimming baths, tennis courts, a pitch and putt course and a putting green. The Council's museum contains a rare collection of prehistoric remains from Upper Wharfedale, excavated remains from the Roman Camp at Elslack, and a very rare Brigantian Iron Age Sword found at Flasby, near Skipton.

Chairman's annual allowance: £540.

Additionally, the Borough undertakes to maintain all county buildings in the area on a Goods and Services Basis.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The new district came into being on 1st April 1974 as a result of local government reorganization. It comprises the whole of the former Crawley UD area, a small part of the former Cuckfield RD, and part of Dorking and Horley RD. Borough status was granted from the same date. Substantially, it covers the designated area of the new town and includes Gatwick Airport.

The former Crawley Urban District Council was created from part of Horsham Rural District in 1956 following logically upon the development of Crawley under the New Towns Act, 1946.

The Town Hall is situated in The Boulevard at the Town Centre. The Technical Department is now located at Broadfield Annex on the Brighton Road and housing rent payments office at 103 High Street. All other departments—including the much expanded housing division now entitled the Housing and Estates Department—are located at the Town Hall. The Central Depot for Highway and Works Sections is located at County Oak.

On April 1st, 1978, the Council inherited all of the housing and housing related assets of the Commission for the New Town in Crawley. This transfer was achieved on the basis of the Borough Council accepting responsibility for the outstanding loan debt incurred by the Commission for the New Towns and its predecessor, the Crawley Development Corporation.

The housing related assets amount to Neighbourhood Shopping Parades and other similar properties.

The Council's own housing development programme of 500 new homes a year until the early 1980's continues.

Several parks, many playing fields and allotment sites were provided by the former urban district council and this generous standard of provision is being maintained in new developments. Permanent sports pavilions have been constructed on 11 of the playing fields and there are seven permanent playcentres and two permanent adventure playgrounds already provided in the various neighbourhoods.

Recognising that it must be several years before work can start on the planned theatre and arts complex, the Council has decided to broaden the role of Crawley Sportcentre which was opened in 1974. This establishment has now been slightly modified to provide suitable facilities for the Leisure demands of the area alongside its excellent sporting amenities. The name of the Centre has been changed to Crawley Leisure Centre which was considered to be more in keeping with its new expanded role.

The Centre continues to provide for the wide range of athletics and sporting activities it was originally built for. The facility also caters for major events of a national/international nature. The complex is comprised of an all-purpose sport hall, an outdoor athletics arena, floodlit all-seasons games area, covered swimming pools, and ample parking space for cars and coaches.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,525.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The Borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974: Crewe Municipal Borough, Nantwich Urban District and Nantwich Rural District.

The Council owns covered and open air swimming baths, sports centres, indoor and outdoor markets, parks and recreation grounds, several farms, cemeteries and a crematorium.

In Crewe three phases of a Town Centre Redevelopment Scheme commenced in 1956 have been completed; these have included new shopping areas and a civic centre comprising central library, divisional police headquarters and Magistrates and County Courts. Future Developments include major shopping provision including a superstore and smaller shops, and an inavatory community school which will combine re-modelled existing buildings and new centres in an exciting project open for many public activities.

The Council's industrial estate at Weston Road is substantially complete, and the Council is now servicing a new estate at the adjacent Crewe Gates Farm. Sites for owner-occupation are already available and from the early summer of 1978 the Council hopes to have the first advance factory units ready for rent.

Nantwich is considered to be the second most interesting town in Cheshire, having historical associations second only to Chester itself. The town contains many "black and white" half timbered buildings, typical of those to be found widely in the county. Many of these buildings are very fine examples of this type of architecture the most notable being Churche's Mansion, Sweetbriar Hall, The Cheshire Cat and the Crown Hotel. The Department of the Environment have listed 128 buildings of special architectural or historic interest, dating from the 16th to the 19th Centuries. A Town Scheme has been instituted to preserve the fabric of the old buildings.

The rural areas also contain many "black and white" public houses and other buildings listed as being of historical and architectural interest worthy of preservation. Some of the villages have interesting histories, particularly of events which occurred during the Civil War.

A landscaping scheme alongside the River Weaver in Nantwich has been completed incorporating a lake, 3 fishing pools and a riverside walkway.

Mayoral allowance: £2,500.

Electricity Board: South Wales.

Gas Region: Wales.

Regional Water Authority: Welsh Water Authority.

Health Authority: Mid Glamorgan.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the Mid Glamorgan CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

In the administrative county of Glamorgan:
 the urban districts of Aberdare and Mountain Ash;
 in the rural district of Neath, the parish of Rhigos.
In the administrative county of Brecon, in the rural district of Vaynor and Penderyn, the parish of Penderyn.

Cynon Valley is basically a long valley following the path of the River Cynon situated to the north of Cardiff, 11 miles in length, narrow at the southern extremity but becoming gradually broader until reaching the town of Hirwaun, where it joins the southern reaches of the Brecon Beacons; it also includes the neighbouring Clydach Valley. It is basically an industrial region with coal mining in the former Mountain Ash area (Deep Duffryn, Perrikyber, Abercynon and Lady Windsor Collieries), and more recent light industrial development, with estates at Hirwaun, Ynysboeth, Cwmbach, Pontcynon and Robertstown. The northern part is predominantly rural with settlements at Rhigos, Hirwaun and Penderyn. The area includes the Brecon Beacons National Park, the Aberdare Country Park and a large area of afforestation at Llanwonno in the Clydach Valley which would be of great interest to tourists. The council administers two major sports centres, the Michael Sobell Centre at Aberdare and the Abercynon Sports Centre, also a major swimming pool at Aberdare. Other major council developments include the St. Mary's Social Centre at Aberdare and a Day Centre at Mountain Ash. Refuse Disposal is by pulverization with a plant at Pontcynon—the first in Wales.

Mayoral annual allowance: £6,600.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Darlington CB, Darlington RD (part).

The new borough includes the areas of the former county borough and the Darlington Rural District with the exception of Great Aycliffe Parish containing part of Aycliffe new town. It lies at the southern extremity of Durham County and its southern boundary is formed by the River Tees with North Yorkshire to the south and the Stockton District of Cleveland County to the east. The borough's administrative centre is based at the Town Hall which was opened in 1970 and will serve a population of approximately 98,000. The town has a long history probably best known as a 'railway town' and has various industries including iron and steel, heavy engineering and textiles. More recently it has developed a range of lighter industries, and as a result its employment situation has remained reasonably static despite the closure in mid-1960 of its once large and important railway works. The council having made land available for industrial estates. Darlington is also an important shopping and market town as well as a transportation centre by road, rail and air, viz. the main London–Newcastle–Edinburgh Railway Line and the M1 Motorway in addition to Tees-side Airport which is located at the eastern boundary of the district.

Housing, which remains a function of the borough council, is popular and pleasant. In the central area, extensive re-development schemes are planned and an inner ring road which is well established will almost encircle the shopping and business centre. Surrounding the district is rural, open and attractive farming country with villages of character, some of which are subject to conservation area policy, and some of which have developed as commuter villages in recent years.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,600.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 9 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Dartford MB, Swanscombe UD, Dartford RD (parishes of Darenth, Southfleet, Stone, Sutton-at-Hone, Wilmington).

The Borough is situated between the North Downs and the Thames, the northerly part being predominantly industrial and residential, and the southerly part mainly rural in character.

The main industries include engineering, paper making and the manufacture of pharmaceuticals. The manufacture of cement is also a major industry but where excavation of chalk has taken place great emphasis is laid upon restoration by means of infilling and landscaping schemes.

Dartford is an old market town connected in history with Wat Tyler's Rebellion in 1381. It is situated about 15 miles east of London and has an industrial area situated near the station. From the town centre the land rises sharply to the residential districts in the east and west. The town centre is by-passed by the A2 Dartford Diversion, and this links with the Dartford Tunnel to the Essex side of the Thames. To the south lie the beautiful and very ancient parishes of Darenth, Southfleet, and Sutton-at-Hone, with Wilmington in the west and the parishes of Stone and Swanscombe in the east. Each of these parishes has its own particular link with early English history and evidence of this still remains through the existence of many fine churches and old buildings. Besides the natural beauty of the rural area of the district, there is the Central Park in the Dartford town centre, approximately 27 acres, and to the east of the town Hesketh Park of 10 acres. Each park provides excellent facilities for tennis, bowling, hockey, and cricket. Dartford Heath with 340 acres of open heath land provides a fine natural open space, with cricket and football pitches. An open space has also been provided by the layout out of the original, and now disused, St. Edmunds Burial Ground as a Pleasance.

Three branches of the Southern Region Railway have their junction at Dartford, and there are also stations at Farningham Road, Stone, Greenhithe and Swanscombe. The Council is actively engaged on housing construction and in addition housing associations are providing new accommodation within the district for many families. Town centre redevelopment is taking place, and a new "Arndale" shopping centre has been constructed. Fairfield Pool, a family sports complex, was opened in 1976. A rifle and pistol range, also an indoor bowls centre has been built at Stone Lodge farm, a new sports complex. Plans for the addition of further sporting facilities are at an advanced stage.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,200.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The City comprises the area of the Derby CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Derby's history can be traced back to the first century AD, when the Romans established the fortified camp of Derventio. The settlement was occupied by the Danes in the ninth century, and became a garrison town bearing the Danish name "Deoraby". The Doomsday book contained a detailed record of the town, showing it to be of some importance. It had been a royal borough long before the Norman conquest. Numerous charters were granted to the burgesses, the earliest known being that granted by Henry II (1154), which confirmed laws and customs already enjoyed, notably the right to hold a market. In 1446, Henry VI granted the right to appoint a recorder for the borough, and following the grant of a charter by Charles I in 1638, the first Mayor took office. In 1745, Bonnie Prince Charlie's army advanced into the town, which was the turning point of the '45 Rebellion. The first railway was opened in 1839, the town subsequently becoming one of the principal industrial centres of the Midlands. It was created a county borough in 1888, the boundaries being considerably extended on 1st April 1968 under the terms of the Derby Order 1968.

The City owns a passenger transport undertaking, central omnibus station, golf courses, 2,100 acres of parks and recreation grounds and two industrial trading estates. There is also a direct labour department for building work. Under a recent scheme, the Eagle Centre shopping precinct was built including a covered Market and the new Derby Playhouse, the present Playhouse company moving from Sacheveral Street. Also recently completed is a new Civic Centre in the Market Place built on the site of the old Assembley Rooms and containing some of these interesting features.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,540.

Superannuation Scheme administered by South Yorkshire CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county borough of Doncaster.

In the administrative county of Yorkshire, West Riding—the urban districts of Adwick le Street, Bentley with Arksey, Conisbrough, Mexborough and Tickhill; the rural districts of Doncaster and Thorne.

In the administrative county of Nottinghamshire—

in the rural district of East Retford, the parish of Finningley.

in the rural district of Worksop, in the parish of Harworth, the North ward, so much of the East ward as lies east and north of Ordnance Survey parcels 4800, 4749, 5136 and 8630, and the detached part of the West ward which includes the hamlet of Hesley.

The new district is one of considerable contrasts. At the centre is the town of Doncaster which offers excellent shopping, market and commercial services for a great deal of South Yorks., Notts. and Lincolnshire. The district also has large areas of unspoilt attractive countryside with numerous small villages of charm and character. The townships of Adwick, Bentley, Conisbrough, Mexborough, Thorne and Tickhill provide good local shopping and employment opportunities.

Great 'self help' efforts have been made to attract new industries to supplement the reliance on mining, engineering and agriculture. Much has been achieved and this policy will be continued.

There is an excellent range of leisure facilities and special mention is made of the Doncaster Racecourse, owned and administered by the Council. It is one of the most up-to-date courses with a new grandstand.

There are many historical features including Conisbrough Castle, and reminders of Doncaster's origin in Roman times.

Superannuation Scheme administered by West Midlands (M) CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The County Borough of Dudley; in the administrative county of Worcestershire, the boroughs of Halesowen and Stourbridge.

Dudley is an important industrial centre, being one of the seven Metropolitan District Authorities forming the West Midlands Metropolitan County Council.

Dudley was reorganized in 1966 to include the former Brierley Hill Urban District, most of Sedgley and Coseley Urban Districts and small parts of Amblecote Urban District and Tipton Municipal Borough. The area is situated on the edge of the green belt and borders the open countryside of Worcestershire and Staffordshire.

One of the main features of the area is Dudley Castle which stands on a ridge in the centre of the town. Nearby is the Wren's Nest Geological Nature Reserve of 74 acres which together with an adjacent 80 acres of woodland provides an attractive setting for the modern Zoo which annually draws many thousands of visitors.

The area developed rapidly in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, at first through the mining of coal and manufacture of iron, although the most important industries are now steel manufacturing, processing and fabrication, engineering, cut glass, sanitary-ware and brickworks, clothing and leather goods, and bacon and ham products.

Dudley has a rapidly growing population with the added advantage of having large areas of land capable of development. The existing canals, disused railways and open spaces, together with established conservation areas, will be linked to this development so that the full potential of the area can be realized.

Service and accessibility to the public is considered most important and has been recognized by the early establishment of District Offices offering a wide range of services at a local level.

Mayoral annual allowance: £4,300.

Agencies. The following county council functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways, Traffic and Transportation; Refuse Disposal; Registration of Births, Deaths and Marriages; Also arrangements under Section 113 of the Local Government Act, 1972, relating (a) to architectural services and (b) to certain community services.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 9 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of Eastbourne County Borough Council which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Eastbourne—Britain's sunniest mainland resort—is sheltered by the magnificent headland of Beachy Head and embraces eight miles of enchanting coastline with uncommercialized promenades and parades, flanked by fine hotels and guest houses. The flower-decked parades stretch for three miles, the centre-piece of which are the world-famous carpet gardens. Eastbourne offers a variety of entertainment to suit all tastes. The Congress Theatre, which can seat just over 1,700 for concerts, is a provincial centre for Sadlers Wells Opera, royal ballet, philharmonic orchestras, plus international stars and a spectacular summer show. The Congress Theatre is also available for conferences and can seat up to 2,000 for this purpose. In addition, the corporation owns the Winter Garden, the Devonshire Park Theatre (open all the year round) and the Royal Hippodrome.

The new Eastbourne Leisure Pool was opened during May 1977. The main swimming pool is 33⅓ metres long × 15 metres wide, accommodating six international 2·5 metres wide swimming lanes. There is a spectators' gallery with seating for 300 people. The diving pool is 10 × 10·5 metres and has a depth of 3·5 metres with two firm platforms and two springboards for diving. There is also a training pool measuring 20 metres × 8·5 metres with further seating accommodation for 40 people. The Eastbourne Leisure Pool incorporates every up-to-date facility and has, in addition, a Restaurant and Bar with seating for over 100 persons.

A number of lawn tennis championships are held each year in Devonshire Park grounds where the grass courts are considered second only to Wimbledon. In fact, the year's calendar is packed with various events—bowls, flower shows, county cricket, regattas, etc. Military bands play from Easter to October at the Grand Parade Bandstand, which seats 3,500 people.

Treasure Island Play Centre, architecturally designed and covering 1·2 acres, opened in the summer of 1973, is a children's paradise. Some of its special features are a 30-foot wrecked Hispaniola Galleon, 3 paddling pools, sand pits, climbing ropes, slides and colourful life-like models of crocodiles, zulus, lion, hippo and whale—not to mention Long John Silver and Jim Lad.

The Council owns the ridge of the South Downs overlooking the town from Beachy Head to Willingdon. This estate includes four farms. The council's policy of preservation of the downland contributes considerably to the amenities of the town.

The Council owns the local passenger transport undertaking, which is claimed to be the oldest municipal transport undertaking in the world.

The town is still growing rapidly, mainly due to continued extensive private housing development. The most substantial area of such development is now at Langney on the eastern side of the town, where there is a large shopping centre, and other community services are also to be provided.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,700.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Highways; Sewerage; Food and Drugs.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 8 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Hertford BC, Bishop's Stortford UD, Sawbridgeworth UD, Ware UD, Braughing RD, Hertford RD (part), Ware RD.

Within this largely rural area of rich farmland, set in undulating country and river valleys, are several historic towns within easy commuting distance of London but far removed from the noise and bustle of the metropolis. There are many picturesque villages with thatched cottages, medieval manor houses and ancient churches. Evidence remains of the Saxon, Danish and Roman occupations.

Good shopping facilities are offered to town residents and their country neighbours and modern buildings are well integrated with fine Conservation Areas.

Chairman's annual allowance: £2,000 (plus £300 travelling expenses and hire of vehicles).

Baths and Pools: 4; Council Houses and Flats: 6,411; Markets: 4; Museum: 1.

Parliamentary Constituency: Horncastle and Louth (part).

Petty Sessional Divisions: 5.

Electricity Board: (1) East Midlands, (2) Yorkshire.

Gas Region: East Midlands.

Regional Water Authority: Anglian.

Area Health Authority: Lincolnshire.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Lincolnshire CC.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 11 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Louth MB, Alford UD, Horncastle UD, Mablethorpe and Sutton UD, Skegness UD, Woodhall Spa UD, Horncastle RD, Louth RD, Spilsby RD.

The district is characteristically rural, and is intensively cultivated in the chalk Wolds, the coastal marshlands and the fens of the Witham Valley. Small scale industrial development has been encouraged in the small towns and large villages of Louth, Horncastle, Spilsby, Alford, Mablethorpe, Skegness, Wainfleet, and Tattershall Thorpe, but the towns retain their characteristics as active market centres.

Along the coast, tourism is of great importance. The extensive sand beaches attract many holidaymakers, particularly from the East Midlands, and the whole coastline between Skegness and Mablethorpe caters for the tourist trade. Gibraltar Point, a Nature Reserve to the south of Skegness, is a particular attraction for many people.

Inland, the district has considerable historic interest: East Lindsey experienced settlement by the Romans (Horncastle was a Roman Town), by the Saxons and most notably by the Danes, who have left their mark on the place names of the district, names such as Hemingby, Scamblesby, Goulceby, Driby, Calceby, Swaby, and so on. There are a variety of historic buildings, including Louth Park Abbey and Kirkstead Abbey; Bolingbroke Castle, associated with John of Gaunt and King Henry IV, and Tattershall Castle. The National Trust owns Tattershall Castle, and also Gunby Hall, near Burgh-le-Marsh. Restored windmills are to be found at Alford and Burgh-le-Marsh, and there is a splendid manor house at Alford which is open to the public.

The Wolds, a substantial part of which are within East Lindsey, provide some attractive scenery and were recently designated as an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty. A number of towns and villages have pleasant conservation areas; these include Louth, Horncastle, Alford, Spilsby, Burgh-le-Marsh and Wainfleet.

Sporting facilities are many. Stock Car and Motor Cycle Racing take place at Cadwell Park near Louth, and the district's rivers provide good fishing. There are golf courses at Louth. Skegness, Sutton and Woodhall Spa, and tennis courts in all the towns, notably along the coast. There are recreational flying fields near Alford and Coningsby, and water sports facilities are available at Covenham Reservoir.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,350.

Agencies. The following functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: county council functions—Highways, Noise Insulation; regional water authority functions—Sewerage.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 5 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of Ellesmere Port MB and Neston UD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The borough extends from the Mersey to the Dee, at the south-western end of the Wirral Peninsula. The Borough Council provides the full range of services allocated by the Local Government Act, 1972. The Borough Council is also responsible for the maintenance of roads in the borough other than trunk roads and motorways, under agency arrangements with the Cheshire County Council and sewerage under agency arrangements with the water authorities. Among the facilities available in the district are an all-purpose Civic Hall with a separate management staff, an indoor swimming pool opened in 1969, an outdoor swimming pool, a sports stadium, a leisure centre, four community centres, seven industrial estates and an 18-hole municipal golf course opened in 1973.

The district is one of the major industrial centres of the North-West, with the advantage of having been largely planned and developed since the Second World War. Among the industrial concerns with heavy capital investment in the district are Associated Octel, Bowaters, Burmah Oil, Cabot Carbon, Manchester Ship Canal Company, Morgan Refractories, Odex-Racasan, Shell Refining, Shell Chemicals, UKF-Fertilisers, Shell Research, Total Oil, Van Leer, Vauxhall Motors, Calor Gas and H. H. Robertson. The district is nevertheless substantially rural/agricultural in land use, and includes a number of pleasant country villages (but no parish councils), a vital sector of the proposed West Cheshire Green Belt and an extensive section of the Cheshire County Council's Wirral Country Park.

Mayoral annual allowance: £640.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 12 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Esher UD, Walton and Weybridge UD.

The borough is mainly residential, though the southern part of the area can be said to be rural in character. There are a number of shopping centres, including the towns of Esher, Walton and Weybridge, surrounded by high-class properties.

The Council owns almost all the extensive common land in the district. The Commons serve to separate the residential enclaves in the Green Belt, and maintain the reputation of the borough as a highly desirable residential area within easy reach of London by rail and car. Waterloo is a few minutes railwy journey from Esher and Walton and Weybridge Stations on the main London and Southern region lines and the Guildford railway line runs along the eastern part of the district, serving the residential areas of Hinchley Wood, Claygate, Oxshott, Stoke and Cobham, also giving a direct service to Waterloo. There are extensive recreational facilities, catering for, among other sports, bowls, tennis, hockey, cricket and football. The Council owns the Upper Deck Open-Air Swimming Pool on the bank of the River Thames, opposite Hampton Court Palace, and an indoor swimming pool at Walton-on-Thames. In addition, a multi-purpose Sports and Leisure Centre stands alongside the Thames at Walton. Administration of the National Trust property, Claremont Lake, is carried out by the Council and the Lake and the adjoining estate attract large numbers of visitors during the summer months. The Council are in the process of restoring Painshill Park, Cobham as the first artificially landscaped park in Europe. Bathing, boating and fishing facilities are available on the Rivers Thames and Wey, and a number of golf clubs are situated within the borough.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,500.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 9 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The Borough Council comprises the same area as the Epsom and Ewell MB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Epsom and Ewell lies at the foot of the North Downs 15 miles south-west of London on the main road to Worthing and with excellent road and railway communications.

A considerable proportion of Epsom and Ewell consists of green belt and public open space which will be protected from future development. It has always been the Borough Council's policy to preserve the green belt and open spaces which form such an important part of the Borough, and the continuation of this policy will ensure that the character of the town is not affected.

Although many of the residents of the Borough travel to and from their work in London, Epsom and Ewell is nevertheless an independent local government unit which maintains and enjoys its own traditions and interest. The town has grown slowly with much variety of design both in dwellings and public buildings, and with due regard to the harmony of new estates and commercial premises with the architecture of the old village centres.

The Secretary of State for the Environment has approved proposals for the redevelopment of the town centre of Epsom involving a new traffic circulation system and the improvement of shopping facilities.

Epsom and Walton Downs, the site of the famous Epsom racecourse, are controlled by Conservators (on which the Council has the majority representation) appointed in pursuance of the Epsom and Walton Downs Regulation Act, 1936. Nonsuch Park, an open space of some 300 acres, is managed by a joint management committee consisting of representatives of the Epsom and Ewell Borough Council and the London Borough of Sutton.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,200.

Agencies. The following county council function is being carried out by the Borough council on an agency basis: Highways (environmental maintenance) and maintenance of local roads (some).

Audit is by District Auditor (No. 11 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Ilkeston MB, Long Eaton UD, SE Derbyshire RD (part).

The eastern boundary with Broxtowe (Nottinghamshire) is the River Erewash from which the Borough derives its name. The southern boundary is formed by the Trent and Derwent Rivers. To the west the Borough extends as far as Derby and the River Derwent at Duffield.

The Borough is well served by communications. Ilkeston and Long Eaton have frequent bus and rail services to Nottingham and Derby. The M.1 Motorway passes through the Borough and has an intersection with the main Derby-Nottingham road (A52) at Sandiacre (Junction 25). The East Midlands Airport is three miles from the Borough's southern boundary.

Erewash is situated within easy travelling distance of the major centres of Derby, Nottingham, Leicester and Sheffield, and within easy reach of the Peak District, the Dukeries and Charnwood Forest.

Canal cruising is catered for at Sawley and Trent Lock is a busy inland waterway centre.

Amenities in the area include indoor swimming pools at Long Eaton (the indoor pool incorporates a sauna and solarium), an indoor swimming pool at Ilkeston, a Sports Hall at Sandiacre and a 9-hole golf course at Ilkeston. Long Eaton and Ilkeston have a number of parks and recreation grounds, catering for a variety of sports.

The Borough Council is keen to encourage further industrial development and is planning a major shopping redevelopment in Ilkeston.

Mayoral annual allowance: £800.

The city comprises the area of Exeter CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Exeter is the county town of Devon and geographically well situated as a focal point for major roads, railways and air services.

The City history dates from AD 50–55 when as Isca Dumnoniorum it became the administrative centre for Devon and Cornwall. It is a city by Royal charter granted by Henry II and the first recorded reference to the Mayor dates from 1202. The city claims to be the senior mayoralty in the County.

The Guildhall, dating from 1160 and still in use as a council chamber, is probably the oldest municipal building. Other historical buildings which survived the Baedeker raids of 1942 include the Cathedral and Tuckers Hall.

In those raids, extensive damage was caused and the city centre virtually destroyed. The rebuilding of the centre is now complete and the redevelopment of another five acres of obsolescent buildings at the rear of the Guildhall has also been completed.

The city has an expanding university to cater for eventually 15,000 students, and Exeter College which serves a regional area and provides sixth form education.

The Council owns two industrial estates, the largest of 250 acres and further land for expansion is being bought. Another estate of 60 acres on the fringe of the city is jointly owned with the County Council and it is hoped to expand this area.

The M5 motorway passes close to the city and benefits communications with the Midlands.

The city is a good tourist centre within easy reach of the sea, Dartmoor and Exmoor National Parks.

The Council is the Port Authority with the Port of Exeter extending from the River Axe to the River Teign. It also maintains a ship canal approximately 5 miles long, the construction of which commenced in 1539. It is a proposed to maintain and develop the canal as an amenity waterway as part of a scheme to open up the canal and river as amenity areas. The area includes a unique maritime museum. The Council owns many valuable properties and extensive land.

The Mayor has an expense allowance of £5,000 per annum and an official car with chauffeur is provided.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 10 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Wisbech MB, Chatteris UD, March UD, Whittlesey UD, North Witchford RD, Wisbech RD.

Fenland, which forms the greater part of the Isle of Ely, extends from the market town of Chatteris in the south to the Port of Wisbech in the north, borders westerly upon the outskirts of Greater Peterborough and is bounded by Norfolk in the east. The district is one of contrasts, an amalgamation of historic market towns, modern residential areas, picturesque villages, light industrial development, vast open countryside, Regency houses, great churches, National Trust estates, large syndicate farms, rivers and waterways. With its peat and silt soil, the area is the most fertile in the United Kingdom and amongst the most intensely cropped and productive in the world. Industries are in the main associated with agriculture but the Council has encouraged diversification and has its own industrial estates. There is a good labour market and excellent sites are available for commercial and industrial expansion.

The jurisdiction of the Council as port and harbour authority embraces an extensive coastline of the Wash. Principal cargoes include sugar, petroleum, grain, timber, pig iron, fertilisers and foodstuffs. March, also once a port, is nowadays known as an important rail junction with one of the largest marshalling yards in Europe. Whittlesey is a rapidly expanding residential area with high potential for development associated with the expansion of Peterborough.

Fenland, with its rail centre, its port and its greatest asset, some 200 sq. miles of rich earth, is strategically placed in readiness for expanded trade with the European Economic Community.

Chairman's annual allowance: £850.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Newmarket UD, Mildenhall RD.

The district is situated in the extreme north-west of Suffolk, adjoining Norfolk and Cambridgeshire.

The area possesses a rare charm, for it includes part of the Breckland as well as a large area of the great modern forest of Thetford Chase. The attractive villages amidst the farmlands, woods and rivers are set in a countryside where history can be traced from prehistoric times but which still preserves its unique character and unspoilt natural beauty.

The main town in the district is Newmarket, world renowned for its racing activities.

Town development schemes are in progress in Mildenhall and Brandon and the continued attraction of carefully selected industries is one of the principal tasks of the authority.

Agencies. The following county council function is carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 11 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Arnold UD, Carlton UD, Basford RD (except parts in districts of Ashfield, Broxtowe and Rushcliffe).

The Gedling Borough contains the whole of the Carlton Urban District, the whole of the Arnold Urban District together with certain parishes in the Basford area. The name Gedling has historical significance for this area and was referred to in the Domesday Book as 'Ghellinge' and has had a church and a manor since Saxon times.

The council maintains public offices, community centres, depots, cemeteries, public bowling greens and tennis courts, allotments and approximately 140 acres of recreation ground.

The council has approved schemes for advances for house purchase and improvement, concessionary bus fares and television licences for the elderly and physically handicapped and sale of council houses.

The council, in conjunction with the Nottinghamshire County Council, provide several joint-use recreation centres (Calverton, Carlton Forum and Redhill). Facilities provided include golf course, ski slope, swimming pool, indoor and outdoor tennis courts, football and cricket pitches and dry play areas.

The council will continue Carlton's 'twin town' links with Rotenburg A.D. Fulda in West Germany.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,650.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 4 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the area of the Gloucester CB which ceased to exist on 1 April 1974. Gloucester is the county town of Gloucestershire and as such is an important industrial and commercial centre.

From Roman times it has been an essential link in the communications pattern of the country and before the opening of the Severn Bridge was the lowest bridging point on the River Severn. A complex pattern of strategic motorways and trunk roads now surrounds or passes near the city. It is an important rail junction, and Gloucester and Cheltenham jointly own Staverton Airport which lies between the two towns. Gloucester Docks are connected by the Gloucester-Sharpness Canal to the Bristol Channel.

Gloucester has always been a town which enjoyed a diversity of industry. Some of the old Gloucester names such as the Gloster Aircraft Company have disappeared and been replaced by national firms bringing new industries to the area. The council also provided industrial and trading estates in order to encourage a more diverse industrial structure for the city. It is now the home of one of the largest ice cream factories in the world. The thriving livestock market which was formerly held in the centre of the city has been moved to a new site on the ring road and the old site has been developed as a multi-storey car park and bus station.

Over the past four years, the council has undertaken the improvement and modernization of the city centre including two large shopping redevelopments providing servicing at first floor level and roof-top car parking. A new retail market for the city is included. An important part of these schemes has been the provision of new amenity areas which ultimately will form part of the route of a pedestrian way linking the Cathedral and other ancient buildings in the city, including the old priories of Greyfriars and Blackfriars.

In the leisure field, the council has provided a new swimming pool, a large leisure centre complex, an art gallery and has also developed a country park at Robinswood Hill. These have added greatly to the facilities for recreation, leisure and cultural activities within the city.

Several new office blocks have been built in the city, a new hospital is now open, and a new railway station is now in operation.

During the period the city was Education Authority, it rehoused many of the old schools in modern buildings and also built a college of art and technical college.

Over thirty charters have been granted to the city. The first was given by Henry I in 1155 and the last was granted on local government reorganization in 1974.

Gloucester is an historic city with much to offer the resident and visitor alike. It is also a tourist centre for the Cotswolds, the Severn Vale and the Royal Forest of Dean. Its cathedral is said to be one of the finest in Europe.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,000.

Audit by District Auditor (No 12 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of the Gosport MB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Gosport is situated on the western side of Portsmouth Harbour and has a coastline of six miles to the Solent. It is reputed to have acquired its name as 'God's Port' in 1140, when Henry of Blois, Bishop of Winchester, took shelter from a storm in the harbour and so named it. The development of Gosport has been closely linked with the growth and requirements of the Royal Navy and this has been especially marked since the Second World War. Apart from Service establishments, there are some industries, including boat-building, electronics, radio, television and chemicals.

Its proximity to the Solent, temperate climate and clean air, make Gosport a very pleasant residential area. Gosport received a Charter of Incorporation in 1922, was extended in 1939 and has been granted Borough Status under Section 145 of the Local Government Act, 1972. The council carried out an extensive scheme of sea defence works at Lee-on-the-Solent which includes a low-level promenade along the entire length of the clifflands. Multi-storey flats and dwellings for old people have been erected in the central area of the town, severely damaged during the war, and on the water front to Portsmouth Harbour. A new Town Hall accommodating all departments, a Council Chamber and Mayoral Suite was completed in 1966 and in October 1973, a new Central Library was opened contained in a building of four floors and including a Music Library. The council owns public parks, children's playgrounds, two swimming pools (indoor and outdoor), two children's paddling pools, hot slipper and 'Sauna' baths and a model yacht lake on which national and international races are held. The council also constructed an esplanade and landing stage in Portsmouth Harbour to carry pedestrian ferry traffic between Gosport and Portsmouth and has established a yacht marina off the town quay. In 1972 the Esplanade Gardens were extended and named the Royan Gardens, Gosport being twinned with the town of Royan in Charente-Maritime, France.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,500.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways—district road maintenance etc. Planning—certain functions. Refuse Disposal— certain functions. Libraries—limited functions; Sewerage.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 9 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following former local authorities: Gravesend MB, Northfleet UD, Strood RD (parishes of Cobham, Higham, Luddesdown, Meopham and Shorne).

Ranging from beside the Thames to the edge of the North Downs excarpment, Gravesham Borough is a varied area of industry, agriculture, commuter homes and picturesque villages. The bulk of the population is between the river and the A2 trunk road. Firm Metropolitan Green Belt policies protect the rural area. Within easy reach of London, the Borough looks both to the capital, its own resources and river position for its prominence—but is far enough away from London to have a character of its own.

The main functions of the Borough council are: Housing, Recreation and Amenities, Environmental Health and Control and Town and Country Planning and Building Regulations.

The borough returns seven members to serve on the new Kent County Council.

The borough forms part of the Gravesend Division of the Parliamentary County of Kent comprising the Gravesham District and the part of the Medway District lying to the west of the Medway.

Mayor's and Deputy Mayor's annual allowances: £2,200.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Great Yarmouth CB, Lothingland RD (parishes of Belton, Bradwell, Burgh Castle, Fritton & St. Olaves and Hopton), Blofield and Flegg RD (parishes of Ashby with Oby, Caister-on-Sea, Filby, Fleggburgh, Hemsby, Martham, Mautby, Ormesby St. Margaret with Scratby, Ormesby St. Michael, Repps with Bastwick, Rollesby, Somerton, Stokesby with Herringby, Thurne, West Caister and Winterton-on-Sea together with that part of the parish of Reedham lying north-east of a line drawn approximately north-west from or near the junction of the Rivers Waveney and Yare).

The Great Yarmouth borough has a coastal boundary of fifteen miles and extends inland for up to eight miles in an irregular shape. The coast has wide beaches of soft golden sand and much of the coastal area comprises holiday development in the form of caravan and chalet sites and holiday camps. The hinterland is mainly agricultural and embraces large tracts of open marshland in the basin of the Rivers Bure, Waveney and Yare. These rivers converge on the tidal Estuary of Breydon Water, which is a Local Nature Reserve, and connect with the Norfolk Broads.

The principal town in the district is Great Yarmouth, which is a well-known holiday resort providing extensive and varied holiday accommodation and a wide range of seaside attractions to cater for family holidays. The town has a modern shopping area, and contains a large open market, held on Wednesdays and Saturdays, offering a wide range of goods, especially fresh agricultural produce.

The Port of Great Yarmouth, previously famous for its herring fishery, has been substantially rebuilt and now serves as a major base for North Sea Gas and Oil exploration. The geographical situation of the port, being less than one hundred miles from the continent, and enjoying tidal conditions which permit access for twenty-four hours a day, has attracted increasing Roll-on/Roll-off traffic.

Great Yarmouth is a cultural centre for the area and accommodates most of the service industries. A wide range of light industrial activity, including frozen foods processing, furniture, paper pulp, electronics, engineering, boat-building and textiles is centred on the town, and is rapidly expanding.

In Roman times the Yare Basin was an inlet of the sea and the remains of the two large Roman forts each side of the old estuary, at Burgh Castle and Caister-on-Sea, are still visible. The town of Great Yarmouth has charters dating from 1208, and contains a number of fine houses and other historic buildings including the 11th century parish church and the 13th century toll house.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of Grimsby CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Unlike many ports, Grimsby is not dominated by its docks and industrial areas, but happily combines all the advantages of an urban community with the attractions of both the coast and countryside. The wide, tree-lined roads leading into the town, the spacious lay-out of its residential areas, the proximity of the lovely and unspoilt Lincolnshire Wolds and the attractions of nearby seaside resorts, all combine to add to the amenities of the town.

Grimsby was awarded full "Development Area Status" in 1977, and this provides stimulus over and above the many natural advantages of the area to further increased economic prosperity and buoyancy.

Although principally noted for its reputation as the country's premier fishing port, Grimsby has now become one of the leading centres—probably the leading centre—in Northern Europe for the quick freezing industry, which produces all kinds of quick-frozen foods both in bulk containers and consumer-packs. This rapid expansion of the quick-freezing industry has been accompanied by the construction of several massive cold-stores which also serve to encourage increased trade through the port with the Scandinavian countries. There are large chemical factories and other industrial premises along the Humber bank, and Grimsby is now the country's main producing centre for titanium oxide. Grimsby is the hub of the industrial South Bank of Humberside, and with the establishment of a Volkswagen terminal (one of two in the whole country), many more links with the Common Market are likely to follow. The town is a sub-regional shopping and commercial centre and there is a modern shopping precinct in the top town development.

Leisure activities are also well catered for, by a leisure centre of an exciting new design, containing a whole range of features exceptional in a town of this size. In the educational field, a wide range of schools and other educational establishments are under the control of the Humberside County Council. Nationally famous orchestras and choirs appear regularly in Grimsby, and many other cultural activities take place. The council owns the covered market hall in the Riverhead Precinct, abattoir, omnibus station and considerable leasehold estates, and maintains several parks, woodlands and recreation grounds. Public buildings include the Town Hall, Municipal Offices, Leisure Centre, Swimming baths and a Museum. A modern Central Library and several branch libraries are under the control of Humberside County Council and provide a first class service to the reading public. Omnibus services (both within and outside the borough) are provided by the Grimsby and Cleethorpes Joint Transport Committee, and there is a regular inter-city express railway service to King's Cross. Airport facilities are available at nearby Kirmington.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,250 plus £1,685 for Annual Council and Mayor's Sunday.

The borough, which was granted a Royal Charter on 13 November 1973, comprises the areas of the Guildford MB and Guildford RD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Apart from the Borough itself Guildford is a rapidly developing portion of West Surrey. The beautiful rural area forming the eastern half of the borough is within the original Metropolitan Green Belt and most of the remainder has now been included in an extension to the Green Belt. Cultural and recreational facilities centred on Guildford include civic hall, museum, an art gallery and exhibition centre, public baths, open-air swimming pool, pleasure grounds and a sports centre, athletics arena and running track.

To the north of the new cathedral on Stag Hill, the University of Surrey has now been established and on the Manor Farm site nearby the first phase of the new Guildford District General Hospital has been completed.

The Council made a grant of £5,000 to the Yvonne Arnaud Theatre during 1978/79 and owns a major orchestra.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,000.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the North Yorkshire CC.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 1 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The area is predominantly rural in character and stretches some 40 miles from the county boundary of Cleveland in the north to the York boundary in the south. It includes the attractive and thriving market towns of Bedale, Easingwold, Northallerton, Thirsk and Stokesley, each providing a focal point for villages and hamlets in the rural hinterland.

Good communications both by rail and road and easy access to regional amenities make the district attractive to residents and light industry alike. Austin Reed, York Trailers and Kosset Carpets are household names to be found on factory premises recently opened in the area.

The scenery is as attractive as any in the country. The eastern fringe, represented by the Hambleton Hills from which the district takes its name, is within the North York Moors National Park; to the west the Yorkshire Dales National Park is no more than 10 miles distant.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,150.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Cleveland CC.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 1 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Hartlepool CB, Stockton RD (parishes of Brierton, Claxton, Dalton Piercy, Elwick, Elwick Hall, Greatham, Hart, Newton Bewley).

First Charter granted by King John in 1201.

By the Hartlepool Order, 1966, the Borough of Hartlepool and the County Borough of West Hartlepool were, with adjacent areas of Stockton Rural District Council, formed into the County Borough of Hartlepool. Further changes have come about as a result of the Local Government Act, 1972, which has placed Hartlepool into the Non-Metropolitan area of Cleveland County with the status of a borough. Areas of Stockton Rural District Council, including the villages of Dalton Piercy, Elwick, Greatham, Hart and Newton Bewley form part of the Hartlepool Borough, which has been granted a new charter to enable the district to be known as the Borough of Hartlepool, and thus preserve the present rights and privileges. The Borough will continue to include the seaside resort of Seaton Carew. The town possesses various amenities including a passenger transport undertaking, a modern swimming bath, libraries, art gallery—now with an additional extension—two museums (including a maritime museum), parks, recreation grounds and an indoor bowling centre with eight rinks.

The council is responsible for the creation of a large main shopping centre.

In the industrial field Hartlepool is excellently placed to be the spearhead in the North-east's drive towards making the most of North Sea oil discoveries. The town is within a reasonable striking distance of the North Sea oilfields, has a progressive modern outlook, plus Special Development Area status, major supply industries and fast communications by rail, sea and air.

Superannuation Scheme administered by East Sussex CC.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 9 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of the county borough of Hastings which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Hastings is a first-class health and pleasure resort on the Sussex coast and is one of the Cinque Ports. The town has shown considerable municipal enterprise and operates an entertainments undertaking which includes the White Rock Pavilion (with accommodation for 1,300) providing entertainment ranging from performances by world-renowned symphony orchestras to famous summer concert parties; public baths, a Sun Lounge, St. Clement's Caves, Hastings Castle, an 18-hole golf course and beach chalets. The promenade is three miles long and is partly double-decked with municipal underground car parks holding approximately 340 vehicles. A municipal multi-storey car park provides parking for 500 cars in the town centre. The town welcomes a number of conferences each year.

The Council owns Alexandra Park (100 acres), together with seven smaller gardens totalling 51 acres. White Rock Gardens contains eight excellent bowling greens, on which the famous Hastings Bowls Tournament takes place annually. There is also a new indoor bowls pavilion, a Conference Hall and excellent tennis facilities (both grass and hard courts), together with several putting greens. Hastings is also noted for its annual International Chess Congress. Education is now administered by East Sussex County Council. A post-war feature has been the development by the Council of trading estates, providing facilities for light industry in the town. As a result several well-known firms now operate factories locally.

A Town Development Scheme accommodating initially 15,000 and ultimately 18,000 persons is being implemented in conjunction with the Greater London Council. About 5,700 dwellings, half being for sale in the private sector, will be erected and the needs of an expanding community for schools, libraries, social welfare, health, community and other services will be met. Additional employment is provided for on three employment areas totalling 112 acres. Factory sites of varying sizes are now available for development. A good standard of amenity and design is intended.

The Council owns some 500 acres of public open space in a four-mile stretch eastwards from the town which is designated as the Hastings Country Park. It includes some of the finest cliff scenery in South-East England. These include Fairlight and Ecclesbourne Glens and The Firehills. In addition the delightful Sussex countryside around the town, rich in historical associations, provides much of interest to resident and visitor alike.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,680.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 12 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authority which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Havant and Waterloo UD.

The Borough, some 13,000 acres in extent, nestles comfortably between the sea and the South Downs in the south east corner of Hampshire on the border with West Sussex.

The shore line which runs from Bedhampton to Emsworth abounds the waters of Langstone and Chichester harbours and the Solent which provide some of the best sailing and sea fishing in the country in an area officially designated as one of outstanding natural beauty.

The centre of the Borough is the old town of Havant in respect of which market charters were granted by Kings John and Henry VI. In former times Havant was renowned for its parchment industry but today it has many diverse light industries.

In spite of the rapid growth of the area and the demands on land made by housing and industry the rich coastal soil still supports a substantial agricultural community and much of the district remains delightfully rural.

There are speedy rail links to London and other centres in the south and from neighbouring Portsmouth there are regular and frequent ferry and hovercraft services to the Isle of Wight. Two trunk roads pass through the district—the A3 which follows the old London to Portsmouth coach road and the A27 coast road from Folkestone to Honiton.

Mayoral annual allowance: £4,670.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 11 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Buxton MB, Glossop MB, New Mills UD, Whaley Bridge UD, Chapel-en-le-Frith RD, Tintwistle RD.

It has needed an Act of Parliament and the wholesale reorganization of local government to give formal recognition to an area of north-west Derbyshire which has, in fact, been a reality for many years—the High Peak.

Sometimes referred to also as the Dark Peak, this area is the northern part of the Peak District and gets its name from the high moors and the dark, hard gritstone which are its main features.

The High Peak extends from Buxton (Derbyshire's premier holiday resort) in the south to Glossop and Tintwistle in the north; from the Cheshire boundary in the west almost to Sheffield in the east. Within the High Peak are to be found the towns of Buxton and Glossop, the large villages of Chapel-en-le-Frith, Hayfield, New Mills and Whaley Bridge, and numerous small villages. Of more importance to the visitor perhaps, the High Peak contains some of England's finest scenery: the high brooding moors of Kinder Scout and Bleaklow, the broad sweeping valleys at Hope and Edale, the charm and beauty of the Goyt Valley, and the man-made expanse of water at Ladybower and Derwent and many other features.

Mayoral personal annual allowance: £1,500. Deputy Mayor: £300. Other Expenses: £400.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Hove MB, Portslade-by-Sea UD.

Hove is a modern residential seaside town on the Sussex coast immediately adjoining Brighton. Extensive seafront lawns backed by wide avenues terminate at the western end with the industrial area surrounding the eastern arm of Shoreham harbour. Behind a narrow coastal plain the town extends onto the gentle southern slopes and into the valleys of the South Downs which afford protection from the north. There are notable elegant Regency terraces and squares in the south eastern part of the Borough. The parks and pleasure grounds are of particular interest especially a twin dialled floral clock, scented garden for the blind, and woodland walks. Sporting facilities include the King Alfred Sports Centre, and the Portslade Sports Centre, the Sussex County Cricket Ground, League football, Greyhound Stadium, two golf courses and model yachting lagoon, as well as tennis courts, bowling greens etc.

The town is administered from a recently completed modern town hall comprising public halls, meeting rooms as well as offices and car park.

Accrington MB, Church UD, Clayton-le-Moors UD, Great Harwood UD, Oswaldtwistle UD, Rishton UD, Burnley RD (parish of Altham).

The Hyndburn district is situate on the northern fringe of industrial Lancashire, with easy access to the beauty spots of the Ribble and Hodder Valleys, and to the holiday resorts of the Lancashire coast. Equally, it is within easy reach of Manchester and the mid-Lancashire conurbations and the M6 motorway. Formerly a predominantly cotton weaving area with some engineering, there is now an extensive range of industry.

The council provides a wide range of facilities and services including transport, parks and gardens, swimming baths, playing fields, recreation grounds, markets, cemeteries and crematorium.

The townships of Accrington, Church, Clayton-le-Moors, Oswaldtwistle and Rishton form the Accrington Parliamentary Constituency, while Altham West and Great Harwood form part of the Clitheroe Constituency.

The borough comprises the area of Ipswich CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Ipswich, situated on the River Orwell some 10 miles from the river mouth, is the capital town of Suffolk and is an expanding industrial and commercial centre. The Council owns industrial land which is available for leasing. The local authority has encouraged and assisted large insurance companies and brokers to locate new offices in the town in recent years.

Extensions to the port have recently been completed to cope with expanded trade with Europe. The Civic Centre Complex comprises a unique underground spiral car park, local Police Headquarters, Crown Courts, Magistrates' Courts, and a twelve storey administration block. A new Civic Theatre is currently under construction and is due to open early 1979.

The former Corn Exchange has been converted to an Entertainment, Art and Conference Centre and was officially opened in 1975 by HRH The Duke of Gloucester. A National Tourist information office is also based in the Town Hall and various publications are published by the Council.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,400.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 7 Audit District).

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Refuse Disposal, Food and Drugs, Sewerage.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Devizes MB, Marlborough MB, Devizes RD, Marlborough and Ramsbury RD, Pewsey RD.

The Kennet District includes some of the most attractive landscape in southern England, and a large part of it comes within the North Wessex Downs Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty.

The district extends southwards to include areas of Salisbury Plain, and to the north the Marlborough Downs. These wide tracts of upland contain a varied range of scenery and provide extensive views of the picturesque Kennet Valley and the Vale of Pewsey.

The pleasant old market towns of Devizes and Marlborough have much to offer. In addition to their historical backgrounds and an abundance of buildings of historical and architectural interest, they both provide good shopping and other facilities. Light industry offers employment in both towns.

Throughout the area there are many delightful villages, a large number of which are designated as Conservation Areas.

A full range of public services are available in all but the most isolated parts and a comprehensive road network links the whole area. The M4 motorway from London to South Wales skirts the northern part of the district, and the M5 motorway is easily reached.

Pewsey has its own railway station, and along with nearby towns gives fast train services to London and other towns.

A considerable number of first-class cultural, recreational and leisure facilities already exist or are planned, and further expansion seems likely. The Kennet and Avon Canal, Savernake Forest, The Ridgeway Long Distance Path, to mention but a few, are included among the many outdoor facilities available. The area is rich in prehistoric remains with the biggest concentration being in and around Avebury. Further Education courses at Devizes, Marlborough, Pewsey and other centres cover a wide range of interests.

Chairman's annual allowance: £700.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Kettering MB, Burton Latimer UD, Desborough UD, Rothwell UD, Kettering RD (part).

The Borough covers the largely rural northern part of the County lying on either side of the A6. Apart from the mainly late 19th Century town of Kettering with its beautiful parish church, famous pleasure park and large new town centre shopping precinct developed solely by the Council, the Borough includes the three small and charming towns of Burton Latimer, Desborough and Rothwell each with its distinctive attractions. There are twenty-three ancient stone built villages, several of which enhance the natural beauty of the Welland Valley.

The industries of the area are mainly engineering, the manufacture of clothing and footwear in the towns and agriculture and ironstone quarrying in the rural area.

Attractions in the Borough include Boughton House and Park, Wicksteed Park, Kettering and two ancient monuments, the Queen Eleanor Cross at Geddington and the Triangular Lodge at Rushton.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 3 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the areas of the Kingston upon Hull CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Kingston upon Hull is the only major city in the predominantly rural area of North Humberside. Apart from the River Humber to the south the city is surrounded by open country and in easy reach of many seaside resorts. Its extensive and well diversified shopping centre serves a large catchment area.

The city received its first charter in 1299, was incorporated in 1440 and became a county borough in 1888. Since 1914 the Chief Citizen has been styled "Lord Mayor", and this title has been retained along with city status. Also, the Council has a scheme for the election of Honorary Aldermen.

Today it ranks, not only as one of the leading seaports of the United Kingdom, with dock installations extending over some seven miles along the north bank of the River Humber, but as a major industrial centre. Caravan manufacturing is one of the new growth industries in the area. A new ferry service to Zeebrugge was opened in June 1974 to complement the existing car/passenger service to Rotterdam.

The Council is represented on the Hull and Goole Port Health Authority and on the Humber Bridge Board which is responsible for building the first bridge across the River Humber linking North and South Humberside and due for completion in 1979—it will be the longest single-span suspension bridge in the world.

The city manages the only municipally owned telephone undertaking in the country. Extensive parks and recreation grounds, landscaped areas and floral displays along main thoroughfares are attractive features of the city. The City Hall is the area's principal venue for concerts, exhibitions and conferences. The City Council is recognised as an Archive Authority under the Local Government Act 1972 and its repository has been appointed as a place of deposit for Public and Manorial records. Frans Hals' "Portrait of a Lady"—the most valuable single purchase made by a municipal art gallery in England—was acquired in 1963 for the Ferens Art Gallery. The newly-opened Town Docks Museum contains one of the most comprehensive collections of shipping and whaling material in the country. The Corporation owns a number of housing estates and a 250-acre industrial site is well on its way to full development. The Department of Industrial Development set up by the Corporation is charged with attracting new industry and trade to the city.

The historic centre of the city is known as the Old Town and includes disused docks. The policy of the Council towards this area is that it should be revitalized and a series of principles have been adopted as an alternative to comprehensive development. Among these are that the character of the Old Town should be conserved and enhanced and that the mediaeval street pattern should be kept wherever possible.

In its first major re-appraisal of policies affecting the central area of the city the council has produced a City Centre Policy Statement to replace its original development plan. In view of the present rate of change and complicated inter-relationships of the various aspects which affect the city centre the Council feels that it is unrealistic to produce further reports on traditional lines.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,250.

Electricity Board: Yorkshire.

Gas Region: North Eastern.

Regional Water Authority: Yorkshire.

Superannuation administered by West Yorkshire County Council.

Agencies: Street cleansing and gully emptying for WYMCC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of 11 former local authorities:
The county boroughs of Dewsbury and Huddersfield; the boroughs of Batley and Spenborough; the urban districts of Colne Valley, Denby Dale, Heckmondwike, Holmfirth, Kirkburton, Meltham and Mirfield.

The oldest Charter of the constituent authorities in the new Council was granted to Dewsbury in 1862. The name "Kirklees" comes from the old "Kirkeleghes" or "Church Leas", meaning Church Meadow. It is the name of the home of Sir John L. Armytage, Bart., and the place of Nunnely Priory in Charlotte Brontë's novel Shirley. Indeed, Brontë connections are known to exist with Oakwell Hall and Red House, two of the museums in the area. The name was chosen to show the wish for a new authority, rather than one or other of the constituent authorities, and the Authority's motto "Together we serve" also indicates this.

The area includes a section of the Peak District National Park, with the Holme Moss TV aerial, and is well served for public parks in all areas. Sports centres and swimming baths are also available in most parts. The musical tradition, from choral to brass bands, is very strong.

Industry is still firmly based on the textile trade, from the rag trade centres of Batley and Dewsbury, through to the fine woollen and worsted industries around Huddersfield. Yet the area has diversified, and most industries prosper, from biscuit making to boot manufacture, from mining to mattresses, from chemicals to engineering.

Accesss to the area via the motorway network of the M1, M62 and M606 is easy, and links the area with the rest of the country in a short time.
Education is given a high priority, from the high academic level of the Polytechnic, through the Colleges of Technology and Arts, and the secondary schools, down to the playgroups. As in many areas the educational pattern is changing to meet new demands.

The image of the grimy North is largely dispelled by the cleaning of hundreds of buildings and the reclamation and landscaping of waste and disused land, and the almost smoke-free atmosphere. The natural beauty of the North is now there to see and enjoy and helps to make Kirklees an attractive area for industrial or commercial concerns considering relocation.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Cleveland CC.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways (maintenance, allocation, traffic management and regulation, road safety, new estate and private street works, public utilities, maintenance of bridges and subways, omnibus shelters, pedestrian crossings, street closures).

Audit by District Auditor (No. 1 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Teesside CB (wards of Coatham, Eston Grange, Kirkleatham, Ormesby, Redcar, South Bank), Guisborough UD, Loftus UD, Saltburn and Marske-by-the-Sea UD, Skelton and Brotton UD.

The Borough of Langbaurgh is a blend of countryside and industry. Within its 61,060 acres lies some of the finest countryside including 3,000 acres of the North Yorkshire Moors National Park, three fine coastal resorts (Redcar, Marske and Saltburn), an ancient market town (Guisborough), an international port (Teesport) and the vast industrial empires of I.C.I. Wilton and British Steel.

In short, Langbaurgh offers employment of all kinds, a home and ready access to some of Britain's best recreational facilities.

It is an area with a long and varied history that can be traced back to the Stone Age. The Romans also had forts and stations in the areas, and, a millennium later, many of the Borough's villages can be found as entries in the Domesday Book. By the 19th century the ironstone of Langbaurgh played a major role in the industrial revolution, making it the important port and industrial centre it is today.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,800.

Agencies. The following regional water authority function is carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Sewers and Sewage Disposal.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Leominster MB, Kington UD, Kington RD, Leominster and Wigmore RD, Tenbury RD, Weobley RD.

The district covering the northern part of Herefordshire and north-west Worcestershire is mainly agricultural in character. Famed for its Black and White architecture, the area is one of outstanding natural beauty. The boundaries of the area range from Clows Top which is within 8 miles of the industrial west midlands to the Welsh border and from the Shropshire border on the north to the River Wye on the south. The market towns of Leominster, Kington and Tenbury are steeped in the historical traditions of the country and Wigmore Castle was the seat of the Mortimers and where the English Parliament in the early medieval days was held. Leominster's first Charter of Incorporation was granted by Queen Mary in 1554 and the Grange, which forms part of the offices of the authority, dates back to 1650.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Lewes MB, Newhaven UD, Seaford UD, Chailey RD.

The new District of Lewes comprises 113 square miles of Sussex coastline, downland and wealden countryside, the geographical centre of which is the ancient county town of Lewes, prominent in Sussex annals since before the Norman Conquest.

As well as Lewes, with its Norman Castle, Assembly Rooms, offices of the East Sussex County Council and headquarters of the Sussex Police Authority, the principal towns are Newhaven, with its thriving port, and the exceptionally pleasant seaside town of Seaford.

The River Ouse winds past Lewes through the outstanding natural beauty of the Downs to the sea at Newhaven, and a number of small and attractive villages are to be found in the Ouse Valley. The principal wealden villages are Ringmer, Barcombe, Newick, Wivelsfield Green and Ditchling.

Pre-eminent among the recreational facilities are the sports ground at Lewes, which is the venue for county bowls, hockey and rugby football, the golf course, clubhouse and beach at Seaford, the sailing and cross-channel ferries at Newhaven, and the South Downs Way which crosses the district. There is also the internationally famous Opera House at Glyndebourne.

Agencies. The following county council functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Certain Highway maintenance.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 4 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of Lichfield MB, and Lichfield RD (that part not in Cannock Chase) which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The district includes the ancient Cathedral City of Lichfield, birthplace of Dr. Samuel Johnson, the great lexicographer, and the home of many famous people—Elias Ashmole the antiquary and herald, Joseph Addison the essayist, David Garrick the actor and Erasmus Darwin the scientist, to name but a few.

The surrounding area is mainly agricultural in character with manufacturing industry in parts. It is a rapidly growing district with good quality residential development throughout.

Cannock Chase (an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty) is near and there are excellent communications to all parts of the West Midlands.

Chairman's annual allowance: £2,216.

Agencies. The following functions are carried out by the city council on an agency basis for County Council: Highways, Traffic Regulation, Transportation and Refuse Disposal; for Anglian Water Authority: Sewerage.

Audit by Approved Auditor (Robson Rhodes).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the area of the county borough of Lincoln which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Lincoln is the County Town of the geographical county of Lincolnshire. Famous as a Cathedral City with many ancient monuments, Lincoln contains many important remains and the Lincoln Archaeological Trust is conducting extensive excavation works on 'cleared' sites which are revealing a number of important 'finds'. The first of many Royal Charters was granted in 1154, and the first surviving reference to a mayor is dated 1206. Lincoln, at the centre of an agricultural county, is now an industrial centre of considerable importance. There are two large commons (containing golf courses), three parks and many open spaces. The Art Gallery houses the famous Usher Collection, the Peter de Wint Collection and a collection of Tennyson personalia and manuscripts.

The city's water supply comes from the Anglian Regional Water Authority's pumping station at Elkesley, Notts., 22 miles from Lincoln. The Council operates an omnibus system.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,140.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 6 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
In the administrative county of Carmarthenshire:
the boroughs of Kidwelly and Llanelli;
the urban district of Burry Port;
the rural district of Llanelli.

The Llanelli Borough Council administers areas of marked geographical and historical diversity. A substantial sweep of the authority's area of over 57,000 acres lies on the coast and this affords a fine expanse of unspoiled sands known as Cefn Sidan. In agreeable contrast, the inland area's softly rolling countryside is some of the most pleasant in the whole of South Wales. Llanelli has important and enduring links with the past; Kidwelly, on the western edge of the authority, was granted a borough charter as long ago as 1115, while the Duke of Lancaster established a formidable castle there which survives today, providing the authority with a popular tourist attraction. Yet modern Llanelli has been shaped predominantly by the industrial revolution, indeed such was the scale of its industrial development that by the early 20th century the town was established as Britain's major tin-plate centre. More recently, and to meet the needs of today's more complex economic system, Llanelli has been successful in attracting a wide range of new and diversified industries which should ensure the town's prosperity for many years to come.

Audit by Approved Auditor (Keens Shay Keens/ Neville Russell)

Luton, one of the leading industrial towns of the south east, is world famous for its production of motor cars, trucks, ball bearings, precision instruments and hats.

Founded on the enterprise of the 19th century straw hat industry and stimulated by the industrial boom of the early 20th century, Luton is today a fast redeveloping town of change and opportunity.

Symbolizing the new Luton is the £40 million Luton Arndale Centre, the largest covered shopping centre in Europe, which was completed in 1977.

Luton has first class communications by road, rail and air. There are two access points to the M1 on the western side of the town and Luton is linked to London—just 30 miles away—by the Bedford–St Pancras diesel service and by main line to the north. Luton Airport, owned and operated by the council, is the leading British airport for inclusive holiday tours and one of the most successful municipal enterprises in the country. It is an integral part of the London Airports system and is now designated as an International Gateway Airport, providing a wide range and frequency of international services.

Luton museum, famed for its collection of lace, is registered as a silversmith with the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths and produces lacemakers' silver bobbins. Special bobbins were produced to commemorate the silver wedding of the Queen and Prince Philip, the marriage of Princess Anne and Captain Mark Phillips and the Queen's Silver Jubilee.

Luton was one of the first towns in the country to set up a department of recreation and leisure. More than 1,000 acres of parks and open spaces offer a range of outdoor sports facilities and a variety of indoor sports is catered for at four major centres—Luton Regional Sports Centre, Putteridge Recreation Centre, Lea Manor Recreation Centre and Luton Recreation Centre. Luton opened its first municipal golf course in 1973.

Luton's modern baths centre is equipped with an indoor, outdoor and learners' pool and the town's first district swimming pool opened in October, 1973.

A fully comprehensive system of secondary education was introduced in Luton in 1966 and Luton's 34,428 schoolchildren are provided for by 65 primary schools, 14 high schools and a sixth form college.

Local places of interest include the 12th century Parish Church of St Mary, Whipsnade Zoo, Woburn Abbey and Wild Animal Kingdom and the 18th century Luton Hoo which houses the world renowned Wernher art collections.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,300.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 9 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of Maidstone MB, Hollingbourn RD and Maidstone RD, which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The district, which includes the County Town of Kent, covers one of the largest hop-growing areas in the country, and through it runs the River Medway. Agriculture is, naturally, its main industry, although general and light industry has a not inconsiderable foothold. The town of Maidstone is a thriving commercial and industrial centre, with fine shopping facilities and also holds one of the largest open-air markets in the south-east of England. The cluster of fine old medieval buildings by the Medway still stands, the Archbishop's stables housing the Carriage Museum.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,600

DEFINITION OF AREA

Malvern UD, Bromyard RD, Ledbury RD, Martley RD, Upton upon Severn RD.

This corner of England, formerly divided between Worcestershire and Herefordshire, is largely designated an area of outstanding natural beauty, the centre-piece of which is the Malvern Hills, with Malvern nestling on their slopes. Ledbury, Bromyard, Martley and Upton upon Severn lie in the valleys on either side. Upton is on the banks of the River Severn and is a popular holiday and boating resort; Ledbury and Bromyard are old market towns and have, in common with the rest of the new district, many old historical buildings and places of interest for the visitor. The district is largely rural in character and has many orchards and hop farms within the range of agricultural activities. On the other hand, the Council's predecessors promoted industrial estates at Malvern Link, Bromyard and Bishops Frome.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,200.

Area Health Authority: Nottinghamshire.

Regional Water Authority: Severn – Trent.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Nottinghamshire CC.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 11 Audit District) and Approved Auditor (Armitage Norton, Barnett, Turner).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Mansfield MB, Mansfield Woodhouse UD, Warsop UD.

Mansfield has a rich history and there is evidence of occupation by Druids, early Britons and Romans. Since these early times it has matured through commercial and industrial growth but still remains a market town with a character all its own.

Hard red and white sandstone, hewn out of local quarries, was used to build the Houses of Parliament in Westminster and the massive viaduct that straddles Mansfield which has become a local landmark.
Together with Mansfield Woodhouse and Warsop, the District forms the heart of the north Nottinghamshire coalfield. It is, however, the gateway to the Dukeries and is the ideal centre for touring the region's attractions in the form of a series of stately homes or the haunts of Robin Hood in the surrounding Sherwood Forest.

The District is recognized as having considerable industrial importance and, together with a nearby Derbyshire town, has been fused to form the Mansfield-Alfreton Growth Zone. A railway station has been re-opened at Alfreton to serve the needs of the zone.

The centre of Mansfield itself is the subject of a multi-million pound shopping development which is expected to be completed in 1976. Planners have done their work carefully to make sure the new complex does not detract from the essential Mansfield character and the flourishing open market will stand side by side with the precinct.

The District is surrounded by agriculture and it is only a matter of minutes from town centre to countryside. The Council is anxious to improve the environment and so far schemes have been completed along the banks of the Maun and the Meden, which run through the District, turning them into pleasurable riverside walks.

The District possesses many parks and recreation grounds, a swimming pools, a sauna bath, a museum, a third division football team and a sports centre among the leisure facilities for the community. It has its own professional theatre company, and a Local Arts Association ensures that culture is not ignored.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 9 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Chatham MB, Rochester MB, Strood RD (part).

The Borough of Medway has the largest population and rateable value in Kent. It comprises the old city of Rochester, the first Charter of which was granted by Richard I in 1190; the naval town of Chatham; and the larger part of the former Strood Rural District. The river Medway runs through the Borough, a tidal river enabling vessels conveying 7620·37 tonnes of cargo and drawing 7·925 metres of water to reach as far as Rochester Bridge. Rochester castle and cathedral are of particular interest and there are rich Dickensian associations in the district. The rural part takes in the Isle of Grain on the Hoo peninsula, and the Grain oil refinery is one of the largest in the world. The council owns the 52·51 hectares Allhallows-on-Sea estate which provides sites for 900 caravans and 300 chalets and attracts many thousands of holidaymakers each year.

The Borough is a thriving commercial and industrial one, and the new 3·64 hectares fully air-conditioned Pentagon Centre at Chatham, opened in 1975, caters for shoppers from a very wide area.

The council maintains an 18hole golf course, two pitch and putt courses, two indoor bowling greens, a concert hall seating 1,165 and two large civic dance halls. There are indoor swimming pools at Hoo and Strood and a large new indoor pool sited within Gillingham and near the boundary with Medway. A new indoor sports hall has recently been opened in Chatham. The council owns Rochester airport.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,780.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Melton Mowbray UD, Melton and Belvoir RD.

Situated in north east Leicestershire, the area of the Borough Council comprises the busy market town of Melton Mowbray, with one of the largest cattle markets in the country, surrounded by a rural area of beautiful countryside, including the Vale of Belvoir and part of the north Leicestershire wolds. It is in the heart of the fox-hunting country and is famous for its pork pies and Stilton cheese. Its urban industries include the manufacture of animal foods, joinery for the building trade, hosiery and knitwear, and rubber thread.

The Royal Army Veterinary Corps Training Centre is situated in Melton Mowbray and comprises Equine and Remount Wings, Veterinary Hospital, Army Dog Training School, and the Army Schools of Equitation and Farriery.

The Town Estate, dating back to the sixteenth century, owns and maintains public buildings, parks and recreation grounds, and owns the rights of a street market held on Tuesdays and Saturdays. The properties are held on behalf of the inhabitants by the Feoffees and the estate is administered by the inhabitants at the Annual Town Meeting.

Mayoral annual allowance: £750.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Bedfordshire CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA
Ampthill UD, Biggleswade UD, Sandy UD, Ampthill RD, Biggleswade RD.

Mid Bedfordshire is a pleasant, predominantly rural area stretching from Buckinghamshire in the west to Cambridgeshire in the east. Geographically the district is mainly farmland with a ridge of low hills crossing the area diagonally from north-east to south-west.

Although mainly rural in character there are parts of the area which are becoming industrialized. One of the largest brickfields in the country is situated in the west and although farming and market gardening predominate in the east, it is at Sandy that a small Town Development Scheme with housing and small factory units is being undertaken in conjunction with the GLC.

The main population centres are Biggleswade, which boasts an ancient church and is mentioned in the Domesday Book as a flourishing market town, and Ampthill, a small town with great charm and many attractive buildings.

Above all, this is an area of beautiful villages, too numerous to mention individually. Most well known are Woburn, with its Stately Home and Safari Park, and Old Warden, home of the Shuttleworth Collection of vintage aeroplanes and road vehicles.

The Council's future policies are based on a position statement which has been prepared following a comprehensive review of all its current services. The implementation of this Corporate Plan is the responsibility of the Management Team which comprises the Chief Executive and the four Departmental Directors.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,190.

Regional Water Authorities: (1) South West and (2) Wessex (very small part).

Area Health Authority: Devon.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Devon CC.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 7 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Tiverton MB, Crediton UD, Crediton RD, Tiverton RD.

The District of Mid Devon (formerly Tiverton) comprises the towns of Tiverton and Crediton and their rural hinterlands which combine to form a large and beautiful rural area in mid-Devon; it is one of only two Devon authorities without a coastline. The District lies between the Exmoor National Park to the north east, and the Dartmoor National Park to the south west. It is a District of rivers and river valleys, the valley of the Exe being of particularly outstanding beauty.

Although set in a predominantly rural area, the former Borough of Tiverton (incorporated under a charter of King James I in 1615) has a long tradition of manufacturing industry and is an industrial and distributive centre of some significance. Crediton services to some extent as a dormitory town to Exeter but also houses a number of industrial and distributive concerns. There are industrial estates in both towns, developed by the local authority, and privately owned industrial estates in the course of, or awaiting, development, at Willand and Cullompton, in immediate proximity to the M5.

Throughout the District, there are delightful and picturesque villages and hamlets and many buildings of architectural and historic interest, including (at Tiverton) the original building of Blundell's School and the lawn on which Jan Ridd, of Lorna Doone fame, fought. Blundell's School is still housed in the town, although in different buildings, and special terms are available to residents from the parish of Tiverton (a successor parish under the Local Government Act 1972).

There are private golf links at Tiverton and Crediton.

Chairman's annual allowance: £500.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways including Traffic Management and Regulations; Road Safety; Maintenance of Highways; Closure, Diversion and Adoption of Highways; Goods and Services for Highway Schemes and Architectural Services; Food and Drugs Sampling; Sewerage.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of Teesside CB (part) and Stokesley RD (part) which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The former County Borough of Middlesbrough was, with some other districts, incorporated with the Teesside County Borough Council in 1968. The new Council of Middlesbrough is a district within the new Cleveland County Council and roughly corresponds in population terms to the old county borough despite an increase in area of about 4,000 acres.

The major problem facing Middlesbrough is the need for Urban renewal and revitalisation in the inner areas, and the Council has been selected as a programme authority and will receive direct Government aid to help solve the problem. The Council's aim in Central Middlesbrough is to maintain and improve the stock of older housing around the centre as well as to continue the building of new housing. The role of the Central area as a regional centre of Cleveland is also being actively pursued and new developments are taking place and have been planned for the immediate future. In north Middlesbrough, a major problem is the reclamation and redevelopment of former industrial areas, once occupied by the iron and steel industry. The Council's aim is to regenerate these areas and alleviate problems in adjoining industrial and residential areas.

To relieve stress and overcrowding in the inner area new housing is being promoted in new developments in the South of the Borough. At Hemlington a development by the Council and other agencies to provide 3,620 dwellings is nearing completion. This includes supporting services, primary schools, a local shopping centre and recreational facilities.

A new development at Coulby Newham which will comprise about 7,500 dwellings is well under way and the first areas of housing are now occupied. In addition to local facilities, a district centre and secondary schools are being provided to serve both Coulby Newham and adjoining areas. Development will continue for at least ten years.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,700.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 9 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Burgess Hill UD, Cuckfield UD, East Grinstead UD, Cuckfield RD (part).

The new district of Mid Sussex is a largely rural area of outstanding natural beauty with substantial urbanized pockets and extends from the Surrey border to the southern slopes of the South Downs. The Ouse valley, bordered by the Balcombe and Ashdown Forests, runs through the northern half of the district whilst throughout the district there are a number of villages of considerable charm and antiquity. Nearly two-thirds of the district's population live in the four towns of Burgess Hill, Cuckfield, East Grinstead and Haywards Heath. The ancient towns of East Grinstead and Cuckfield each contain within a conservation area a number of exceptionally interesting buildings of considerable age and distinction. East Grinstead is also an important market town and shopping centre for a large rural area and features two light industrial estates. The more modern town of Haywards Heath is a mainly residential area with some recent office development and a good shopping centre and is the administrative centre of the new district, whilst the equally modern town of Burgess Hill features a thriving light industrial area together with a recently completed Town Centre Scheme incorporating a shopping precinct, an open market and a civic hall.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the area of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974: Dorking UD, Leatherhead UD, Dorking and Horley RD (part).

The district of Mole Valley was constituted under the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1972 as amended by the Horley and Charlwood Act, 1974 and combines the areas of the former Dorking and Leatherhead Urban District Councils together with part of the area formerly administered by the Dorking and Horley Rural District Council excluding the parishes of Horley, Salfords, Sidlow and Charlwood detached.

The district comprises the towns of Dorking and Leatherhead which with their associated villages and hamlets makes for an area both residential and agricultural in character and containing two of the county's notable beauty spots, Box Hill and Leith Hill.

The Council owns 2 golf courses, 15 recreation grounds with facilities for athletics, cricket, football, hockey, tennis, bowling and putting. Woodlands and open spaces total 252 acres with a further 18 acres laid out as parks and gardens. 67 acres of allotments are provided throughout the district. A covered swimming centre at Dorking and a Leisure Centre at Leatherhead have been constructed. Dorking Halls, one of the finest concert and conference centres in Surrey, is owned and managed by the Council.

Comprehensive development of Leatherhead town centre is proposed.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 6 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

In the administrative county of Monmouthshire:
- the boroughs of Abergavenny and Monmouth;
- the urban districts of Chepstow and Usk;
- the rural districts of Abergavenny, Chepstow and Monmouth;
- the rural district of Pontypool (part).

The Monmouth District is an area of great natural beauty and of considerable historic interest, stretching from the Usk Valley in the west to the Wye Valley in the east and including part of the Brecon Beacons National Park. The towns of Abergavenny, Caldicot, Chepstow, Monmouth and Usk lie within its boundaries and there are in the district some seven well-preserved castles dating mostly from the eleventh century as well as the beautiful Tintern Abbey.

With excellent communications to London and the south-west via the Severn bridge and the M4, to the Midlands and the north via the M5 and to the remainder of South Wales via the M4 in the south and the Heads of the Valleys road in the north of the district, the area is one in which there is likely to be considerable but well-controlled growth.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,100.

The district comprises the areas of the following authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974: Southwell RD, Newark RD, Newark MB.

The Newark district is one of contrasts. The contrast between the predominantly agricultural influence of the eastern villages, with the strong industrial mining towns of the west and north; a constrast between one of the finest town squares in the country in Newark and the stark beauty of Southwell Minster, a contribution to the district's heritage from the Normans.

The potential as a tourist's "must" will be realized in the blending together of the three authorities astride the river Trent.

As regards industrial potential the district will be seeking to balance the opportunities and amenities in the certain belief that a better service to the public will result.

A district of strong, loyal and historic past, backed by commercial and economic stability; a district with a care for its people—a district with a future!

Chairman's annual allowance: £300, plus £2,000 civic allowance.

Area Health Authority: Staffordshire.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the Staffordshire CC.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 5 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Newcastle-under-Lyme MB, Kidsgrove UD, Newcastle-under-Lyme RD.

Pleasantly situated in the north-west of Staffordshire, Newcastle-under-Lyme in terms of population, is the second largest district in the county and administers an area of some 21,109 hectares extending from the foothills of the Pennines in the north, embracing the edge of the Potteries conurbation to the east and across to the Cheshire and Shropshire borders in the west.

Although standing on the fringe of the Potteries and situated on the North Staffs. coalfield the town is bounded on three sides by attractive countryside and good agricultural land. Indeed, the traveller along the M6 will be visually unaware of the existence of so much industry within only a few miles of the motorway. Within the rural part of the district there is Madeley College and the University of Keele, founded by people from the Potteries and noted for its modern approach to University education.

North Staffs. is well known for its mining and famous for its pottery and many Newcastle people work in these industries. It is recorded that Newcastle provided various materials including many tons of nails for the building of Chester Castle and these trades are carried out to this day. Other employment includes electronics, baking and the manufacture of wires, cables, bricks, tiles and textiles.

The Borough Council maintains a vigorous housing policy and current schemes will ensure the provision of 100 new houses per annum. Improvements to the existing housing stock are estimated at over £400,000 for 1978/79. Aged persons' welfare bungalow schemes have been an important development and there are now 16 occupied schemes catering for this particular housing requirement and 2 further schemes in course of construction and other schemes at design stage. All new housing developments will incorporate design features to cater for ease of access and possible future use by the physically handicapped.

Newcastle-under-Lyme is an attractive residential area and the town provides markets and good class shopping with excellent car parking facilities and a second multi-storey car park has recently been completed. A ring road will eventually circle the town centre, the first stage of which has been open since 1965 and the major portion of the final stages is now in use.

The council owns extensive estates of housing and industrial development and a new industrial estate, the largest in Staffordshire is being developed astride the A34 trunk road in the north of the town in association with a land reclamation scheme.

Recreation facilities include an 18-hole municipal golf course, a par 3 golf course, ski slope, sports centre and numerous parks, playing fields and community centres.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,510; Deputy Mayoral annual allowance: £660.

DEFINITION OF AREA
Lymington MB, New Forest RD, Ringwood and Fordingbridge RD (part).

The New Forest District covers 290 square miles and occupies the whole of the south-west corner of Hampshire. The New Forest itself, managed by the Forestry Commission, and 145 square miles in extent of woods, common, heath and moorland, is a considerable attraction to visitors and a national asset. Yachting facilities in the coastal areas of the district are internationally famous. Industry in the district is diverse with petrochemical industries concentrated in areas adjoining Southampton Water, and with a wide range of other industries at Lymington and Ringwood. There is extensive farming and market gardening. This district is one of the most beautiful areas of the south of England and is increasingly popular with visitors from home and abroad.

Chairman's annual allowance: £2,200.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 6 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county borough of Newport.
In the administrative county of Gwent:
  the urban district of Caerleon;
  the rural district of Magor and St. Mellons except the parts to be comprised in Torfaen and Cardiff districts.

The Borough of Newport covers an area approximately 12 miles by 7 miles on the North side of the Bristol Channel. The industrial town of Newport and the historic town of Caerleon straddle the River Usk which bisects the Borough. To the East and West of the urban area lie a number of villages, many of whose inhabitants work in Newport, although a strong agricultural tradition still thrives.

Newport, the gateway to the Eastern valleys, grew rapidly during the nineteenth century and was largely dependent on the coal and iron trade and its associated heavy industries. This century has seen a policy of industrial diversification, though the giant Spencer Steelworks at Llanwern with its 10,000 employees is still the major employer in the area. However, the trend away from heavy engineering has continued and in recent years a number of major international companies have set up factories on the town's industrial estates on the coastal plain. Over 400 acres of land is zoned for industrial development in this area and much of it is available for immediate development.

Newport has a superb position in the communications network of Great Britain. The M4 connects Newport to London and the South-East and the dual carriageway trunk road to Ross leads onto the M5 and M6 to the Midlands and the North. The regular high-speed train service to Paddington means that London is now only ninety minutes away and although there are international airports at Bristol and Cardiff, London Heathrow can be reached in less than two hours by car. As the town's industrial role has changed, so has the role of its Docks. Until recently, they were dependent on the coal and iron ore trade but this has now declined and new trades such as timber, tea and car importing are being built up.

The town has a first-class shopping centre in which a great number of nationally known chain stores are represented. A new pedestrian-only shopping centre which includes a theatre, library, museum and art gallery has been largely completed and a policy of pedestrianising the main shopping area of the town is being pursued.

Although the remains of Newport's twelfth century castle still stand by the river and the Cathedral of St. Woolos, which dates from the same time, dominates the town centre, the Borough's main historical fame is to be found in the town of Caerleon. The "City of the Legions" was established in the first century A.D. and covers a 50-acre site. The Amphitheatre, which seated 6,000 spectators, is the only one in Britain to have been fully excavated. Other tourist attractions include the seventeenth century Tredegar House and the Transporter Bridge over the Usk. The Borough's rural areas are particularly attractive, and Newport is an ideal centre for touring the surrounding countryside.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Northampton CB, Brixworth RD (part), Northampton RD (part), Wellingborough RD (part).

Northampton has been of considerable importance from very early days. Its first charter was granted in 1189 and during the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries it was frequently the scene of the King's Court. Today it is a manufacturing town with extensive parks and recreation grounds. The area of the local authority has been designated for a major expansion of Northampton under the New Towns Act, whereby with adequate shopping, educational, recreational and social facilities it could accommodate a population of 180,000 by 1991, being ideally situated adjacent to the M1 motorway and on a loop of the main electrified London, Birmingham, Liverpool and Manchester railway.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 7 Audit District)

DEFINITION OF AREA

Sodbury RD (part), Thornbury RD (part).

The district was formed from the Rural District of Sodbury, excluding the parish of Alderley and the Rural District of Thornbury, excluding the parishes of Alkington, Berkeley, Ham and Stone, Hamfallow and Hinton.

Several parishes in the central and south-western parts of the district are urban in character, but a wide area is rural. The parishes of Yate, Chipping Sodbury and parts of Dodington and Westerleigh are developing as a new town with an ultimate population of some 35,000 and a new town centre is well advanced.

A new swimming bath has been built at Yate which will form the first phase of a sports and social centre for the new town.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,250.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Bedford MB, Kempston UD, Bedford RD.

Bedford historically has long been the centre for this area and is the main source of trade and employment. It is the county town of Bedfordshire, a market town and administrative centre. The growth in population has been accompanied by extensive housing development and industrial expansion on a broad scale. It is the shopping and entertainment centre for a catchment area of approximately 200,500 people. Bedford is also situated astride several trunk roads midway between Britain's two main north to south arteries—the M1 and the A1. It has good rail communications and is within easy reach of several major airports including Luton, Heathrow and Birmingham.

There is no clear geographical boundary nowadays between Bedford and Kempston but, nevertheless the latter retains its individuality and provides its own community life and local amenities as well as the location for several of the more important industries. Kempston has seen a fair amount of expansion in recent years and its services and amenities have been improved to match the increase in population. It now has its own town council which will help to preserve the local character.

The rural parishes range in population from 50 to over 4,200. Those which are closest to or within easy reach of the urban centre of Bedford and Kempston provide attractive residential accommodation for people working in the town. Others, farther out, are more rural and agricultural in character. Brick making, which is one of the region's most important industries, is established within the rural area. The tall chimneys of the brick fields are well known landmarks of rail and road travellers. The villages provide a rich tapestry of English history captured forever in their churches, cottages and stately homes.

The common link running through the area of North Bedfordshire Borough is the River Great Ouse which winds and loops its way across the Borough. Quiet backwaters, popular fishing spots and fine riverside walks lined with gardens and meadows represent contrasting features which the river brings to the Borough and which helps to make it such an attractive area in which to live and work.

Mayor's annual allowance: £3,200.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974: Cromer UD, North Walsham UD, Sheringham UD, Wells-next-the-Sea UD, Erpingham RD, Smallburgh RD, Walsingham RD.

The North Norfolk District incorporates a coastline in excess of 40 miles, providing some of the most attractive scenery in the county. A considerable part of the area has been designated an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty.

The main holiday centres are Cromer, Sheringham and Wells-next-the-Sea. Inland the area is mainly agricultural in outlook and the two principal market towns, which also provide considerable employment opportunities, are North Walsham and Fakenham.

Walsingham, the village with a significant religious background, is also situated in the district, and many thousands of pilgrims still gather there each year.

Amenities available include a sports centre in Fakenham, community centres, and museums at Walsingham and Glandford, in addition to the wonderful coastline where a wide variety of amenities exist.

Chairman's annual allowance: £300.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Market Drayton RD, North Shropshire RD.

Situated, as its name indicates, in the north of Shropshire where it adjoins Cheshire to the north, the Welsh county of Clwyd to the west, and Staffordshire to the east, the District of North Shropshire covers approximately 262 square miles and has a population of 48,400. The towns of the district are Ellesmere, Market Drayton, Wem and Whitchurch.

The land is undulating, lying in a depression between the Welsh hills to the west, the Pennines to the east and north-east, and it is an extension of the Cheshire Plain to the north with the Severn Valley to the south. The climate, therefore, is moderate, and this combined with the highly productive soil of the area has resulted in the main industry being agriculture with its associated industries. However, a variety of trades and light industries have developed over recent years in the urban areas of the district.

Predominantly the district is rural in character with such areas of outstanding natural beauty as the Ellesmere area where there are seven quite large meres, near Weston-under-Redcastle there is Hawk lake, which is approximately three-quarters of a mile in length, and at Grinshill there is a large picnic site.

The Shropshire Union canal passes through the district. It is flourishing as a leisure amenity because at Market Drayton and Whinall there are large pleasure boating centres.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county borough of Tynemouth.
In the administrative county of Northumberland—
  the borough of Wallsend;
  the borough of Whitley Bay;
  the urban district of Longbenton; part of the urban district of Seaton Valley (the wards of Backworth, Earsdon and Shiremoor).

Situated on the north side of the River Tyne estuary in the county of Tyne and Wear, the Borough is of some antiquity, including in its boundaries the eastern extremity of Hadrian's Wall, the Tynemouth Priory, and Pen Bal Crag at the river mouth. As part of the unbroken conurbation of Tyneside the Borough has wide and varied characteristics, embracing shipbuilding and ship repairing in the Wallsend and North Shields areas, the fishing industry at North Shields, and the popular seaside and health resorts with extensive sands and havens at Whitley Bay and Tynemouth. With modern, up-to-date road, rail, air and sea communications the basic heavy industries have been supplemented by the development of industrial trading estates where light industries have brought further employment to the area, including the New Town of Killingworth, creating a balanced and varied economy. The Borough is a dormitory area for Newcastle and, in addition to new, modern housing estate development, provides a wide variety of services and amenities, including parks, playing fields, swimming baths, sports centres, as well as libraries and study centres for further education.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,700.

Agencies. The following county council functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Highways in respect of urbanized area based on Coalville.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 11 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Ashby-de-la-Zouch UD, Ashby Woulds UD, Coalville UD, Ashby-de-la-Zouch RD, Castle Donington RD, Market Bosworth RD (parish of Ibstock).

North West Leicestershire extends from Measham, close to the Warwickshire border, to Castle Donington in the north and Coalville to the east. It is influenced considerably by two coalfields, and at its eastern edge it has the upland area of Charnwood Forest forming a strong physical boundary. To the south it runs into the broad agricultural plain of south west Leicestershire and in the west it is bounded by Warwickshire, Staffordshire and Derbyshire. Since at least the time of the Industrial Revolution parts of the area have been dominated by the mining activities associated with the coalfield and other early industrial activities like clay extraction, pottery and engineering.

The largest town in the area is Coalville and although as the name implies the town is an industrial one centred around coal mining, Coalville is far from a typical colliery centre. The town and its picturesque surroundings are far too pleasant and there are so many other enterprises located in Coalville that coal mining does not dominate the industrial field.

One of the recent major developments in the area has been the provision of the East Midlands Airport at Castle Donington. The airport has a runway sufficiently large to accommodate the largest aircraft. Passenger services operate daily to all parts of the Continent and twice daily to all principal airports in the British Isles. There is a separate freight complex handling and despatching freight daily.

On the historical scene there are many references worthy of note. Ashby-de-la-Zouch, immortalized in the pages of "Ivanhoe" by Sir Walter Scott, is steeped in history. Its 15th century castle built by Lord Hastings and in possession for centuries of the Earls of Huntingdon now lies in ruins. Nearby is Coleorton Hall where such great poets and artists as William Wordsworth and John Constable once stayed. In the area there lay numerous ecclesiastical establishments which now lie in ruins. Among these may be mentioned Gracedieu Priory and Charley Priory. The modern Monastery of Mount St. Bernard's is a fine example of the work of the great architect Pugin.

Educationally the district is within one of the most up to date education areas in the country. There are many facilities available in the district including the North West Leicestershire Technical College at Coalville, three Grammar schools, four High schools in addition to the numerous junior and infant schools throughout the district.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,500.

Agencies. The following county council functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Food and Drugs (Composition and Labelling).

Audit by District Auditor (No. 7 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Calne MB, Chippenham MB, Malmesbury MB, Calne and Chippenham RD, Cricklade and Wootton Bassett RD, Malmesbury RD.

Lying in the north-west of Wiltshire, the northern part of the district, touching on Thamesdown, is set in the richly productive grazing vale between the Marlborough Downs and the Cotswolds. Here too are the upper reaches of the River Thames flowing from its source just over the border in Gloucestershire.

This area is akin to that further south to the extent that the villages are picturesque with old houses and cottages of stone or mellowed brickwork, with dignified manor houses. Castle Combe is a typical example. Most of the churches date from medieval days and all this part of Wiltshire is indeed "green and pleasant" with many antiquities and historical places. Approximately 500 local buildings, including Lacock Abbey and its village (National Trust) and Corsham Court, are scheduled as being of historical or architectural importance.

The very old boroughs of Calne, Chippenham and Malmesbury, as well as the towns of Corsham, Cricklade and Wootton Bassett, are busy places. Service establishments, such as RAF Lyneham, and many small industries blend with the countryside—all made more accessible than hitherto by the M4 motorway.

Chairman's annual allowance: £750.

The city comprises the area of the county borough of Norwich which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Norwich, "the city of churches and gardens", has a long historic continuity, and in the seventeenth century it was, next to London, "the first English Manufacturing town"—to quote Macaulay. The first Charter granted to the city is dated 1158, and the foundation of municipal self-government was laid by a second Charter, granted by Richard I in 1194. It was created a County Borough in 1888. The title of Lord Mayor was granted to the city's chief magistrate in 1910. The Norwich Corporation Act 1933, enacted that the name of the municipal Corporation shall be the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Citizens of the City of Norwich. To the antiquary, the City offers many attractions, and it is particularly fitting that several of the most valuable and historic buildings, chiefly through the munificence of public-spirited citizens, should be the property of the city. The centre of the municipal government is the City Hall. The former seat of government is the ancient Guildhall, a fine, flint-faced building dating from the early fifteenth century. St. Andrew's and Blackfriars' Halls, formerly the Church of the Dominicans or Black Friars, are maintained by the Council, Norwich Castle, with its splendid Norman Keep, was converted by the Corporation into a Museum and art gallery, and as such was opened in 1894. Its possessions include one of the finest collections of birds in Britain and a good selection of paintings by members of the Norwich School.

The City is well provided with parks, open spaces and recreation grounds, which comprise in all 608 acres, including Mousehold Heath (190 acres), of which the Council is the conservator, 140 acres of allotments are also provided. The Council owns large corporate estates, in addition to one of the largest cattle markets in England, and provision and fish markets.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1800.

The City comprises the area of the county borough of Nottingham which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The City, which stands almost wholly on the northern bank of the River Trent, has for many centuries been a place of great historical importance. It has been granted many Royal Charters, the first known charter being that of Henry the Second in 1155, and the last of the old charters being that of William and Mary granted in 1692 confirming the "Governing Charter" granted by Henry the Sixth in 1449 making Nottingham a county of itself. The City became a County Borough under the Local Government Act 1888, and was granted City status by a charter of Queen Victoria dated 7th August 1897. As a County, Nottingham had its own Lord Lieutenant and Sheriff. The office of Mayor was created by Charter of Edward the First in 1284, and on 10th July 1928 the title and dignity of Lord Mayor was conferred by George the Fifth. Mayors and Lord Mayors have regularly been elected from 1284 to date. The former County Borough ceased to exist on 31st March 1974 following local government reorganization.

The new City Council is responsible for housing, transport, local planning, leisure service facilities, environmental health services and its large land holdings. A charter dated 1st April 1974 was granted by Her Majesty conferring the status of borough on the new Council. The status of a City has also been granted, together with the right to appoint local officers of dignity including a Lord Mayor, Deputy Lord Mayor and Sheriff.

Nottingham is fortunate in possessing corporate estates. Three are of ancient origin and yield substantial revenues from centrally situated land. The Council owns The Castle, imposingly situated on the Castle Rock, which is used as a museum and art gallery; Wollaton Hall, a magnificent Elizabethan mansion and Park used in part as a natural history and industrial museum and an open space of 453 acres; and Newstead Abbey and grounds, once the home of Lord Byron, the poet. The famous Goose Fair is held annually on three consecutive days commencing on the first Thursday in October. The Council operates a covered central market, cattle market, wholesale fruit and vegetable market and a public cold store.

Principal industries include the manufacture of lace, hosiery, chemicals, mechanical products, tobacco, cycles and general engineering works. Other important industries are bleaching, dyeing, spinning, tanning, brewing and furniture.

Mayoral annual allowance: £4,500.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 4 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Nuneaton MB, Bedworth UD.

Bedworth and Nuneaton, the two towns merged into the new Borough, lie to the north of Coventry and have developed into thriving industrial and manufacturing market towns, with extensive residential areas and excellent recreational and leisure amenities.

Development of the town centres, with new shops and offices is in progress. Ring Road and By-Pass Schemes are already partly completed, and direct access to the motorway network is provided by the MI–M6 link at the south of the district. Car parking is free. Markets are held on four occasions each week. The Council owns a central bus station, and the Nuneaton station provides very good rail services both for passengers and freight.

The Council is well served by libraries and schools, and in the south of the area a new swimming pool and squash courts have been completed adding to existing facilities, which are being rapidly expanded to meet today's leisure requirements. A Civic Hall designed in conjunction with the Department of the Environment is owned and managed by the Council. Opened in September 1973, it provides for an extensive range of entertainment and leisure activities.

Planning strategies envisage a high rate of population and economic growth for the district.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,750.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 11 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA
Oadby UD and Wigston UD.

The borough lies to the south of Leicester and within easy access of the M1. There has been extensive residential development since the end of the Second World War and good shopping facilities exist. The A50 and A6 pass through the district.

Industry is of a wide variety, including hosiery, shoes, plastics, electrical, general engineering, printing and food products. In the main, factories and industrial buildings have been located on industrial estates.

A moderate increase in the population of the district is envisaged in the Draft Structure Plan. Educational and cultural facilities are good; a College of Further Education was opened in Wigston in 1970. A hypermarket, Woolco, adjoins the A6 in Oadby.

The Wigston Office is now being extended and administration will be centralised there in March 1979. The existing Council Offices in Oadby and Wigston will remain in use in the interim period.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,412.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county borough of Oldham.

In the administrative county of Lancaster, the urban districts of Chadderton, Crompton, Failsworth, Lees and Royton.

In the administrative county of Yorkshire, West Riding, the urban district of Saddleworth.

Oldham is a district of many contrasts. It is a busy industrial area set amidst a landscape of outstanding natural beauty. Of the total area of the Borough, which is more than 55 square miles, two thirds is open land, much of it wide areas of countryside, slender valleys, rushing streams and windblown moorland.

Historically, Oldham was one of the first centres of the Industrial Revolution. Cotton spinning and weaving became the main industries during the nineteenth century but these have given way during the last fifty years to a wide range of industries from vehicle-building to electronics, from textile machinery to boat-building. Oldham's links with the famous are many—William Cobbett and Sir Winston Churchill were Oldham MP's; Annie Kenney, a famous suffragette, and Sir William Walton, the composer, were born locally, and these are just a few of Oldham's famous sons and daughters.

As a centre for living and working, the Oldham area is both convenient and attractive. Manchester lies seven miles to the south-west and yet the Pennine Way is only six miles north-east.

Undoubtedly one of the main attractions of Oldham is that it offers a unique combination, due to its location, of town and city centre cultural and entertainment facilities. The Borough is very well situated for communications with the rest of the country. Situated immediately south of the M62 motorway, travel to Merseyside, Hull, Glasgow, Tyneside, Teesside, West Midlands, Bristol, London and the South-east is simple. Excellent bus and rail links and the proximity of Manchester Ringway Airport all contribute to the ease of travelling. For the tourist this area offers some of the most spectacular scenery that England can offer, as well as being within easy reach of seaside resorts, the Peak District National Park, the Lake District and the Lancashire, Cheshire and Welsh countryside.

Oldham is the centre of an area noted for shopping variety. Its position as a shopping-centre is two-fold; it has an old-established outdoor market (Tommyfield) and is in the process of re-building its town centre with modern shops and stores. The nearby districts of Chadderton, Royton and Failsworth have new shopping centres and the surrounding towns, especially Manchester, have every kind of store for the shopper. Parking facilities are available throughout the area and there are ample car parks serving the main shopping centre.

A full range of recreational and sports activities is offered Boroughwide, catering for almost every hobby and interest. Over twenty-five major parks are available and numerous smaller parks and gardens are found everywhere. A number of the parks have boating lakes and full facilities for children. The area has also several golf courses, whose variety will test the most discriminating golfer. Other sports popular in this area include Rugby League, Football, Cricket and Crown Green Bowling. Oldham Athletic, the Borough's major Football team, is known throughout the country.

Oldham has a superb modern swimming stadium in the town centre and other pools in various parts of the Borough. The Oldham Repertory Theatre and the Grange Arts Centre between them provide a comprehensive range of entertainment, from concerts, exhibitions and shows to impressive amateur and professional dramatic productions. The Borough is a leading centre for brass band concerts. Oldham's Local Interest Centre is a unique combination of Local Studies Library and Museum which aims to provide a cultural focal point for the Borough by giving all kinds of information, both current and historical, about the area. Other places of interest include Foxdenton Hall, Chadderton, a brick-built manor house in the classic renaissance style dating from about 1700; St. Mary's Parish Church, an attractive example of early nineteenth-century architecture and the Old Town Hall, a neo-classic building built between 1841–1842. The Art Gallery in Union Street contains a comprehensive range of paintings, sculpture and objet d'art. The Blue Coat School is housed in an imposing building high above the town.

The impressive new Civic Centre on West St. has enabled the majority of Local Authority departments to be accommodated in a single building. This is a civic centre in the full sense, it also includes a 1,200 seater multi-purpose assembly hall as well as full banqueting and other facilities. The new Civic Centre completes a civic and administration complex consisting also of the College of Technology, Divisional Police Headquarters and the new Magistrates Courts.

A friendly link with the continent is maintained through twin towns, Kranj, in Yugoslavia, twins with the Metropolitan Borough, Landsberg in Germany with Failsworth, and Geesthacht, again in Germany, with Chadderton. Exchange visits are made and this developing friendship is a small but important contribution towards international relationships.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,300.

The borough comprises the area of the Oswestry RD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The north-western area of Shropshire is rich in agricultural development, and with its mountains and flowing valleys is one of the most beautiful parts of the county. The borough of Oswestry is situated here, with road and rail communications to both the Midlands and the North.

The town of Oswestry is an ancient market town, standing on a natural border between the pastoral lowlands of Shropshire and the foothills of the Berwyns. Old Oswestry (Hen Dinas), the nearby hillfort, could well have been a centre for trade between peoples whose background, productions and skills differed widely. The name 'Oswestry' is an identification with the site of a battle in A.D. 642 between Penda, heathen king King of Mercia, and Oswald, Christian King of Northumbria, in which the latter, later canonized, was killed. The church and holy well bear his dedication.

In the eighth century, Wat's Dyke was constructed as a result of raids made by the Welsh against the Mercian forces. Remains of this, and Offa's Dyke, built at the end of the eighth century, can be seen in the district.

After the Norman Conquest, Roger de Montgomery became overlord for the Oswestry area and attempted to keep down the Welsh raids which had increased. The raids continued, however, right up to the fifteenth century. The castle, built by the Normans, had as its first Lord of the Manor the family of Fitzalan, whose descendants held it in fee from the Montgomerys for many generations. In 1165 Henry II used the town as a base for a punitive expedition, as did Edward I. Llewellyn of Wales burned it in 1233, and it was sacked and the church almost demolished in 1400 by Glendower. The town and countryside has suffered numerous attacks through centuries past, the last being during the Civil War of the mid-seventeenth century. The castle withstood one attack by Parliamentary forces, only to be defeated by a second, when most of the original castle walls were demolished.

The borough provides full residential facilities, and more than 3,000 Council-owned dwellings have been erected there, in addition to the extensive private residential development which already exists, and which is encouraged. Following the demise of the town as a railway centre and the closure of local coal mines, light industry is being encouraged to the area, the Council providing land suitable for industrial development. Intensive dairy farming is carried on. There are adequate primary, secondary, modern and grammar schools. Oswestry School, founded as early as 1407, is one of the oldest 'free' schools in the country.

Only one-and-a-half miles from the town there is the world-famous Robert Jones and Agnes Hunt Orthopaedic Hospital, with its new research centre.

The residents of Oswestry find that the town, with adequate car-parking, caters for their needs in modern stores and supermarkets; alternatively, for those who prefer more personal service, there are smaller family-owned establishments. The whole area is pleasant, healthy and a fine place in which to live, work and enjoy life.

Mayoral annual allowance: £500.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 8 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the area of the Oxford CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The municipal history of Oxford is of considerable interest, Charters beginning with one granted by Henry II, and its list of mayors, bailiffs and aldermen starting in 1272. The freemen remain to this day an active body whose rights include those of pasturage over a large tract of land known as Port Meadow, and whose interests are represented on the Council by the Sheriff. Markets and fairs have existed since 1520, and the water supply, dating from 1615, is one of the oldest in the country. There are ancient municipal charities, and until 1889, when the City became a County Borough, the Corporation occupied itself mainly with these, its considerable properties, and the water supply; the paving, lighting and sanitary duties being discharged first by Commissioners, and then from 1864 to 1889 by a local board.

In 1929 the boundaries of the City were extended to include part of the urban district of Headington, the parish of Cowley, and parts of the parishes of Iffley, Marston, Cutteslowe, Water Easton and Wolvercote, and in 1957 the boundary was again extended to include part of the parish of Littlemore. The airport was opened in 1939 and is leased to private operators.

The City possesses many beautiful and historic buildings, chief of which are, of course, the university buildings and colleges, and has open spaces and interesting surroundings.

Electricity Board: North Western.

Gas Region: North West.

Regional Water Authority: North West.

Area Health Authority: Lancashire.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Lancashire CC.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 2 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Colne MB, Nelson MB, Barnoldswick UD, Barrowford UD, Brierfield UD, Earby UD, Trawden UD, Burnley RD (parishes of Barley-with-Wheatley Booth, Blacko, Foulridge, Goldshaw Booth, Higham-with-West-Close Booth, Old Laund Booth, Reedley Hollows and Roughlee Booth), Skipton RD (part).

THE Borough of Pendle lies on the easterly boundary of the new county of Lancashire adjoining the North Yorkshire non-Metropolitan county and the West Yorkshire Metropolitan county and comprises an area of more than sixty-five square miles. The district takes its name from Pendle Hill, a well known geographical feature of the Pennines which is visible from most parts of the district.

The new district comprises several thriving and progressive townships where much urban renewal is being carried out and whilst textiles and associated trades were, in the nineteenth and first part of the present century, the main industry in the area, a great deal of industrial diversification has taken place. Textiles still account for a large part of local industry but other industries attracted to and expanding in the area include general and light engineering, some of which are allied to the motor and aerospace industries. Other manufacturing processes are concerned with furniture, paper, plastics, carpets, felt and printing. As local government reorganization has brought about the amalgamation of urban and rural areas, there is also a great deal of agriculture within the district.

Much of the Borough Council's area is rural and includes some of the loveliest countryside in Britain, the area to the west and north comprising the beautiful Forest of Pendle (the home of the Lancashire witches) and West Craven areas and to the east lie the Pennine moorlands extending to the notable and historic Brontë country. The magnificent English Lake District and the Yorkshire Dales are easily accessible from the district.

Among the recreational and sporting amenities provided by the council are golf courses, parks and playing fields, and indoor and outdoor swimming pools. There are also keenly supported sporting, musical and cultural societies and social clubs of all kinds.

The Lancashire County Council is the local education authority and provides a comprehensive education service. Special education is available for delicate and physically handicapped children and the educationally sub-normal. The Nelson and Colne College of Further Education is a fine and well equipped modern range of buildings providing academic, vocational and non-vocational courses in a wide range of subjects for all post-sixteen students. Technical training is available both at the College and other colleges in the large adjacent townships.

The proposed north Lancashire motorway M65 from the M6 to Colne, work on which has now commenced, will link Pendle with the country's motorway system.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,700.

Agencies. The Council has a wide agency for highways purposes in respect of the part of the city within the designated area of the New Town. Agency in relation to sewerage under agreement with the Anglian Water Authority.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 10 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974: Peterborough MB, Old Fletton UD, Barnack RD, Norman Cross RD (part), Peterborough RD, Thorney RD.

Peterborough has long standing ecclesiastical associations focused on a magnificent Cathedral and has always been the centre of an important agricultural area though for the past century it has been established as a railway town and in more recent years has greatly increased in industrial significance. The city as now constituted is very much an assimilation of town and country and the built up more central part is now embraced by a wide agricultural area, some seven times greater in acreage. The designated area of Peterborough New Town is wholly contained within the city though in extent is only about one-fifth of it. A vigorous expansion programme is being undertaken under the auspices of the Peterborough Development Corporation and much stress has been laid on the partnership aspect of the enterprise with the City Council and the County Council. The projection—allowing for natural growth—is for a further 50,000 population by 1985.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,750.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the Borough of Poole which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Poole's earliest Charter was granted in 1248 and in 1568 it was made a County of a Town by Elizabeth I; since then the Council has appointed a Sheriff annually.

The Borough is renowned for its great natural beauty which it is the Council's policy to preserve and enhance. This has been achieved despite development of the town as a medium-growth area in the Strategic Plan for the South East. For many years the average increase in population has been 2,000 annually. The residential districts of the borough comprise Alderney, Branksome, Branksome Park, Broadstone, Creekmoor, Canford Cliffs, Canford Magna, Hamworthy, Lilliput, Merley, Newtown, Oakdale, Parkstone, Sandbanks and Wallisdown. The Council has laid out a private residential estate of over 200 acres at South Canford Heath and has purchased a further 513 acres for comprehensive development to meet housing needs in the next few years.

Poole Harbour and Poole Bay are world-renowned for their excellent yachting and the Royal Motor Yacht Club is situated in the harbour as well as seven other yacht clubs. The bathing beaches from Branksome Dene Chine to Sandbanks contain some of the most popular sandy beaches on the south coast. The Council maintains many parks and open spaces and owns the freehold of a holiday caravan estate of 60 acres providing sites for over 1,000 caravans.

Considerable industrial expansion has taken place during recent years and, in addition to the traditional industries of pottery and brick manufacturing there are industries concerned with many types of engineering, electronics and automation, pharmaceutical products and chemicals, caravan production and food manufacturing. The Council has laid out an industrial estate of 50 acres to assist expanding local industries and to relocate non-conforming industries from residential areas. In addition, further areas are being made available for industrial development.

Phase I of a central area shopping and commercial re-development has been completed. This includes a new central library and a £200,000 sports centre. Phase II of the shopping redevelopment has been commenced and should be completed in 1980. The Council's £4½m complex comprising a 1,500-seat concert hall, 650-seat theatre, cinema, bars, restaurants, art gallery and craft rooms for multi-arts use was opened in April 1978. Further extension of the shopping and hotel development is planned. Traffic-free shopping conditions have been created in High Street. Commercial expansion includes an office block of 375,000 square feet for Barclays Bank International Ltd. for a decentralized head office in the town centre. Further office development, both in the town centre and elsewhere, have been completed. The whole of the town centre comprising 175 acres is included in approved comprehensive development area maps.

The diversion of all sewage from coastal outfalls to an extended sewage disposal works was completed in November 1973. A refuse pulverization plant is in operation, the product being used for reclaiming land for industry and future roads. The Council is the port health authority.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,350.

The city comprises the area of Portsmouth CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Earliest known Charter—1194. Created a County Borough in 1888.

Portsmouth, which incorporates the seaside resort of Southsea, lies on the north shore of the Solent, overlooking Spithead and the Isle of Wight. The seafront stretches in an unbroken line for some 4½ miles and the Council activities include the running of 3 licensed restaurants, 2 licensed functional establishments and 13 cafes along the front, caravan and camping sites, sun huts, etc., 2 covered swimming pools and 3 open pools and various other entertainment and recreational undertakings. There are two piers, one privately-owned and the second council-owned, but leased to private enterprise. There are 2 golf courses. There is also a miniature links on the sea front.

The City is the premier naval port of the Commonwealth and is rich in historical tradition. One of the country's greatest showpieces, HMS Victory, is berthed in the world's oldest dry dock in Portsmouth's Naval Base and valuable historical features include Southsea Castle (Council owned and opened as a Museum of Military History) and Round Tower and Point Battery (features of the fortifications of Old Portsmouth) restored by the Council. There are also museums maintained by the Royal Navy and the Royal Marines.

The civic headquarters is the magnificent Guildhall. Destroyed by enemy action in 1941, the Guildhall was completely rebuilt internally while the imposing external facade was largely retained, and the building was opened by HM the Queen in 1959. The public parts of the Guildhall house one of the country's finest concert and conference halls, with seating for 1,993 and the most modern facilities including functional catering facilities and licensed bars.

The new Civic Offices in Guildhall Square have recently been completed and house the main Council Departments and an Exhibition Gallery.

Other projects include the recently extended Continental Ferry Port with roll-on/roll-off car ferry services to Cherbourg, St. Malo, Le Havre and the Channel Islands.

Portsmouth has been granted the retention of City status in the new local government structure and the title of Lord Mayor.

Mayoral annual allowance: £6,460.

DEFINITION OF AREA

In the administrative county of Pembroke:
  the borough of Haverfordwest;
  the urban districts of Fishguard and Goodwick, Milford Haven and Neyland; the rural districts of Cemaes and Haverfordwest.

The area of Preseli District Council has three principal industries—agriculture, tourism and the oil industry, with three refineries based on the shores of the Milford Haven waterway. In all there are 150 miles of coast in the Council's area, and in the region of 60 beaches. A very large proportion of this coastal area falls within the National Park and the scenery is regarded as among the best in Britain.

The area is served by a civil airport at Withybush, which is on the outskirts of Haverfordwest.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Preston CB, Fulwood UD, Preston RD (part).

Preston is an ancient town, being a borough by prescription and having been granted a Charter in 1179. There is good evidence that an earlier Charter was granted in 1100. The ancient Guild Merchant is celebrated every 20 years as a result of the Charter of 1179, and the last celebration was held in 1972. H.M. Queen granted, in 1974, a Charter conferring on the district the status of borough and preserving the powers, privileges etc. of earlier Charters including the right to continue the celebration of the Guild Merchant.

Preston is a progressive industrial town with a wide range of industries. Considerable redevelopment of the town centre is taking place; a central bus station and car park, a retail market and car park and a new multi purpose entertainments complex (the Guild Hall) having recently been completed. Preston lies within the area of the designated Central Lancashire New Town and a Development Corporation has been appointed and is now fully operational. It is estimated that the new town will have a population of 285,000 by the mid nineteen eighties.

Preston has a port of some significance, even though it is some 16 miles from the open sea. The river Ribble has been made navigable enabling vessels of a nett tonnage of approximately 3,500 tons to use the port. The Ribble Navigation and Preston Dock Undertaking is owned by the Council. The Council is the Port Health Authority.

The Council makes an allowance of £2,530 per annum fo the Mayor and £380 to Deputy Mayor.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways; Refuse Disposal; Building Maintenance—under the Local Authorities (Goods and Services) Act, 1970; Agreement under the Water Act, 1973.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of Reading CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974, together with an area formerly in South Oxfordshire (Mapledurham, Kidmore End, Eye and Dunsden, Caversham Park Village). The borough was enlarged to take in these areas on 1st April, 1977.

Reading's recorded history commences with the account in the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle of the Borough's occupation by the invading Danes in 871. The Domesday Book AD 1086 shows Reading to be a royal borough, but it was soon to be dominated by the Abbot of Reading. Reading Abbey was founded by Henry I in 1121. The first royal charter was granted to the Merchant Guild in 1253 by Henry III. Henry VII's charter of 1487 is the first to mention the office of mayor, a title which has certainly been used from at least 1302. The town received its first charter of incorporation in 1542 from Henry VIII who had dissolved the Abbey in 1539. Archbishop William Laud, who was born in Reading and educated at Reading School, greatly aided the Corporation in obtaining a charter from Charles I in 1638 giving further privileges. This document remained the governing charter of the Borough until the Municipal Corporations Act 1835. Reading received County Borough status in 1888. The County Borough boundaries were extended in 1911 to include Caversham and part of Tilehurst. The results of a further review are awaited.

The Transport Department operates 131 (majority one-man operated) motor buses. The passenger vehicles run over 3,200,000 miles and carry approximately 27 million passengers per year.

Reading has many fine public parks and recreation grounds occupying a total area of nearly 500 acres. The Forbury Gardens, laid out in the forecourt of Reading Abbey, and the Abbey Ruins, are near the centre of the town. The Thameside Promenade, stretching for a mile above Caversham Bridge, offers good views of the Thames. Most of the parks have cricket, football and hockey pitches and many offer facilities for bowls and tennis. Approximately 160 acres of allotments are also provided by the Council.

The Central Swimming Pool was opened in 1967. Facilities comprise a 33-metre swimming pool, a 12′ 6″ diving pool and a teaching pool. It is used by approximately 343,000 people per year.

In 1973, the first dual-provision sports centre in Reading was opened at Meadway Comprehensive School. Facilities consist of a 120 × 60 feet sports hall, a 20 metre swimming pool, 2 squash courts, an all-weather football pitch with floodlighting facilities, together with cafeteria and licensed bar facilities. A second dual-provision sports centre at Ashmead Comprehensive School in South Reading is also proposed and additional facilities are planned in other parts of the town.

The Central Library, in Blagrave Street, houses reference, adult and junior lending, local history, music and gramophone libraries. The reference library provides a commercial and information service.

The Art Gallery and Museum are located in Blagrave Street and contain an extensive collection of Roman remains from Silchester.

Electricity Board: Midlands.

Gas Region: West Midlands.

Regional Water Authority: Severn-Trent.

Area Health Authority: Hereford and Worcester.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Hereford and Worcester CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The District comprises the whole of Redditch New Town, and an approximately equal area of mainly green countryside with two villages. The town of Redditch has undergone considerable expansion and industrial and residential development since the designation in 1964 of a large part of the area as a New Town, to accommodate people and industry from the West Midlands conurbation. An eventual population of 90,000 is planned.

Redditch is well situated between Birmingham and rural Hereford and Worcester and Warwickshire, within short distance of the M5, M42/M6 Motorways. Throughout the Town are large areas of open space, the most extensive of which are the 900 acres Arrow Valley Park and the Pitcheroak Wood. The River Arrow runs through the town from the Forge Mill Needle Museum in the north to the town boundary in the south-east.

Housing and industry in the new parts of the town are separately concentrated in individual estates in a largely rural setting.

The Town Centre has been extensively redeveloped. The first and second phases of a covered pedestrian shopping centre with car parks are now open and a third phase is being completed. The Green surrounding the Parish Church, in the old center of the Town, is being carefully preserved and pedestrianised.

Chairman's annual allowance: £800.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Surrey CC.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highway Maintenance—with the exception of those in Horley and Salfords and Sidlow and the trunk roads. Improvements up to £50,000 subject to approval of the Surrey C.C.; Sewerage.

DEFINITION OF AREA
The borough comprises the area of the former Reigate MB, and Banstead UD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974 and the new Parishes of Horley and Salfords and Sidlow, part of the former Dorking and Horley RDC.

The major part of the borough, which stretches from the North Downs to the Weald, lies in the Green Belt and is within easy reach of London and the South Coast. The borough contains extensive areas of open space and parkland and the major area lies within the Green Belt. The controlled open spaces include (within the Reigate locality) Colley Hill, Queens Park, Redhill and Reigate Commons, Reigate Park, Reigate Heath and the Castle Grounds; and (within the locality of Banstead) Banstead Downs, Park Downs, Banstead Heath, Burgh Heath, Nork Park and Banstead Wood.

Throughout the borough there are ample facilities for football, cricket, bowls, tennis, golf, riding and other recreational pursuits.

A Charter of Incorporation was granted to the former Reigate Council in 1863, and the Reigate and Banstead District Council petitioned successfully for a Grant of Incorporation under the provisions of the Local Government Act 1972.

The village communities of Banstead, Chipstead, Hooley, Kingswood, Tadworth, Walton-on-the-Hill, Woodmansterne and the Nork. Tattenhams and Preston areas provide good residential facilities in pleasant rural settings. The village of Merstham and the residential area surrounding it, the towns of Horley, Reigate and Redhill and the areas of Woodhatch and South Park, though predominantly of an urban residential nature, are well provided with delightful natural open spaces, and are situated at the foot of the North Downs.

Comprehensive re-development proposals are under discussion for the town centre of Redhill which will ultimately form a pedestrian precinct, while the council will continue to endeavour to preserve the special character of the ancient town of Reigate known in the Domesday Book as 'Cherchefelle'.

Mayoral annual allowance: £4,250.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 7 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

St. Austell-with-Fowey MB, Newquay UD, St. Austell RD.

Located in mid-Cornwall, the Borough extends from the Atlantic to the Channel coasts of the county, with two principal industries in tourism and china clay.

The main tourist industry is concentrated on the coastal regions. Newquay, on the north coast is one of the five most popular resorts in the British Isles, catering for some 1,000,000 visitors annually. Reputed to have the finest coastline and beaches in Europe, it is also one of Europe's leading surfing centres.

The south coast offers the attractive alternatives of the smaller and more intimate resorts of Fowey—renowned for its sailing activity—or Mevagissey, the old Cornish fishing village. Between these two popular resorts there are a number of beaches and coves clustered around the bay of St. Austell.

The administrative headquarters of the authority are based at the expanding town of St. Austell which is also the centre of the British china clay industry. The areas inland from the two coasts contain the bulk of the nation's china clay deposits, which are the subject of extensive mineral workings.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,750.

DEFINITION OF AREA

In the administrative county of Glamorgan, the borough of Rhondda.

Rhondda is composed of many townships situated in two valleys (Rhondda Fawr, $9\frac{1}{2}$ miles long, and Rhondda Fach, $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles long).

Two hundred acres are scheduled for industrial use and progress has been made on clearing and levellling large sites which have all services readily available. Rhondda has excellent communications with the Midlands and Southern Counties.

There are excellent educational facilities including a College for Further Education and a comprehensive libraries service.

There are ample leisure opportunities in Rhondda—mountaineering, fishing, golfing, swimming, scenic views, picnic areas in forestry reserves etc. There is quick and easy access to unspoilt countryside, and famous Welsh National Resorts. Greater use is to be made of the superb setting of the surrounding hills and a link provided to the Brecon Beacons National Park only eight miles away.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
In the administrative county of Clwyd:—
the urban districts of Prestatyn and Rhyl; the rural district of St. Asaph.

The Borough of Rhuddlan comprises the seaside resort towns of Prestatyn and Rhyl and the rural district of St. Asaph. The name Rhuddlan has great historical significance, and in the present village of that name are the remains of the Old Parliament House where King Edward I held his Parliament in 1283 A.D. in which was passed the Statute of Rhuddlan. Prestatyn and Rhyl are seaside holiday resorts and there are many and varied facilities for the holiday-makers, including beaches, promenades and gardens, an indoor heated swimming pool, theatres and, due to open in 1979, the Suncentre, a major new indoor entertainment and leisure complex containing many unique features, including pool with simulated waves and beach, surf-pool, model boat pool, monorail, restaurants and bars. The Royal Lido at Prestatyn has a large ballroom, a varied programme of summer entertainment, dining and licensed bar facilities (ideally suitable for conferences) and an open-air heated swimming pool. There are many excellent sporting facilities in the area of the Borough, including four golf courses and three modern indoor sports and recreation centres. The Borough is situated on the North Wales coast, at the mouth of the Vale of Clwyd and offers an ideal centre for permanent residents as well as its holiday attractions, possessing an excellent climate and easy accessibility to the beautiful scenery of the Vale of Clwyd and the Snowdonia National Park.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,000.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Certain highway functions, including street lighting and cleansing but excluding maintenance and improvement. Limited food and drugs and libraries functions. Sewerage functions.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 6 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The Rhymney Valley stretches some 24 miles between the edge of the Brecon Beacons National Park, in the north, to the outskirts of the city of Cardiff, in the south.

At the centre of the Valleys area of South Wales, the district is surprisingly diverse, with large areas of upland and rural countryside, contrasting with towns and villages, many of which owe their existence to the coal and iron industries of the industrial revolution.

Much of the land scarred by the industry of the past has been greatly improved by derelict land schemes and this, together with the availability of the sites for new, modern industry, makes the area an attractive one in which to live and work. Many light industrial companies are already established throughout the valley, producing products ranging from buttons to hydraulic excavators.

The valley is rich in historical interest. There is evidence of the presence of the Beaker Folk; the Romans left their mark, principally in the form of a major fort (which, it is hoped, can be re-excavated) at Gelligaer; and the Normans—who were long-term inhabitants of the area—left Caerphilly Castle, the second largest castle in the U.K. and the finest example of its kind in Europe.

Modern-day developments include three major recreation centres, together with a number of sports halls; community centres are located within most of the communities in the valley. A wide choice of private housing complements the steadily growing stock of council-owned dwellings.

Plans are in hand to develop further the leisure and recreational facilities of the valley for the benefit of both local people and of tourists who are actively encouraged to visit the area. A seasonal tourist information centre operates at Caerphilly and, during 1978, an experimental centre was located at Rhymney.

A two-week Arts Festival, organised by the Council is held annually in the autumn.

Chairman's personal annual allowance: £2,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Clitheroe MB, Longridge UD, Blackburn RD (part) Bowland RD, Burnley RD (parishes of Sabden and Read), Clitheroe RD, Preston RD (parishes of Dutton, Hothersall and Ribchester).

The borough is the largest in area for the new county of Lancashire, and at the same time the smallest in population. There are some 33 parish councils and 13 parish meetings. The Council operates a mobile office.

Some of the finest countryside in the north-west is to be found within its boundaries, and a large part of it is within the Bowland Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty.

It is an area of growing attraction to tourists and to residents of the industrial areas to the south seeking recreation in the countryside.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Bexhill MB, Rye MB, Battle RD.

Main towns: Bexhill-on-Sea, a pleasant resort where the Council owns parks, a heated open-air swimming bath, park pavilion and indoor bowls green. A long stretch of seashore fronting the Central, East and West Parades, together with the adjoining parade and roadway is council property and has been laid out as a promenade and marine drive with colonnade and ornamental gardens. Principal entertainment centre—De La Warr Pavilion—includes restaurant and cafe with car park adjoining.

Rye, one of the ancient towns of the Cinque Ports Confederation, is full of beautiful and interesting buildings and provides shopping, commercial and social activities for a wide area. It is within easy reach of the sea at Winchelsea Beach, where there are extensive facilities for holiday caravans on approved sites, and Camber with its fine sands and a Pontin's self-catering holiday village.

Battle, a shopping, historic and cultural centre with many ancient and attractive buildings, including the great Abbey founded by King William I to commemorate his victory in 1066.

The surrounding area is beautiful and varied countryside, abundantly wooded and dominated by the heights of Fairlight and Brightling. Many fine churches. Kipling's typical Sussex Home at Batemans in Burwash, Bodiam Castle and Great Dixter, Northiam, open to the public.

Conservation areas: Battle, Burwash, Rye and Winchelsea.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 4 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Rugby MB, Rugby RD.

The Borough of Rugby is situated on the east side of Warwickshire adjoining the Leicestershire and Northamptonshire boundaries and is in the centre of an extensive agricultural area. The Borough contains over 400 mixed and dairy farms.

The M1 passes very close to the eastern boundary of the Borough and the M6 and M45 motorways run through the Borough. The M69 (Coventry-Leicester) motorway touches the northern boundary of the borough. Rugby is also served by inter-city electric trains to London and the North.

Rugby has a long association with the engineering industry and factories in the town include GEC/AEI Limited and Smiths Industries Limited. Also within the Borough area are the car assembly plant of Chrysler (UK) Limited at Ryton-on-Dunsmore and the Marine & Industrial Gas Turbine Division of Rolls Royce Limited at Ansty.

A unique feature in the Borough is the radio station. Its 12 masts, each 820 feet high spread over 920 acres; there are also about 40 shorter masts and over 1,000 poles for short wave transmissions.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,620.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 12 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of Chertsey UD and Egham UD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The district of Runnymede is situated in the north west of Surrey and includes Addlestone, New Haw, Ottershaw, Lyne, Longcross, Englefield Green, Virginia Water, the village of Thorpe and the towns of Chertsey and Egham. The boundary tends to follow the line of the Thames and although situated close to London the district retains most of its rural character; on fine weekends the river and other public open spaces are popular attractions bringing many visitors to the area. The district is now quartered by the M3 and M25 motorways. There is also a large area of Windsor Great Park within the district and the meadows of Runnymede which are internationally famous because of their connection with Magna Carta. Three major memorials are adjacent to the Runnymede meadows, namely, the Magna Carta Memorial donated and maintained by the American Bar Association, the Kennedy Memorial erected by public subscription in memory of the late President of the United States of America on land donated by the Crown, and also the Royal Air Forces Memorial which was unveiled in 1953. In the village of Thorpe a private company has developed a Leisure Water Park utilising worked-out gravel pits which have been redeveloped and landscaped and will provide in addition to other features rowing and water skiing courses.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,000.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 11 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

West Bridgford UD, Basford RD (that part south of the River Trent), Bingham RD.

The Rushcliffe district includes almost all of the county of Nottinghamshire, south of the river Trent. Whilst it is a mainly agricultural part of the county, it can also take pride in a modern coal mine at Cotgrave and one of the country's largest power stations at Ratcliffe on Soar. The headquarters of the new district is at West Bridgford which contains some of the choicest housing to be found in the county.

The new district is particularly fortunate in its recreational facilities, which include not only the internationally famous Trent Bridge Cricket Ground, but also the Forest Football Ground, and the international Water Sports Centre at Holme Pierrepont. The district can also boast of the county's first Joint Sports Centre at Bingham, and in 1976 opened a superb new Joint Use Leisure Centre at the Rushcliffe comprehensive school at West Bridgford.

The Council pays particular attention to good relations with the public and an Information Centre has been provided at West Bridgford. The Council also works closely with its Parish Councils particularly on planning and recreational matters.

The new Authority has inherited an interesting area which is already accepted as one of the most desirable parts of the east Midlands. The Council is well equipped to develop its enormous potential to the full.

Mayoral personal annual allowance: £700.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 12 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA
Aldershot MB, Farnborough UD.

The district is pleasantly situated in north-east Hampshire, close to the borders of Surrey and Berkshire and conveniently served by road and rail to London and the South Coast.

Rushmoor is the new name for an area well known not only in Britain but internationally because it comprises Aldershot, with its military camp established in 1854, and Farnborough, long noted as the birthplace of aeronautical research and development. In recent years there has been rapid expansion in housing development, light industrial estates and town centre re-development schemes, the last named including new shopping centres, multi-storey car parks and office development. To achieve balance, civic buildings, sports and recreational complexes also form part of the expansion to the extent that the area, although urban in character, is well-served with recreation grounds, parks and open spaces which, added to its convenient location will ensure that Rushmoor remains an attractive residential area, with excellent communications both internally and with outlying areas.

Many visitors are attracted to the district each year for the Aldershot Horse Show and military pageants, and to the International Air Show at Farnborough. More locally, the area welcomes visitors from an area larger than its own to the recently completed Prince's Hall where a wide range of productions are staged, and to the new recreation centre. The Council's aim is to expand existing facilities of a recreational nature and in addition to the foregoing, a municipal executive-type golf course has recently been opened. Joint community schemes with military and education authorities and the development of open-air sports complexes are also among the projects now in hand.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,000.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 11 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Oakham UD, Ketton RD, Oakham RD, Uppingham RD.

The District of Rutland covers the whole of the area of the former Rutland County Council which was absorbed into Leicestershire upon re-organisation of local government in 1974. The area of some 125 square miles includes two market towns; the old county town of Oakham which has a Norman Castle Hall, Parish Church, and is the home of the famous Oakham School and the town of Uppingham, being the home of the equally famous Uppingham School and containing numerous attractive Ironstone buildings. There are, in addition, more than 50 villages within the District, most of which have an abundance of buildings constructed in the local Iron or limestone, roofed with thatch or Collyweston stone slate.

Rutland Water covers an area of more than 3,000 acres in the centre of the District and is a popular recreational centre with extensive sailing, fishing, nature study and picnic facilities.

Agriculture is the basic industry within the District; there are however a range of other industries including heavy and electrical engineering, cement making, plastics, clothing and hosiery.

Chairman's annual allowance: £150.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 1 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Malton UD, Norton UD, Pickering UD, Flaxton RD, Helmsley RD, Kirkbymoorside RD, Malton RD, Norton RD, Pickering RD.

The Ryedale District Council administers a predominantly rural area of some 600 square miles, within which are over 150 Parishes, the twin towns of Malton and Norton, where the administrative centre has been established, and the market towns of Helmsley, Kirkbymoorside, and Pickering. Geographically the largest District in North Yorkshire, Ryedale comprises the rich agricultural belt, boxed between Scarborough, York and Cleveland, and within its boundaries are a number of former hamlets close to the City of York, which have expanded in recent years to become virtually dormitories of that ancient city. The District does not include any coastline, but its eastern boundary is only 3 miles from Filey and 5 miles from Scarborough, whilst its western extremity skirts along the ridge of the Hambleton Hills above Sutton Bank.

In the North, the district comes to within 10 miles of Teesside, and includes about one-third of the North York Moors National Park, whilst in the South, the administrative area encompasses the line of charming villages dotted along the summit of the East-West Section of the Yorkshire Wolds.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Bury St. Edmunds MB, Haverhill UD, Clare RD, Thingoe RD.

The Borough is mainly rural in character with two major urban areas, namely the towns of Bury St. Edmunds and Haverhill, both of which are development areas in association with the G.L.C. Other than diverse industries, wide in their range of activities, agriculture remains a major factor in the new borough. A systematic economic growth is planned for the new borough in relation to East Anglia.

The town of Bury St. Edmunds, with its historic background, is an ideal centre for touring the area; geographically it is the hub of East Anglia. The markets of Bury St. Edmunds are fully employed and are the centre of marketing for the area.

Mayoral annual allowance: £650.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways (including Street Lighting in part), Road Safety and Sewerage.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 5) and Private Auditor (Armitage, Norton, Burne, Phillips).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county borough of St. Helens. In the administrative county of Lancaster:

- the urban districts of Haydock, Newton-le-Willows and Rainford;
- the urban district of Billinge-and-Winstanley except the areas in Greater Manchester;
- in the urban district of Ashton-in-Makerfield, the South ward;
- in the rural district of Whiston, the parishes of Eccleston, Rainhill and Windle, and the parish of Bold, except the area in Cheshire.

The borough is heavily industrialized, broken by green belt areas which surrounded the previously independent administrations. The main industry is glass, and within the bounds of the new area is Haydock Park Racecourse and Billinge Beacon. To the north are areas of good agricultural land of pleasing landscape value. There is easy access to the M6, and south of the borough is the M62 motorway.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,925.

The city comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
The county borough of Salford.
In the administrative county of Lancaster:
 the boroughs of Eccles and Swinton and Pendlebury;
 the urban districts of Irlam and Worsley.

Salford is situated in the south-west of the Metropolitan County of Greater Manchester. It plays many roles and may be said to be the epitome of Lancashire life. The scene shifts gradually from the pastoral beauty of Worsley to the busy, industrial complexes of the area around Manchester Docks. The area is rich in places of interest. The Peel Park Museum and Art Gallery houses the largest public collection of Lowry paintings and a street scene showing relics from the nineteenth century; Monks Hall Museum has examples of machine tools and a steam hammer from the Industrial Revolution made by James Nasmyth, the famous engineer; the banks of the Bridgewater Canal in Worsley are lined with beautiful timbered buildings of which the court house and Worsley Old Hall are notable, the latter containing a restaurant in which a Jacobean banquet can be enjoyed; the award-winning Queensmere reclamation scheme, in which five acres of near derelict land were transformed into a pleasant recreational area, can be seen in Swinton; in the heart of Salford can be found the recently renovated Ordsall Hall, a half-timbered fourteenth-century building which in the past was the home of one of Lancashire's oldest families, the Radcliffes; Eccles Parish Church dates from the thirteenth century and is said to be on a site consecrated by St. Patrick in early Christian times; the University of Salford is becoming established as one of the finest in the country.

DEFINITION OF AREA

New Sarum (Salisbury) MB, Wilton MB, Amesbury RD, Mere and Tisbury RD, Salisbury and Wilton RD.

Salisbury District Council now embraces the City of Salisbury, the old Wilton Borough, together with the Amesbury, Salisbury and Wilton, and Mere and Tisbury Rural Districts. The area covered by the new Council includes a number of the nation's important historical treasures and tourist attractions, such as Stonehenge, Salisbury Cathedral, Old Sarum, Wilton House, Stourhead House and Gardens and many neolithic burial grounds and iron-age forts.

The district is mainly rural in character, with the historic City of Salisbury at its centre providing many of the services for the surrounding area, such as the Cattle and Produce Markets, Theatre and Museum. The area also includes many service and Ministry of Defence establishments, including the HQ of United Kingdom Land Forces.

DEFINITION OF AREA
Scarborough MB, Filey UD, Scalby UD, Whitby UD, Bridlington RD (part), Scarborough RD, Whitby RD.

The Scarborough Borough is a popular part of North Yorkshire and includes several miles of magnificent cliffs and beaches together with approximately 200 square miles of National Park---The North York Moors.

At Scarborough town are the considerable remains of a twelfth-century castle and at Whitby, overlooking the North Sea, stands the famous abbey.

Within the borough hundreds of acres of land have been laid out as parks and public gardens. The Council owns considerable estates and provides numerous facilities for the entertainment of visitors to the borough, including four swimming pools, a miniature railway, tennis courts, boating lakes, bowling greens, putting greens and cliff lifts, which together with several cafés and shops all produce revenue towards the relief of rates.

The Harbour Undertakings at Scarborough and Whitby and Public Market Undertakings are under Council control.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 3 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of the Scunthorpe MB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974. Parts of the parishes of Appleby, Broughton and Holme were added as a result of the Glanford and Scunthorpe (Areas) Order 1976.

The principal industry is the manufacture of iron and steel, and although Scunthorpe owes its rapid growth to the development of that industry every encouragement is given for the establishment of lighter industries to provide employment for female labour.

Normanby Hall, built in 1825–29 by the famous architect, Sir Robert Smirke, stands two miles north of borough. The hall, together with 350 acres of parkland, is leased to the Council by the Sheffield family, owners of the estate since the time of Elizabeth I. The hall and park are open to the public for cultural and recreational purposes.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,300.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 7 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Bridgwater MB, Burnham-on-Sea UD, Axbridge RD (part), Bridgwater RD.

The District of Sedgemoor is situated in the north of the county of Somerset, with some twenty-five miles of its northern boundary comprising sea coast formed with the Bristol Channel and the western approaches of the Severn estuary. Motorway M5 traverses the district from the north-east, within 20 miles of Bristol and thence to the north or, by link with M4, to London, to its western boundary with access to the holiday areas of North Somerset, Devon, Dorset and Cornwall.

Sedgemoor is rich in tradition particularly—as its name recalls—with regard to the events leading to the suppression of the Monmouth rebellion in the 17th century when the ill-fated rebel forces were routed at the Battle of Sedgemoor, a short distance east of Bridgwater.

With the Quantock, Polden and Mendip Hills, including the famous Cheddar Gorge, Sedgemoor is well blessed with scenic amenities; in fact, the district as a whole presents a blend and range of all the features desirable in a balanced pattern of environment. Country pursuits and farming interests are catered for by two thriving weekly markets at Bridgwater and Highbridge with the added attraction of the famous annual Bridgwater Fair.

Burnham-on-Sea provides excellent seaside holiday resort amenities—particularly sailing.

Industry and commerce are strongly represented in Bridgwater where several nationally reputed companies are based, whilst Highbridge also has a thriving industrial area.

Two rivers pass through the district, the Parrett and the Brue, both of which reach the sea at Burnham-on-Sea.

The control of the navigation of the River Parrett from Bridgwater to the river mouth at Burnham-on-Sea, and of its eastern and western sea approaches, was originally vested in the Borough Council of Bridgwater and this function has passed to Sedgemoor District Council, who employ a full-time Harbourmaster to control the entry and passage of coastal and foreign vessels in the river.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Merseyside County Council.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county boroughs of Bootle and Southport.
In the administrative county of Lancaster:
- the borough of Crosby;
- the urban districts of Formby and Litherland;
- in the rural district of West Lancashire, the parishes of Aintree, Ince Blundell, Maghull, Melling, Netherton, Sefton and Thornton, so much of the parish of Altcar as lies west of the line for the time being of the centre of the Downholland Brook, and so much of the parish of Lydiate as lies south of the line for the time being of the centre of the Lydiate Brook, the north channel being taken where the Brook divides.

The Metropolitan Borough comprises an Irish Sea littoral extending from the River Mersey to the river Ribble. The southern portion is chiefly industrial and commercial in character, and includes the major docks of Merseyside (with the new Royal Seaforth Dock and Container Base), multi-storey office precincts (mainly occupied by government departments), National Giro headquarters and a modern 2-level shopping centre.

To the north lie the popular Merseyside dormitory areas, near to an easily accessible seashore, over 200 acres of which have recently been developed as a Marine Park with sailing facilities.

At its northerly extremity is the well known seaside resort of Southport, where the holiday facilities include 6 golf courses, open air baths, pleasure beach, theatres, cinemas and a modern holiday camp.

A few miles inland is a rich and extensive agricultural area in a pleasant rural atmosphere.

The area is well served by road and electric rail services which provide rapid access to central Liverpool.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,000.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 3 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Selby UD, Derwent RD, Hemsworth RD (part), Osgoldcross RD (part), Selby RD, Tadcaster RD (part).

The district is largely an agricultural area, containing many picturesque villages and some of the finest farm land in the country. Selby, which is the largest single township, is renowned for its splendid 900-year-old abbey. It is a busy port, where ships are built, and has a variety of industries. It is an important road and rail junction. Tadcaster is well known as a major centre of the brewing industry, and the palace of the Archbishop of York is at Bishopthorpe.

The University of York is located at Heslington, towards the eastern boundary of the district.

The area is traversed by three major rivers, the Ouse, Derwent and Wharfe, and is bounded by the Aire on the south.

The Secretary of State for the Environment has granted planning permission subject to stringent conditions, for the development of the new Selby coalfield, which will cover 100 square miles and will consist of five interconnected shaft mines and a drift mine, from which the coal produced at all the mines will be transported by rail to power stations in the locality. The coalfield, when fully developed towards 1980, is expected to make a major contribution to the national economy.

(Sevenoaks nucleus); Town Planning; Library; Sewerage.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Sevenoaks UD, Sevenoaks RD, Dartford RD (part).

The area of the District lies within easy travelling distance from London with an excellent train service offering the advantages of both city and country to its residents.

The terrain is undulating and frequently wooded, varying in height from approximately 100 feet above sea level to approximately 800 feet above sea level. Although the area is mainly rural, the three local centres of Swanley in the north, Edenbridge in the west and Sevenoaks in the south, provide all the amenities of local country towns.

The Pilgrims Way, in parts a highway and parts a footpath, crosses the area in the north. The area is rich in well-preserved evidence of historical associations. Hever Castle, Knole, Lullingstone, Penhurst Pl., Chartwell and Chiddingstone Castle are some of the best known.

Water supplies are good from the Rivers Darenth, Eden and Medway and from wells. The climate is dry and bracing.

Chairman's annual allowance: £2,500.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 4 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of Shrewsbury MB and Atcham RD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Shrewsbury is the County Town of Salop and has been specially favoured with many Charters, the earliest existing one being a Charter of Richard I dated 11th November 1189. The town has a wealth of timber framed and Georgian houses, steep narrow streets and little alleys gathered for protection within a great loop of the River Severn. The original castle (which doubtless replaced the Saxon fortress) was built by Roger de Montgomery under the order of William the Conqueror and was rebuilt and enlarged by Edward II. A large modern Cattle Market lies north of the town and is supported by a recently built abattoir, and in the town centre there is an up-to-date general market and shopping complex and modern swimming baths built to international standard. Constructed to service the town is a modern Crematorium, Sewage Works and a Works Depot and a link road at Telford way.

The rural area covers some 210 square miles and is typical English countryside at its best. The Stiperstones, the Long Mynd, Wenlock Edge and the Wrekin are ancient hills surrounding Shrewsbury. Buildwas Abbey and the ruins of Haughmond Abbey are of notable historic interest and there are many historic mansions in this countryside and pretty groups of cottages of mellowed brick or plaster with half timbering or built of local sandstone. Many of the parish churches show a growth of architecture from Norman days and contain much of interest. North of Shrewsbury lies the site of the Battle of Shrewsbury (1403) where Henry IV defeated the rebellious Barons of the Welsh marches and Hotspur was killed. Nearly 2,000 years ago, the Romans constructed a branch of their famous Watling Street (the A49 South now runs parallel).

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,585.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 12 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Slough MB, Eton RD (that part of the parish of Wexham in the new county of Berkshire; the Britwell ward of the parish of Burnham).

Slough is pleasantly and conveniently situated on the main London to Bath road, and on the main Western Region railway line, 20 miles west of London. There are over 31,000 dwellings in the town, which has grown enormously during the past 20 years. There are 137 miles of roads, including part of the M4, three main railway stations, and London Heathrow Airport is five miles distant. The town centre, which has been redeveloped, contains a large and comprehensive covered shopping precinct opened in 1976. An entertainments and conference centre, The Fulcrum, comprising a 420-seat theatre and two multi-purpose halls (seating 1,200 and 250) opened in November 1976. Among various large holdings, the council owns 33 recreation and sports grounds of an area of approximately 600 acres, the chief of which is Upton Court Park containing 180 acres. The Salt Hill Pleasure Ground of 33½ acres and the Lascelles Playing Fields of 31 acres have pavilions, cafés and up-to-date dressing accommodation. Bowling greens, cricket pitches, tennis courts (hard and grass), hockey, association and rugby football pitches, and play leadership activities are provided. The council's heated open-air swimming pool is in a garden setting of some 8 acres with extensive sunbathing lawns, children's splash pool, play area, etc. A comprehensive indoor Sports Centre, including heated pools has been completed and is managed jointly with two adjoining Districts.

The town's refuse is treated at a pulverizing plant and then disposed of by tipping. The council owns 10 sites of permanent allotments with a total area of 95·6 acres. A substantial programme of major works, including the provision of 100 dwellings per year, is proceeding. A Crematorium adjacent to the Cemetery serves the district. Within the town there lies the great manufacturing centre known as the Trading Estate, comprising an area of over 600 acres of level land and accommodating approximately 300 factories. The Trading Estate owes its phenomenal development to Slough's commanding and accessible location. As a trading estate it was the first of its kind to be established in the country, and has since been used as a model for others in this country and overseas.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,300.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county borough of Solihull.
In the administrative county of Warwickshire:
  in the rural district of Meriden, the parishes of Balsall, Barston, Berkswell, Bickenhill, Castle Bromwich, Chelmsley Wood, Fordbridge, Hampton in Arden, Kingshurst and Meriden; in the rural district of Stratford-on-Avon, the parish of Hockley Heath.

The Solihull Metropoplitan Borough is situated in very pleasant countryside to the south-east of Birmingham and within easy reach of Stratford-on-Avon and the Cotswolds.

Residential development is attractive and varied; industries generally are grouped in several centres and there is a considerable area of green belt.

Its central location at the hub of good road and rail communications makes the district an attractive one for prestige office development, and a number of large concerns are already established in the area. Solihull has also become well known as the home of the Rover Car Company.

Included in the area of the new district are Birmingham airport, the National Exhibition Centre, and the Birmingham housing development at Chelmsley Wood and Kingshurst.

Mayoral annual allowance: £4,000.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 12 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the areas of Southampton CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Southampton's natural advantages have attracted settlement from the earliest times. Roman and Saxon ports were succeeded by the mediaeval town from which has developed the present City. Its first charter was granted by Henry II and Southampton was created a County of itself in 1447. On 24th February 1964, Her Majesty the Queen raised the Town and County of the Town to the title and dignity of a City.

Southampton is now Britain's second largest port with a fast-growing container handling base and expanding passenger ferry traffic to France. The world's largest passenger vessels use Southampton as a cruise base and port of call. The local authority is very much alive to its responsibilities to the port and co-operates to the greatest possible degree with the port authority.

The city's geographical position, together with its historical interest and first-class shopping facilties, make it a natural regional centre and attraction to visitors. The Council pursues an active policy of developing leisure services and is making a conscious effort to attract more tourists to the city. The Art Gallery and the four museums are just a few of the attractions operated by the Leisure Services Department.

Southampton is noted for its attractive, well-planned streets, and clean appearance. The Avenue is considered among the most noble approaches to any city. Public open spaces total over 1,000 acres in extent, and comprise 9 per cent of the city's area. The Sports Centre has been described as the finest of its kind in the Commonwealth. 267 acres in extent, it includes 2 golf courses, 7 football pitches, 5 hockey pitches, 5 cricket pitches, 12 tennis courts, 2 bowling greens, and crazy golf, putting courses, 2 cycle tracks, an artificial ski slope, an all-weather running track, children's and canoeing lakes, play areas, etc., paddling pool and children's corner. Another valuable asset is The Common covering an area of 328 acres in the central district of the city, and comprising mostly natural parkland. There are several attractive parks and facilities for tennis, football, cricket, bowls, hockey, etc., in the many recreation grounds. Riverside Park has an eighteen-hole pitch and putt course, and nearby Mansbridge Reservoir is used by local anglers. The Weston Shore is also a popular amenity. The Council administers the allotments in the City, which comprise 175 acres.

The Council organises an annual show on the Common in July which includes horticultural displays, dairy festival, dog show, horse jumping and many other attractions catering for all the family. The show attracts considerable support from a wide area.

The Council manages the Central Swimming Baths which have a seating capacity for 902 spectators.

The Council operates a transport service, comprising 196 vehicles over a total route of 68 miles.

Present housing stock 24,158, whereof houses and flats built pre-1939—3,673; post-war—19,109 and acquired—1,376. Total sold properties to date—4,078.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,800.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974: Dunstable MB, Leighton-Linslade UD and Luton RD.

The district is the most southern part of Bedfordshire, bounded by Buckinghamshire to the west and Hertfordshire and Luton to the south and east. It comprises 80 square miles of mainly rural countryside, with the Chilterns escarpment rising sharply from a terrain which is predominantly gently rolling farmland.

On the western boundary of the district are Leighton Buzzard and Linslade, adjoining townships which existed independently in different counties until they amalgamated within Bedfordshire in 1965. Leighton Buzzard, with its 15th century pentagonal cross and street market, was mentioned as a market town in the Domesday Book. Mellowed 17th and 18th century houses are a feature of both towns and a new shopping development in Leighton Buzzard's town centre blends with the old. There are new residential developments in both towns and Leighton Buzzard also has flourishing light industries on its outskirts, where sand extraction has long been of importance.

Continuous human habitation reaching back 4,000 years can be traced at Dunstable, situated in the centre of the district where crossroads are formed by the ancient Icknield Way and Watling Street. The Priory Church of St. Peter is all that remains of the once-important Dunstable Priory, where the dissolution of Henry VIII's marriage to Catherine of Aragon was pronounced by Archbishop Cranmer. The town is now a thriving centre of the motor industry and lives up to its modern image with a fine pedestrian shopping precinct, a flourishing civic hall and one of the most up-to-date recreation centres in the country.

There are 19 rural parishes within the district, the largest village being Houghton Regis where 1,470 houses built by the Greater London Council in 1962 have now been taken into the district council's housing stock and a further GLC town development scheme of 2,500 houses is under construction.

Direct rail links, the M1 and A5 make the district easily accessible from London and Birmingham and there is plenty to attract visitors. Dunstable Downs provide the spectacle of gliding and hang gliding, as well as opportunities for walking and picnics. Whipsnade Zoo is also situated on the Downs and Luton Hoo stately home is in the south of the district. The canal at Linslade is popular with boaters and anglers and train rides on the old sand-carrying narrow gauge railway at Leighton Buzzard is a popular attraction.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 10 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the Chesterton RD and South Cambridgeshire RD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The district, which completely surrounds the City of Cambridge and covers the whole of the southern part of the new County, is predominantly agricultural in character, but light industries have been established in some villages including a large jam and preserving factory, tanneries, leather and glove factories, paper mills, lime and cement works and chemical fertilizer plant. Further light industrial development is proceeding.

Main drainage is in operation in the majority of the villages, and every parish has a piped water supply. Further main drainage schemes are in progress or planned so that virtually the whole of the rural district will be sewered where practicable.

A weekly collection of refuse from all parishes is undertaken by direct labour and a cesspool-emptying service on a rechargeable but partially subsidized basis is available to unsewered areas.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 11 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Swadlincote UD, Repton RD, SE Derbyshire RD (parishes of Aston upon Trent, Barrow upon Trent, Derby Hills, Elvaston, Melbourne, Shardlow and Great Wilne, Stanton by Bridge, Swarkestone, Weston upon Trent).

Principally agricultural, the area includes an industrial belt around Swadlincote where the main processes arise from the extraction of coal and clay. The Trent valley also provides sites for gravel extraction.

Whilst the main industrial activities cover the coal and clay industry, much diversification has taken place over the past few years in the Swadlincote and Melbourne localities.

These latter industries are in the fields of rubber, chemicals, medium and light engineering, slipper manufacture, lingerie and steel fabrication, but there are many smaller firms with wide ranges of trades.

One of the only two inland canal ports to survive is located at Shardlow in the north east extreme of the district where an active boat building yard exists. With the rapid increase in canal boating, Shardlow is becoming a popular centre for boating enthusiasts. Melbourne, a town of 3,500 inhabitants with a renown Hall and birthplace of Thomas Cook, founder of the world wide travel agency, is the second largest community in the district and is centred within a fertile market gardening area.

Centrally situated geographically stands Repton the former 7th century capital of Mercia with its notable medieval church and well-known public school.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 10 Audit District).

The Borough boundaries are the same as the former County Borough before reorganization.

The resident and visitor both benefit from the facilities offered by this thriving commercial, residential, shopping and holiday centre. Situated on the Essex bank of the Thames Estuary with a shore frontage of seven miles from Leigh in the west to Shoeburyness in the east, this modern town is served by two rail links from Liverpool Street and Fenchurch Street.

Flanked by a modern motel and an historic aircraft museum the Municipal Airport is one of the busiest in the country with full customs and servicing facilities and its own industrial complex. Scheduled daily passenger services to Rotterdam, Ostend, Le Touquet and the Channel Islands are operated, together with regular services to Basle.

The continuing process of rebuilding has provided the town with a modern multi-storey office centre, pedestrianized and car park linked shopping areas and improved cliffs, esplanades roads, etc., and over 10,000 council-maintained parking spaces.

From obtaining the Borough Charter in 1892, Southend-on-Sea achieved its present size in 1933. County Borough status was enjoyed from 1914 to 1974.

A Civic Precinct has been created, incorporating Council Offices, Civic Suite, Courts, College of Technology, a modern Central Library and Police Headquarters.

Eight local Yacht Clubs demonstrate that excellent water-borne facilities exist for the keen amateur sailor in the sheltered estuary. Other sports well catered for in the Council-owned 1,200 acres of parks and open spaces are football, cricket, rugby and hockey, tennis, and bowls. A public 18-hole golf course at Belfairs is complemented by the private course at Thorpe Bay. The town has three public swimming pools.

The Council's Cliff's Pavilion sees the full range of entertainment from opera to wrestling, from variety to dancing, plus exhibitions and conferences, together with excellent catering facilities.

The Council also owns and manages the foreshore, buses, and has its own catering and entertainment facilities.

Council developed industrial estates have been created at Eastwood, Southend and Shoeburyness.

The Council has a fund for the provision of hospitality to delegates to conferences held in Southend-on-Sea.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,350.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 11 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974: Spalding UD, East Elloe RD, Spalding RD.

Spalding, once an inland port on the banks of the River Welland, is a typical country market town; and it may still be said that "Spalding is an handsome town", as James Camden, the historian described it in the 16th century.

Modern Spalding is skilfully blended with the ancient town; the old houses, some of them Georgian, exist alongside the modern shops and houses. In recent years there has been much planned development in Spalding; the expansion continues.

The surrounding tulip fields which have made the town world famous are the shop windows of a thriving bulb and horticultural industry.

No less important is Spalding's place in agriculture. It is the centre of some of the most fertile land in the country.

It is also the focal point of one of the most important land drainage systems in the country, with a network of waterways, controlled by skilled engineers, which plays a vital part in keeping the district immune from flooding by the water which rushes down to the sea from inland hills.

The two-mile Coronation Channel, a by-pass of the river, with its modern electrically-operated sluices, is a masterpiece of engineering, and is an integral part of the Welland Major improvement scheme which is taking place from the Wash at Fosdyke to Stamford, a distance of 30 miles.

The former Rural District of Spalding comprises 10 civil parishes and extends to 87,758 acres around the market town of Spalding.

This is a countryside of flat, low-lying fens, intersected by slow-flowing rivers and dykes, and possessing a distinctive charm and fascination. As in Holland scientific methods of drainage have provided a vast acreage of alluvial soil which is justly claimed as the richest in England.

These fenlands are noted for their magnificent old churches. At Crowland are the remains of its famous abbey and the fourteenth century triangular bridge, the only one of its kind in England.

The former Rural District of East Elloe covers an area of 84,595 acres and comprises 12 parishes.

The main centres of population are situated along the road between King's Lynn and Spalding. North of this are the marshes and southwards lie the fens. The former name of the administrative county, Parts of Holland, indicates the similarity between this scenery and that of the Netherlands. Once a vast tract of fever-infested swamps, this area has been systematically drained so that it now provides some of the richest agricultural land in all England.

The open countryside, with its bracing air, its bulbfields in spring and its thriving farms and fine old churches, has a characteristic charm and offers much of interest to those who visit it.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,650.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Diss UD, Wymondham UD, Depwade RD, Forehoe and Henstead RD, Loddon RD.

The district is largely agricultural with small pockets of industry at Diss, Harleston, Loddon and Wymondham. Bordered on the south by the River Waveney, which attracts a considerable number of anglers, the district has some attractive landscape, including a portion of the well-known Norfolk Broads area.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 8 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Brackley MB, Brackley RD, Northampton RD (part), Towcester RD.

The district is principally agricultural, although various forms of light industry have been introduced in fairly recent years. Towcester, a small but expanding town on the junction of A5 (Watling Street) with the Oxford to Northampton road, and close to the M1, is the administrative centre for the district. Towcester racecourse is situated on the outskirts of the town. A number of very beautiful churches and old houses are to be found throughout the district, and it is an interesting area historically. The district includes the small town of Brackley, with an attractive, wide main street, and excellent educational facilities. Silverstone, the motor racing centre, is an internationally known sports place in the area.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 8 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA
The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Henley on Thames MB, Wallingford MB, Thame UD, Bullingdon RD, Henley RD (except for a built up area near Reading which became part of Reading Borough on 1 April 1977), Wallingford RD.

The district is predominantly rural, agricultural and residential with some industrial development. It borders with Oxford in the north and Reading in the south. There are 86 rural parishes and 4 towns, viz. the ancient market town of Wallingford near the centre; Henley-on-Thames, famous for its Royal Regatta, on the southern boundary; the market town of Thame on the northern boundary and Didcot on the western boundary. The Chiltern Hills, with their extensive beechwoods, stretch across the southern half of the district and a large part of this has been designated an area of outstanding natural beauty. Much of the River Thames from Oxford, through the Goring gap, to Henley is within the district. The M40 motorway crosses the northern part of the district and access to the M4 is only a few minutes from the southern boundary. There are main line railway stations (Western Region) at Goring, Cholsey and Didcot and a branch line serves Henley.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,000.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 2 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Leyland UD, Walton-le-Dale UD, Preston RD (parishes of Cuerdale, Farington, Hutton, Little Hoole, Longton, Much Hoole, Penwortham and Samlesbury).

The South Ribble Borough is situated within central Lancashire and is the geographical centre of the Central Lancashire New Town. Road and rail communications are excellent; both the main north-south motorway (the M6) and rail routes pass through the area as does the M61 giving access to Manchester and Yorkshire.

The majority of the early development being carried out by the Central Lancashire Development Corporation is within South Ribble's area. The Walton Summit Industrial Estate at Bamber Bridge contains over 100 hectares and is at present being developed by the construction of advance factory units, three major housing developments are currently under way and land has been set aside at Moss Side, Leyland for the Moss Side Industrial estate. Associated with the industrial and housing development communication is vitally important and the provision of major roads has been afforded high priority in relation to the improvement of the existing transportation network. The total population of the Borough is expected to rise from 90,000 to somewhere in the region of 120,000 by the end of the century.

The Council is involved in the redevelopment of Leyland Town Centre and work commenced in June, 1978 on the first phase of development providing a store of 49,000 sq. ft., mall and ancillary shop units. Opportunities will also exist for varying scales at retail development in later phases. The Town Centre will also be the focal point for public buildings, several of which are already in existence, and sites will be available for the provision of commercial office accommodation.

Agricultural land in the rural part of the district is extremely fertile and there are many market gardens and nurseries engaged in intensive horticulture.

The Council owns a modern public swimming pool, several recreation grounds, three large areas of parkland at Leyland, Penwortham and Withy Grove, Bamber Bridge and a joint use Leisure Centre at Penwortham.

The Civic Centre houses all the departments of the Council and contains a unique Council Suite designed not only to provide a Council Chamber and meeting rooms, but to fulfil a dual role by providing meeting rooms and banqueting facilities for private hire to the public.

The headquarters of the Lancashire branch of the Council for the Protection of Rural England is situated in part of Samlesbury Hall, a well-preserved sixteenth century manor house, now used mainly as a cultural and leisure centre.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Salop CC.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 4 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Clun and Bishop's Castle RD, Ludlow RD.

The District is situated in the south-western part of the county of Salop. It is bordered by the Welsh county of Powys in the west and the county of Hereford and Worcester in the south. The area of the district represents 30— of the area of the county but has only 10— of the population of the county.

This area of gently contoured hills and fertile valley is recognised as one of the loveliest parts of the country and contains much of the Shropshire Hills Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty. The main industry is agriculture—animal husbandry, dairy, grain—with associated industries, but a variety of trades and light industries have been established.

There is a wealth of buildings of architectural and historic interest, manor houses, castles and attractive villages. Ludlow, the largest of the towns, with its castle, exceptionally fine parish church, black and white buildings and Georgian streets has been described as the most beautiful and distinguished country town in England and was at one time the seat of government for the Welsh Marches. The small towns of Bishop's Castle, Church Stretton, Cleobury Mortimer and Clun are all well worth a visit.

The district is attractive to the tourist and holiday maker not only because of its scenic and historic interest but also for racing at Ludlow, gliding on the Long Mynd, fishing, boating and other sports.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 4 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA
The district comprises the areas of the Cannock RD and Seisdon RD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The district, which stretches from the boundary with Stafford in the north and from Stourbridge in the south, is situated on the northern and western side of the West Midlands conurbation and contains within its boundaries a large part of the West Midlands Green Belt. Much of the district comprises good agricultural land but there is extensive residential development at Codsall, Great Wyrley, Penkridge and Wombourne where overspill families from Wolverhampton have been accommodated. Heavy industry is located at Four Ashes and there are existing light industrial estates at Cheslyn Hay, Great Wyrley, Penkridge and Wombourne. The district is well known for its beautiful countryside and contains such well-known open spaces as Kinver Edge and Highgate, Penn and Shoal Hill Commons. Part of the Cannock Chase is within the district. These areas are extensively used for recreation purposes by the people living in the nearby conurbation. Four dual-use sports centres are in operation at Kinver, Codsall, Wombourne, and Cheslyn Hay. The district is an important source of sand and gravel for the industrial Midlands.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The county borough of South Shields.
In the administrative county of Durham:
  the borough of Jarrow;
  the urban districts of Boldon and Hebburn.

The borough of South Tyneside is situated, as its name implies, on the south bank of the River Tyne at its mouth. It is an important seaport, occupying a prominent place in the industrial life not only of Tyneside but of the North East.

The principal industries of the district are shipbuilding and repair, engineering and coal-mining and these have been supplemented in recent years by the establishment of many new light industries on the Bede and the Simonside Industrial Estates and elsewhere.

Formed by the amalgamation of South Shields, Jarrow, Hebburn and Boldon, the Borough has inherited a history dating back to the second century, when there existed at the mouth of the River Tyne a Roman Fort, the remains of which can still be seen today. Further up river, at Jarrow, can be found the Church of St. Paul which is on the site of a monastery in which the Venerable Bede lived and worked during the late seventh and early eighth centuries, spreading his knowledge to students from all over Europe.

South Shields was the home of the inventor of the lifeboat, William Wouldhave, who designed it, following a number of shipwrecks on the Herd Sands, in 1789 and saw it launched in 1790.

Although principally an industrial area, the Borough is also a holiday resort with some fine stretches of beach and coastline. In particular, the 'Leas', a coastal grassland area of some 200 acres, is regarded by many as one of the finest stretches of coastal open space in the country. The district is also well served with some excellent parks and has three public swimming baths.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,500.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Hertfordshire CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974: Stevenage UD, Hertford RD (part) (New Town Area).

The Borough coincides approximately with the designated area of the New Town, but the question of further expansion to meet local needs through the local government machinery is now under exploration following the refusal of the Secretary of State to make a Designation Order for expansion under the New Towns procedure. The Council is currently liaising with the Stevenage Development Corporation in the updating of the 1966 Stevenage Master Plan. Stevenage was the first of the new towns and is now a thriving industrial town, with renowned industry and a fine regional shopping centre. It has abundant amenity and recreational facilities and is surrounded by a number of picturesque hamlets and villages. Under the New Towns (Amendment) Act 1976, the housing and related assets of the Development Corporation were transferred to the Council on 1 April, 1978.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,000.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the city council on an agency basis: Highways, Refuse Disposal (under Civic Amenities Act only), Maintenance of premises and grounds, Central purchasing, Construction and maintenance of sewerage systems under Section 15 of Water Act, 1973.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 5 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the areas of the Stoke-on-Trent CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Stoke-on-Trent (Staffordshire), familiarly known as The Potteries, stands on the River Trent, 157 miles north of London. The present municipal area is 22,916 acres (36 square miles), with a population (estimated, 1977) of 255,700. The City is the main centre of employment for the half million population of North Staffordshire. It is the largest clayware producer in the world (chinaware, earthenware, sanitary goods, refractories, bricks and tiles), and has a large coal mining output drawn from one of the richest coalfields in Western Europe, with proved reserves exceeding one thousand million tons. The City has ironworks, steelworks, foundries, chemical works, engineering plants, rubber works, paper mills and a very wide range of manufactures including textiles, furniture, electrical goods, vehicle components, toys, machinery, plastic materials, metal stampings, glass and glazes.

Extensive reconstruction has been carried on since 1930. A unique feature of the City is that it has six 'centres' and more shops and public halls than other areas of comparable size. The City was formed by the federation in 1910 of the separate municipal authorities of Tunstall, Burslem, Hanley, Stoke-upon-Trent, Fenton and Longton, all of which are now combined in the present City of Stoke-on-Trent. Each of the six areas still has its own public buildings and amenities, but all civic administration is controlled by the City Council.

In recent years, a massive programme of environmental improvements has been undertaken in Stoke-on-Trent which is transforming the appearance of the City. The most notable project is the Land Reclamation programme which has brought hundreds of acres of derelict land back into use for public open space, industry and housing. Central Forest Park, a gently rolling expanse of grass, young trees and wildflowers, was constructed on the site of a defunct colliery—an area previously dominated by huge black pit mounds and whose only uniformity was its utter dereliction. It is a scheme which has deservedly brought national and international acclaim to the City. Similarly, the Westport Lake Park scheme with its artificial beach, visited by thousands on sunny days, has won national awards and commendations. Boating, canoeing and fishing are catered for here and the nature study area is proving very popular with local schools.

To complement the reclamation schemes, the grime of decades has been removed from dozens of the fine buildings in the city, revealing their original beautiful colours and high-lighting their architectural features.

The reclamation programme, together with the Smoke Control Programme, has made the City a pleasant place to live in. New roads, main drainage schemes, new schools and improved street lighting all feature in programmes for improving the City's facilities. They will enable the City to realize to the full its potential as a major centre for commerce and industry.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,300.

Agency. The following regional water authority function is carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Sewerage.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 4 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Nailsworth UD, Stroud UD, Dursley RD, Gloucester RD (part), Sodbury RD (part), Stroud RD, Thornbury RD (part).

Situated on the edge of the southern Cotswolds the western half of the district comprises part of the Severn Vale with the River Severn forming the western boundary, and the eastern part consists of the Cotswold escarpment offering some of the loveliest scenery in the county. The main towns of Stroud, Dursley and Nailsworth offer good facilities for shopping and entertainment and other residential centres and villages such as Stonehouse, Painswick, Wotton-under-Edge, Minchinhampton, Berkeley, Chalford and Bisley add to the charm of the area. Extensive commons and National Trust open spaces give considerable scope for the tourist, and rambler in particular, with attractive views from the hills and beacons.

Whilst the area has long been noted for cloth making the industrial aspect is diverse including light engineering, plastics, electronics, food products, pianos, fibre board, furniture, printing and a variety of crafts.

Good recreational facilities are available throughout the area and at Stroud there is an indoor recreation centre and pool in a 48-acre park. Joint sports centres exist at Dursley and Wotton-under-Edge. Four golf courses, two gliding clubs, riding schools, fishing and other facilities exist.

The M5 motorway bisects the district and the M4 and Severn Bridge are close at hand. Stroud has a station on the main Western Region line from Paddington to Gloucester. Sharpness Docks are the nearest to the Midlands with a canal to Gloucester.

Chairman's annual allowance: £800.

Agencies. The following regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Sewerage schemes.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Aldeburgh MB, Felixstowe UD, Leiston-cum-Sizewell UD, Saxmundham UD, Woodbridge UD, Blyth RD, Deben RD.

The northern part of the district is mainly agricultural in nature while the southern half is largely tourist country of old world atmosphere with renowned specimens of ecclesiastical architecture and others of historical interest of Roman and Saxon origin. Large tracts of forests add to the attractiveness of the district, which has a coastline from Walberswick in the north to Felixstowe in the south, including a bird sanctuary at Minsmere. The district contains several towns.

Aldeburgh, whose first charter is dated 1529, is an attractive holiday resort, famous for historical buildings and its annual Festival.

Felixstowe is a holiday and residential seaside town and although on the east coast, enjoys a southern aspect. There is a modern theatre (seating 977) in which summer shows are presented and, in the out-of-season months, drama festivals, amateur musical shows, pantomimes, etc. There is also a modern pavilion and ballroom providing dances, musical entertainment and other attractions, including wrestling and boxing. Good facilities exist for conferences. There are 4 miles of beach and foreshore, with public gardens, beach chalets, beach sites and a variety of sea front amenities. Extensive expansion is taking place at the privately owned docks, and trade with the Continent and other countries, including America, is steadily increasing. Light industry is established and more is being encouraged.

Leiston, an expanding town notable for the nuclear power station at Sizewell, has 2 miles of undeveloped coast open to the public. There is a Sports Centre in the town with facilities for most indoor sports and recreational activities, including a bar.

Woodbridge, on the River Deben, is an attractive country town with many buildings of special architectural and historic interest. Recreational facilities are catered for by a swimming pool, Elmhurst Park, several large playing fields and the river wall, along which there are seats, shelters, and children's play areas.

Saxmundham is a small attractive country town on the trunk road A12 which runs on a north–south axis through the district.

Other sport and recreation is catered for in the district by several golf courses and by sailing and boating clubs on the Rivers Alde/Ore, Deben and Orwell.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,000.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Frimley and Camberley UD, Bagshot RD.

As its name suggests, the borough comprises an attractive heathland area of north-west Surrey, which has for over a hundred years had strong military associations. The borough, which is served by the M3 motorway, is to a large extent of a rural character, although Frimley and Camberley have expanded rapidly in recent years as a result of residential and light industrial development and the redevelopment of the central area of Camberley, providing a spacious modern shopping centre, is now complete. At Camberley there is a museum and also a modern Civic Hall which provides facilities for public entertainments and social functions.

The four parishes of Bisley, Chobham, West End and Windlesham make up the eastern portion of the district. Both Chobham and Windlesham contain several village communities, the latter including Bagshot.

The council owns a number of recreation grounds and open spaces, including a country park of 120 acres at Lightwater.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 6 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises the areas of Swansea, Mumbles and Gower.

Swansea was established by the Normans shortly after AD 1100 as the fortress and administrative centre of their new Lordship of Gower. It continued as the market town for the area, until industrial development in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries greatly increased its size and importance. The heavy industries of the last century have now been replaced by trading estates providing sites for modern light industry, major industries having been established around the boundaries of the district. The extensive docks at Swansea provide excellent facilities for the area and the airport is located within six miles of the commercial centre.

The commercial centre at Swansea has been completely rebuilt following severe war damage and now serves a large area of South Wales. Further major developments are under construction which will extend the shopping area on the most modern lines. Re-development has provided modern office accommodation, and a vast Leisure Centre is now open in the City Centre on the sea front. The extensive campus of the University College is beautifully situated between the seashore and Singleton Park.

To complement the industrial and commercial activities, the Swansea district possesses considerable natural amenities. The wide curve of Swansea Bay provides a fine setting for the principal built-up areas and to the west of these lies the delightful peninsula of Gower. The varied cliff scenery and sandy beaches of its south coast are backed by an undulating landscape of fields and open commons, features which have led to the peninsula being declared the first Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty. The peninsula is rich in prehistoric remains, castles and churches and these, added to the natural amenities, encourage a busy holiday trade. The good soils, mild climate and convenient markets support a successful mixed farming economy.

Mayoral annual allowance: £4,540.

Agencies. The following county council functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis:
Maintenance of all district and county highways and district and road improvements up to £250,000.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 4 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of Tamworth MB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Tamworth has been a borough from Saxon times. Queen Elizabeth I granted a Charter of incorporation in 1560, reciting that Tamworth was an ancient market town which had been held of the Kings of England by the inhabitants from time immemorial. A further charter of incorporation was granted by Charles II in 1663. The corporation owns an ancient castle and grounds with extensive pleasure grounds adjoining, which provide ample facilities for sport and recreation.

The council is heavily committed to a town development scheme geared to the reception of overspill families from Birmingham and provision of industrial development to support employment in a population planned to increase to 74,000 by 1981 and under the County Structure Plan at present with the Department of the Environment to 81,000 by 1991. The council's commitment is part of a £100,000,000 capital works programme which is being undertaken jointly with the Staffordshire County Council to provide houses, industrial sites, schools, highways, welfare and recreational facilities for the increased community.

To date some 9,238 dwellings have been provided under the town expansion scheme (4,003 local authority and 5,235 private).

The council's new indoor swimming pool was opened in October 1971 and a new central library was completed during 1973. A municipal golf course has been constructed at Amington and this was opened for play in 1975.

A major redevelopment of the town centre is now under way.

Several industrial estates are being developed, including two (at Amington and Lichfield Road, Tamworth) by the Council.

A comprehensive programme costing some £18 million for the provision of a major road network in the town has been approved by the Staffordshire County Council and will be implemented as an essential part of the town development scheme.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,610.

Agencies. The following regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Sewerage, Drainage.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the former Caterham & Warlingham UD and Godstone RD and extends from the Greater London boundary in the north to Kent in the east and Sussex in the south.

The character of the northern part of the district has been largely determined by the growth of London. However, the impact has been contained by the natural barrier of the North Downs which has confined development either to the narrow valleys or to the expansion of long-standing upland settlements. Numerous areas of open country still remain in the form of tree-covered valley slopes and arable farmlands which in places extend to the Greater London boundary. The ruggedness of the terrain, the profusion of trees and the pastoral nature of much of the uplands have combined to strike a balance between the material needs of development and the preservation of a natural environment. The main residential areas are at Caterham Valley, Caterham-on-the-Hill, Warlingham and Whyteleafe.

Below the North Downs, the district stretches southwards to the Weald and Sussex, at the same time joining with Kent to the east. Rich and varied, the entire tract of country is still representative of the best of the English landscape. Its natural features blend so well with man-made pastures, woodlands and settlements that even the advent of the M23 and M25 motorways has in many instances created new aspects and vistas which add to rather than detract from the particular enchantment of this beautiful countryside.

Throughout there are delightful villages and hamlets, which retain many buildings of historic interest, including churches, manor houses, timbered cottages and inns too numerous to list. Other objects of interest include a windmill at Outwood (built 1666) which is one of the oldest working examples in the country and a yew tree in Crowhurst churchyard with a girth of 32 ft. Lingfield Racecourse is nationally known and Redhill Aerodrome at Nutfield, extensively used by Fighter Command during the last war, now accommodates the headquarters of the largest private helicopter operator in the world.

The new Tandridge District bears a name a thousand years old. Though ancient, its roots are strong and secure; its heritage recognized and respected. The present reflects the careful husbandry of the past and the future is assured by the policy of co-operation between county and district in preserving the outstanding natural amenities of the area.

Certain Highway functions; Sewerage; Refuse Disposal; Development Control.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 7 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1 April 1974:
Taunton MB, Wellington UD, Taunton RD, Wellington RD.

The borough is situated in the fertile Vale of Taunton Deane, in an area of exceptional natural beauty, and has many historical associations.

Its location at the focal point of entry to the south-west has made it a centre for rail and road traffic. Main-line rail and express coach services serve Taunton, and the M5 Motorway passes just to the south of Taunton and Wellington.

The prosperity of the district depends chiefly on agriculture, marketing and trading facilities, government and local government administrative services, tourism, and light industry.

It is an ideal touring centre for coastal resorts of north Somerset, south Devon and Dorset, the Quantock Hills, Exmoor National Park, and the Mendip Hills.

There are four public schools in the district, and excellent recreational facilities, including a new sports centre at Wellington.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the Durham CC.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 1 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974: Barnard Castle UD, Barnard Castle RD, Startforth RD.

Teesdale district is the largest in Durham County but is sparsely populated. Agriculture is the prime industry, centred on the market town of Barnard Castle. The town is designated as a Conservation Area, being one of the finest market towns in the north, and everything is being done to preserve its charm and character.

The town is the recognized starting point for excursions into beautiful Teesdale. For its size it has more than its share of literary and historical associations. The castle built in the 12th century by Bernard Baliol is now a ruin in the care of the Ministry of Works. The town has Dickensian associations, the author being inspired to write "Nicholas Nickleby" and "Master Humphrey's Clock" in this locality. Unique is the Bowes Museum of French Renaissance design built in mid 19th century by John Bowes and his wife. Nearby is Greta Bridge and Rokeby, a stately home immortalized by Sir Walter Scott in his epic poem of that name.

Nearby villages are of interest. Staindrop with its notable church also has 14th century Raby Castle, a well-preserved medieval fortress. Egglestone Abbey, founded 1195 is one mile from Barnard Castle.

Upper Teesdale, that stretch of the valley from the river's source to Middleton-in-Teesdale, contains plants that have survived the last ice age and the area contains two great waterfalls, High Force and Cauldron Snout.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 7 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Ashburton UD, Buckfastleigh UD, Dawlish UD, Newton Abbot UD, Teignmouth UD, Newton Abbot RD, St. Thomas RD (part).

Teignbridge is the historical name for the area of South Devon which is the hinterland of Torquay, lying between the River Exe and the River Dart, and intersected by the River Teign with its estuary at Teignmouth. The eastern part of the Dartmoor National Park within the district includes many of the Devon villages well known to holiday makers. The district includes also the coastal resorts of Dawlish and Teignmouth.

The administrative centre of Teignbridge is Newton Abbot which is well known for its National Hunt racecourse, and as a centre of communications by rail. There is a motor-rail terminus at Newton Abbot serving all parts of the country.

Superannuation Scheme administered by the Essex CC.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Harwich MB, Brightlingsea UD, Clacton UD, Frinton and Walton UD, Tendring RD.

The district of Tendring comprises the north-eastern part of the county of Essex. The major part of the perimeter has a water frontage extending from just above Manningtree on the south bank of the River Stour to Wivenhoe on the east bank of the River Colne, a distance of some 38 miles.

In character, the district is partly urban and partly rural and by reason of the fast and frequent rail service from the coastal towns is much favoured for residential purposes by those whose place of business or work is in London, Chelmsford or Colchester.

The ancient borough of Harwich, incorporating Harwich and Dovercourt Bay, was incorporated under a charter of James I. Harwich is a port of some importance and provides fast passenger and freight services to and from the various ports in Holland, Belgium, Germany, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Finland. The harbour is under the control of the Conservancy Board. Brightlingsea at the mouth of the River Colne is another sea-faring town and is the home of the Colchester native oyster.

The hinterland is mainly agricultural and consists of some of the best farmland in the country. Light industrial development is encouraged and a number of sizeable companies have transferred their manufacturing activities from the Metropolis to factories on sites provided by the local authority.

The area is probably best known for its attractions to holidaymakers. Dovercourt Bay, Frinton-on-Sea, Walton-on-the-Naze, Clacton-on-Sea, Holland-on-Sea, Jaywick, St. Osyth Beach, Point Clear and Brightlingsea are all popular resorts providing as they do for all types of holidaymakers. As could be expected, with its rivers, creeks, and coastline, the district is very well provided with facilities for water recreation, especially sailing, power boating and fishing.

Because of the quality and cleanliness of the beaches and the prevailing climatic conditions—plenty of sun and rainfall well below the national average—the coastal towns have always attracted those who are interested in family holidays. The piers at Clacton-on-Sea and Walton-on-the-Naze, now operated by separate private companies, offer a variety of entertainment seldom found elsewhere.

The district generally is well provided with recreational facilities of most kinds including three golf courses, indoor and outdoor bowling rinks and extensive recreation grounds with tennis courts and pitches for team games of practically every variety. A heated indoor swimming pool in Clacton was completed and opened in the autumn of 1974.

Those who prefer rural attractions to those of the seaside have the benefit of being in close proximity to the delightful Constable country around Dedham and East and West Bergholt, the backwaters of the Rivers Stour and Colne, and the saltings and creeks behind Walton.

Chairman's annual allowance: £2,200.

Agencies. The following county council functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highway Maintenance and Construction; Traffic Management; Road Safety; Refuse Disposal; Libraries.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 7 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the Swindon BC and Highworth RDC which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

On Thamesdown's northern boundary are the picturesque upper reaches of the River Thames and in the south are the rolling North Wiltshire Downs. In between there are villages of great charm and historic connection.

At the centre is Swindon, which has achieved outstanding success as an expanding town under the 1952 Town Development Act. Nearly 300 companies have established manufacturing, office and distribution centres there. The estimated population of the Borough is expected to grow through further planned expansion to a figure of 165,000 by 1986.

There has been a massive housing and school building programme to cater for the needs of incoming population and Swindon's central shopping area has been redeveloped. A 13-acre traffic free shopping centre has been built by the local authority and the most imposing feature of this development is a 22-storey tower block of offices and flats. The amenities provided by the Borough Council include a 600 seat theatre, a leisure centre which caters for the whole family and a golf course.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 10 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of Thurrock Urban District Council (part) which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The Borough of Thurrock covers an area of 45,551 acres, or more than 67 square miles. It is situated in Essex on the north side of the River Thames with a river frontage of 18 miles between the London Borough of Havering in the west and Canvey Island in the east.

Within the boundaries of the district are the large residential areas of Aveley, Chadwell St. Mary, Corringham, Grays, Little Thurrock, South Ockendon (including the large GLC Estate at Belhus), Stanford-le-Hope, Tilbury, West Thurrock, and the villages of Bulphan, Fobbing, Horndon-on-the-Hill, Linford, Mucking, North Stifford, Orsett, East Tilbury and West Tilbury.

The riverside area of Thurrock is highly industrialized and incorporates the large modern container port of Tilbury; extensive oil refineries at Coryton and Shell Haven and bulk storage installations at Purfleet, West Thurrock and South Stifford; plus many industrial organizations of both national and international repute. Due to the geological structure of the district the extraction of chalk, gravel and other materials from the ground forms another major industry and throughout the area there are many quarries.

But Thurrock is not wholly residential or industrial. The hinterland of the district contains some extremely attractive countryside and charming villages and there are many thriving agricultural communities. There are a number of fine old churches, some of exceptional historic interest.

There are approximately 44,319 domestic properties in the Borough, of which 14,948 are Council-owned.

Grays is the commercial centre of the Borough. A large new town shopping centre has been constructed adjoining the present Grays High Street. There are modern shopping centres at Corringham Town Centre; Derwent Parade, South Ockendon; Defoe Parade, Chadwell St. Mary; King Street, Stanford-le-Hope; Broadway, Tilbury; and Crammavill Street, Stifford Clays.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,925.

Highways; Sewerage and Pumping Stations; Street Lighting; Food and Drugs.

DEFINITION OF AREA

In the administrative county of Monmouthshire:
  the urban districts of Blaenavon, Cwmbran and Pontypool;
  in the rural district of Magor and St. Mellons, the parish of Henllys; in the rural district of Pontypool, the parish of Llanfrechfa Lower.

The borough of Torfaen consists of an amalgamation of Blaenavon UDC, Cwmbran UDC, Pontypool UDC and part of Pontypool RDC i.e. the district of Croesyceiliog and Llanfrechfa Lower together with a small part of Magor and St. Mellon's RDC, consisting of the parish of Henllys (approximately 250 persons). Thus the Eastern Valley of Gwent becomes one district and its very name, Torfaen, is the old name of the river (now called the Afon Lwyd) which flows from top to bottom of the valley and joins the Usk near Newport.

Pontypool itself is the home of the Welsh iron industry, forges being established in the 15th century. In the 18th century, iron works and coal mines were developed in Pontypool and Blaenavon and the area became famous for its iron, particularly for the development of Japan ware.

Cwmbran to the south was, before the war, a small industrial town which, because of the creation of the Cwmbran New Town, all of which lies within the Torfaen area, has become a modern residential area with an ultimate population of 55,000. It incorporates a fine shopping centre with covered walkways and excellent car parking facilities.

The old iron and coal industries have virtually ceased in the area and in their place there are ICI Fibres, Parke-Davis (Pharmaceutical Manufacturers), Girling, British Steel Corporation, Fibreglass Ltd., Saunders Valves Ltd., Alfa Laval Ltd., and many other smaller industrial units.

Torfaen is excellently placed to attract industrial development. It is within easy reach of the Newport docks and in close proximity to the M4 to London and the south and the M5 to Birmingham and the north together with the Heads of the Valley road from Swansea and the valleys of Glamorgan.

Despite the industrial progress, Torfaen is an area of great natural beauty ranging from the mountains in the north and west to the wooded and arable land to the south and east. The river Usk and its tributaries are well stocked with salmon and trout and the Brecon Beacons National Park extends into the area.

Land reclamation schemes and forestry are playing their part in restoring the area to its original beauty.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 7 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Bideford MB, Great Torrington MB, Northam UD, Bideford RD, Holsworthy RD, Torrington RD, Lundy Island.

The entire district is situated in the South West Development Area and the past ten years has seen a considerable growth of new light industry, particularly in the Bideford, Holsworthy, and Torrington centres. Extensive dairy farming is carried on throughout the area and there are important markets at Holsworthy and Bideford. There is also a thriving shipbuilding industry at Appledore and Bideford. The area is also one of considerable natural beauty with a wide variety of coastal and inland scenery. Torridge is, therefore, a popular holiday area and the ever-growing tourist industry plays an important role in the district's economy. Westward Ho!, with its safe beaches, is popular with many thousands of holidaymakers every year.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The Metropolitan Borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

In the administrative county of Chester:
  the boroughs of Altrincham and Sale;
  the urban districts of Bowdon and Hale;
In the rural district of Bucklow, the parishes of Carrington, Dunnan Massey, Partington and Warburton.
In the administrative county of Lancaster:
  the borough of Stretford;
  the urban district of Urmston.

Situated in the south-west of the Greater Manchester conurbation, Trafford contains an interesting range of differing urban and rural environments. Ease of communication is one of its principal assets. Manchester International Airport, via the M63 and M56 Motorways is within a very short distance, whilst Liverpool (Speke) Airport can be reached quite easily by the M63 and M62 Motorways. The M63 motorway running through the borough gives immediate access to the national network, and the Manchester Ship Canal forms the western boundary of the Borough. The Port of Manchester is adjacent to the Borough with the port of Liverpool and the Port of Preston within sixty minutes' driving time. Major sources of employment exist in the industrial complexes of Trafford Park, Carrington and Broadheath (Altrincham). Four main and numerous subsidiary centres provide a wide variety of shopping facilities, together with many new office developments. Pleasant residential areas in all parts of the borough are linked to the city centre by good roads and fast and frequent train services. Old Trafford contains the grounds of the Lancashire County Cricket Club and Manchester United Football Club; Dunham Park (seat of the late Earl of Stamford) with its fallow deer and 16th century deer barn, the Bollin and Mersey Valleys and the Bridgewater Canal all offer many opportunities for recreation.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,750.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Saffron Walden MB, Dunmow RD, Saffron Walden RD.

The district contains 57 civil parishes and covers the largest acreage of any district in the county. It is situated in the north-west of the county, being bounded by Cambridgeshire to the north and Hertfordshire to the west. The main centres of population are Saffron Walden, Great Dunmow and Stansted Mountfitchet. The countryside is widely considered the most attractive to be found in the county, and indeed large areas of the district have been classed as areas of great landscape value while part of it lies within the recently extended Metropolitan Green Belt. The district is well watered, principally by the Cam, the Chelmer, the Roding and the Stort and by numerous tributaries of these rivers.

The towns and villages contain many buildings of great architectural and/or historic interest in a wide variety of styles. Some of the better known of these buildings are Thaxted Guildhall, Audley End Mansion near Saffron Walden and Horham Hall near Thaxted. In addition, Saffron Walden and Thaxted boast two of the finest and most celebrated churches in the county.

The district is very largely agricultural in character but a number of light industries have become established and the council has set up a six-acre industrial estate in Great Dunmow. The leisure demands of modern society have been recognized by the establishment of a joint use sports complex in Great Dunmow which has recently been opened, and the needs of the Saffron Walden area are currently being carefully examined.

Chairman's annual allowances: £1,500.

Health Authority: South Glamorgan.

Petty Sessional Division: 1.

Superannuation Scheme administered by South Glamorgan CC.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 6 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

In the administrative county of Glamorgan:
- the boroughs of Barry and Cowbridge;
- the urban district of Penarth;
- parts of the rural districts of Cardiff and Cowbridge.

The borough includes the length of South Wales coastline between Penarth Head and Nash Point.

Barry has large docks with a deep-water entrance which is accessible on all tides. The second highest tide in the world (53·6) was recorded there in 1928. New trade has been developed which includes a weekly service (Geest Line) to the West Indies. The Research Vessel base of the Natural Environment Research Council is at Barry. There are three industrial estates in Barry and the principal industries of the town and port include flour milling, plastics, silicones and oil storage.

Barry has four beaches and Porthkerry Park was recognized by the Countryside Commission as the first Country Park in Wales in September 1971. Barry Sports Centre offers facilities for a variety of sporting activities, indoor and outdoor, and the Knap Swimming Pool is the largest open-air pool in Wales.

Penarth is a growing residential town with a number of public parks, a covered swimming pool and a pier.

A weekly market is held at Cowbridge.

Cardiff (Wales) Airport and one of the largest Royal Air Force stations in the United Kingdom (St. Athan) are both situated within the borough.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,500.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 8 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA
Abingdon MB, Wantage UD, Abingdon RD, Faringdon RD, Wantage RD (part).

The district takes its name from the famous monument carved on the crest of Uffington Hill, the oldest of all the White Horses in England, and the Vale is drained by the little River Ock, which empties into the Thames at Abingdon.

The district is mainly rural in character, with areas of great natural beauty along the escarpment of the Berkshire Downs and the sylvan reaches of the Upper Thames, to which river it has the longest frontage of any district. At the same time, it is also the home of modern industries, such as the manufacture of motor cars and surgical instruments, and the major research establishments of the Atomic Energy Authority, the Esso Research Centre and the Agricultural Research Council.

The administrative headquarters of the council is at Abingdon, which possesses a fine civic centre incorporating buildings of every period from the 15th to the 20th centuries. Abingdon is one of the fifty towns listed by the Department of the Environment as worthy of special conservation for its architectural merit and historic associations. Also of interest are the market towns of Wantage, the birthplace in 849 of Alfred the Great, and Faringdon, where King Edward the Elder died in 925. The council maintains area offices in both these towns.

The council owns parks and gardens at Abingdon and Wantage, and public halls in both these towns and at North Hinksey, near Oxford. In 1975, the council commissioned the Old Gaol Recreation Centre in Abingdon, formed by the conversion of the original gaol building (1811) and a new civic hall in Wantage, where another centre for sports and recreation was opened in 1976. The Charter Centre in Abingdon, which accommodates a new library, medical centre, old people's day centre, citizens' advice bureau, restaurant, offices and a multi-storey car park for 500 cars, was opened in 1977.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 5 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Northwich UD, Winsford UD, Northwich RD, Runcorn RD (part).

The district is situated in Central Cheshire and is centred on the Cheshire Salt Field. Most of the district consists of attractive and high quality farming land; it includes part of the Flat Cheshire Plain, Central Cheshire Hills and Delamere Forest.

The district has two main towns, Northwich and Winsford, several smaller towns, Frodsham, Helsby and Tarporley and numerous small villages situated in rural surroundings. The main towns were founded on salt production. Northwich, where ICI Ltd. is based, is an important centre for the chemical industry, and Winsford is famous for its rock salt mines. There are many sand quarries in the area and most of Cheshire's sand is obtained from these workings.

The chemical industry provides most of the jobs in the district, but in recent years there has been an increase in the number of jobs available in the manufacturing and service industries. There are also more opportunities for professional people. This trend is expected to continue and land has been allocated to accommodate new industry in the area.

The district has good access to the M6 and M56 motorways.

The district has good connections with other parts of the country. Winsford is on the electrified London to Carlisle railway line. Northwich has rail links to Manchester and Chester and also Carlisle and London. There are two major airports within twenty miles at Speke and Manchester.

The district possesses a number of outdoor recreation facilities which attract a lot of visitors; the main one is Delamere Forest and surrounding Forestry Commission holdings. The numerous flashes and meres are used for angling, and the larger ones for sailing. The Weaver Navigation, the Trent and Mersey Canal, and Shropshire Union Canal are used increasingly for inland waterways cuising. Helsby and Frodsham hills are attractive walking and rock climbing spots. There are also golf courses, and the Oulton Park motor racing circuit. Whitegate Way footpath and bridleway makes use of a disused railway line. There are plans to develop two major recreation areas, Marbury Park and Weaver Parkway, both of which involve the reclamation of large areas of derelict land. There is scope to intensify the use of some resources and to provide other facilities. Sports centres are at Frodsham, Hartford, Northwich and Winsford.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

The county borough of Walsall. In the administrative county of Staffordshire, the urban district of Aldridge-Brownhills.

The Metropolitan Borough of Walsall shares in the economic prosperity of the West Midlands, a prosperity based mainly on a highly complex manufacturing industry. As a producer of finished and semi-finished goods, Walsall makes a significant contribution to the national economy Its industrial connections are world-wide and firms enjoy a vigorous export trade.

Economically and socially Walsall benefits from its central position. It is located at the crossing point of two growth corridors—London–Birmingham–Merseyside and Bristol–Humberside. The advantages of this position are increased by motorway M6 which passes through the metropolitan borough to connect with the trunk road A5 at Gailey nearby to the north. Now that the motorway link to the north of Birmingham is completed, Walsall is the focal point of the motorway system, with road connections with the major ports and the economic growth areas of Britain. There is, in addition, an electrified railway link to Birmingham, thus giving access to the main national railway network. London, Manchester and Birmingham are accessible for business, shopping and entertainment trips of a single day's duration; the recreational areas of North Wales, the Cotswolds and the Lake District are within convenient travelling distance, and the facilities of Birmingham Airport are available for foreign holiday and business travel.

At a regional scale, Walsall must be considered in its context as an integral part of the West Midlands Conurbation. Nevertheless the major district centres have their natural hinterland substantially within the metropolitan borough. Walsall Town Centre, with its well established shopping and administrative functions, exerts its influence over a considerable area of Staffordshire to the east and north-east.

The metropolitan borough is an important source of employment for persons living in the surrounding area.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,427.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis; Highways; Maintenance and Street Lighting; Refuse Disposal; Sewerage.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 1 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Ashington UD, Bedlingtonshire UD, Newbiggin-by-the-Sea UD.

Wansbeck, has a well balanced environment fusing coast countryside and industry in an area with space to cater for further multi-purpose development. At Newbiggin, it has its own bay and sands which are part of Northumberland's heritage. There is a deep rooted history in the area which has 11th and 13th century church buildings and a 14th century castle at Bothal.

The basic industry of coal mining which fostered the early growth continues and caters for the needs of England's first aluminium smelter. An electrical generating station at Bedlington also adds power to the industrial strength of the area. A continuing growth of new light industries, on sites with ample room for expansion, is becoming established in pleasantly developed modern industrial estates and provides the necessary diversification of industry in the 20th century. Agriculture continues to thrive in the area and gives a quality of open space.

There is a complete educational system which includes several newly constructed schools and embraces the County Technical College centred at Ashington.

Leisure and recreation is well provided for within multi-purpose sports centres and developed natural resources in the rural, riverside and coastal areas of the district. The development on the River Wansbeck, including a Marina, has attracted support from the English Tourist Board, and is particularly pleasant. Facilities are well provided for all "outdoor" activities and the arts are particularly well catered for in the widest possible range and excellently serviced by the well-established Mid Northumberland Arts Group.

The development of the area, which includes a new 300-bed hospital, has not outgrown the shopping facilities and growth in this direction goes side by side with the other projects in the Wansbeck district which still retains a healthy community spirit in changing times.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,900.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The district comprises the areas of the following authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974: Keynsham UD, Norton Radstock UD, Bathavon RD, Clutton RD (part).

Wansdyke can be divided roughly into seven distinct areas. First, the Mendip Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty covers the south-western part of the District. Most of the villages nestle in the northern foothills of the Mendips and the Chew Valley and Blagdon lakes, vast artificial reservoirs, form a prominent part of the landscape.

Further north is the Chew Valley, an area of utter tranquillity only a few miles from Bristol. It is particularly famous for its fine Churches and those at Chew Magna and Publow are especially interesting. Also in this area are the ancient Stone Circles at Stanton Drew.

In the south of the District are the twin townships of Midsomer Norton and Radstock. These towns formed the centre of the former Somerset Coalfield, which extended over much of the southern part of Wansdyke. The towns and some of the surrounding villages are now undergoing a transition to accommodate modern industry and this is the part of the District where most of its growth in population over the next 20 years is expected to take place.

Further east lies the famous Limpley Stoke Valley, which Wansdyke shares with West Wiltshire. The villages nearly all display the traditional Bath Stone, and Freshford, Claverton and Monkton Combe are especially worth a visit. At Claverton is the well-known American Museum, while nearby, the well-preserved Dundas Aqueduct can be seen from the main Bath–Warminster Road.

The Cotswolds extend into the far north-east of the District. At this, their southern tip, the Cotswolds lose the plateau-like aspect further north and break into a series of deep valleys. Perhaps the most famous is the beautiful and secluded valley through which the St.. Catherine's brook runs past the Elizabethan St. Catherine's Court. Further west is Lansdown with its well-known racecourse, golf club and Civil War battlefield.

The main road and rail routes between Bath and Bristol pass through the Avon Valley, but the river itself is a haven of peace. There are plans for developing its potential for recreation, but only to an extent that will not detract from the tranquillity of the scenery. At the western end of the Valley, at the confluence of the Avon and the Chew, lies Keynsham, the largest settlement in the District, a town that has managed to preserve its identity despite its proximity to Bristol and Bath.

Finally, in the heart of the District is the northern Mendip outcrop. There are deep wooded valleys and several populous villages. Through some of this area runs the Wansdyke itself, an ancient fortification built by the Britons in the fifth century between Marlborough and Portishead to keep out the Saxon invaders from the north.

Agencies. The following county council function is carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Warrington is situated on the northern border of the new county of Cheshire midway between Liverpool and Manchester astride the River Mersey and the Manchester Ship Canal. The original settlement was founded long before the Romans established themselves in Britain. Today Warrington is a progressive industrial town with pleasant dormitory areas.

Following the reorganization of the local government system the new borough of Warrington was formed and consists of the former local government areas, namely the whole of the areas of the county borough of Warrington, the rural district of Warrington, the urban district of Lymm, and parts of Runcorn rural district and Golborne urban district. Runcorn rural district and Lymm urban district have always been within the county of Cheshire whereas the other three areas were formerly in the county of Lancashire. The new Warrington area is now wholly within the new county of Cheshire and many inhabitants who thought of themselves as true members of "red rose" county now find themselves as new and vigorous members of the new county of Cheshire, but of course, still "Warringtonians". Warrington Borough Council is from a rateable value and population point of view the largest district in Cheshire.

The new borough of Warrington will, above all else, be a district looking to the future and this it may do with well-founded confidence not only because it has the added advantage of being developed as a new town with financial assistance from the government being channelled through the Warrington New Town Development Corporation but also because the borough council has large comprehensive proposals for the redevelopment of the town centre of Warrington into modern shopping precincts and a comprehensive urban renewal programme. Furthermore, the variety of its manufacturers ensures continued prosperity and employment.

In addition to being situated on one of the main crossing points of the River Mersey and Manchester Ship Canal the new Warrington Borough is well served by both road and rail. The M6 and M62 motorways conjoin in the Warrington area and the direct access to these motorways gives very easy access to and from all parts of the country. In the southern extremities of the area is the North Cheshire Motorway, M56. Warrington Bridge is one of the few main road bridges across the River Mersey between Liverpool and Manchester and is the hub of traffic routes in all directions. A network of railway lines links the town with the rest of Britain.

The area combines the best of progressive industrial activity, pleasant dormitory housing developments, open spaces, parks and recreation grounds as well as countryside walks. It is the policy of the borough council to ensure that all possible facilities exist for the ratepayers as well as for the many visitors to the area. To enable the people of Warrington to make the most of its leisure time, be it sporting, cultural or other activities, there are various Leisure, Recreation and Community Centres, and appropriate accommodation to meet all requirements.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 4 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA
Royal Leamington Spa MB, Warwick MB, Kenilworth UD, Warwick RD.

Royal Leamington Spa is a pleasant inland watering place situated in the centre of England. Date of Charter 1875. The town is well planned, being laid out on the grid system. It has spacious avenues and streets and first-class shopping and hotel facilities. The Royal Pump Room establishment, the property of the Council, plays a valuable part under the National Health Service Scheme in the treatment of rheumatism and kindred diseases.

There are ninety-four acres of public gardens, parks and ornamental grounds, including the celebrated Jephson Gardens, and excellent facilities for bowls, tennis and boating. The 309-acre Newbold Comyn Park caters for a variety of recreational activities, including an 18-hole Municipal Golf Course. The newly built Royal Spa Centre provides entertainments and conference facilities.

Warwick traces its municipal history back to the days of Edward the Confessor, the first Charter having been granted by Henry VIII, 15th May 1545. The Council maintains three pleasure grounds and St. Nicholas Park, a large public park and recreation ground on the banks of the River Avon, with river walk and promenade, adjacent to historic Warwick Castle. Other buildings of historic interest are—St. Mary's Church with Beauchamp Chapel, the latter containing the Vaults of the Earls of Warwick; Oken's House (now used as a doll museum); the Lord Leycester Hospital; and the East and West Gates. The town is famous for its architectural beauty and there are many fine examples dating back to the 16th century. Kenilworth is famous for its 12th-century Castle, visited by Queen Elizabeth I in 1575. Adjacent to the Castle are the Abbey Fields comprising 66 acres of parkland and recreational facilities open to the public.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of the Watford MB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Watford received its original Charter of Incorporation in 1922. The Corporation maintains 26 parks, playing fields and recreation grounds, and two commons totalling 883 acres; included in this area is the West Herts Golf Course which covers 262 acres. The Corporation also owns 90 acres of land let for allotment purposes.

The Corporation has made loans for house purchase amounting to more than £12,000,000 and more than 6,330 persons have been assisted in buying their own houses since 1924. The Town Hall was completed in 1939 and provides accommodation for most departments, committee rooms, council chamber, mayoral suite and assembly halls.

The Council set up the Watford Civic Theatre Trust in 1965, to manage the Palace Theatre, Watford. The theatre receives an Arts Council grant and a subsidy from the Council. The Borough Council made an allowance to the Mayor of £3,650 per annum for 1978/79.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 12 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Godalming MB, Farnham UD, Haslemere UD, Hambledon RD.

The Council takes its name from an eleventh-century Cistercian Abbey on the borders of Tilford and Farnham, whose lands once stretched over a large part of the new district. The Abbey ruins are not open to the public at present, but are protected by the Department of the Environment.

The Waverley district includes four historic towns—Godalming, Farnham, Haslemere and the smaller town of Cranleigh—and many charming villages situated in some of the loveliest scenery in England.

A large part of the district is designated as Green Belt or Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty, and contains the most extensive group of commons in Surrey, including Frensham Country Park. In the Haslemere area (500 feet above sea level, rising to over 800 feet at Hindhead) the National Trust owns over 500 acres and there are 195 acres of public open space. There are 45 commons in the Hambledon area, and at Farnham Park, a public open space of 200 acres, there is a public nine-hole par 3 golf course.

A main attraction of the Haslemere district is its strong cultural tradition. It is the home of the Dolmetsch family who are famous for the revival of early music and musical instruments. The town also has an excellent educational museum which attracts visitors from all parts of the South East.

Godalming dates from Saxon times, and received its first Charter of Incorporation in 1575. Already known for its leather tanning industry, it also prospered considerably as an important centre of the Surrey cloth trade. The town lies across the River Wey, and Charterhouse School, which moved from London in 1872, stands on a commanding site overlooking the town.

Farnham is an area of ancient settlement and the town grew up in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries with the building of the Castle by Henry, Bishop of Winchester. It is the only town in Surrey included in the 1965 report of the Council of British Archaeology as having special historic quality, and the designated Conservation Area contains many buildings listed as being of architectural or historic interest.

The town has a lively repertory company which occupied the old Castle Theatre for many years, but has now been rehoused in the Redgrave Theatre which opened in June 1974.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,570.

Electricity Board: North Eastern.

Gas Region: Northern.

Regional Water Authority: Northumbria.

Area Health Authority: Durham.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Durham CC.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 1 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Bishop Auckland UD, Crook and Willington UD, Tow Law UD, Weardale RD.

The new boundaries extend from Bishop Auckland in the south to Edmundbyers in the north, west towards Nenthead and the border with Cumbria and east towards Spennymoor and Durham City. The area has easy access to travel arteries having a direct rail link from Bishop Auckland to Darlington where connections can be made to the London/Newcastle/Edinburgh Inter-City line and the area is also within easy reach of the A1(M) motorway.

Most of the towns and villages date from the 19th century with the opening up of many coal mines in the area. Since the cessation of coal mining and coke working the industrial dereliction left by the coal mining industry has been removed, the district has been transformed and its amenities greatly enhanced.

Wear Valley District, and particularly that part of the rural and industrial area of County Durham administered by the authority, belongs to all that is closely associated with England from the very earliest ages. The district has an ancient name which it derives from the River Wear. The Wear has for some time been generally recognised as the county's chief river, it has its source in the area and it runs roughly west to east for 27 miles or so and then continues for another 30 miles to reach the North Sea at Sunderland. It is a well known trout river and many pleasurable hours are spent by residents and visitors alike fishing in sometimes quiet, sometimes turbulent waters.

Situated in the south-west of the County of Durham, the Wear Valley District Council's administrative area covers 124,798 acres, much of which is rural in character and contains many places of exceptional scenic beauty. The industrial base of the whole district is divided between manufacturing and service industries in the Bishop Auckland, Crook and Willington areas in the east and mining, quarrying and agricultural in Weardale in the west. Much of the eastern part of the district was until quite recent times engaged in coal mining. Today, however, the mining industry has moved towards and along the coast; the industrial dereliction left by coal mining has been removed and other industries have established themselves and prospered.

Whilst the emphasis at this time is on new industrial development and expansion, it must not be forgotten that within the district there are three excellent trading estates owned and operated by the English Industrial Estates Corporation. These are situated at St. Helen Auckland, established in 1935, Greenfields founded in 1969 and New Road, Crook, founded in 1945 with 4 acres, extended by 8 acres in 1948 and 37 acres added in 1969. Much of the modern industry is concentrated on these industrial estates.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,000.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Local Licensing; Highways; Sewerage (except Trunk Sewers); Sections 1, 32, 33, 35–38, 43–45 of the Food and Drugs Act 1955.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 8 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Welwyn Garden City UD, Hatfield RD, Welwyn RD.

The new district is unique in Britain in that it includes two designated new towns: Welwyn Garden City and Hatfield, in addition to large rural areas.

The southern part of the area lies within the metropolitan green belt, there are excellent road and rail communications, the trunk road A1(M) and the main London–Edinburgh railway line running through the district.

The council has had considerable agency functions delegated to it by the Hertfordshire County Council and services large areas of playing-fields and open spaces. Leisure facilities are numerous; amenities include a 120-acre park incorporating sailing and boating lakes and a heated open air swimming pool, a major entertainments centre "Campus West", with a discotheque, theatre, dance/multi-purpose main suite, restaurant, bars and exhibition hall. The theatre is designated a regional film theatre. There is a country park of some 400 acres, a large indoor swimming pool, a heated outdoor pool, sports hall and an 18-hole municipal golf course, together with The Forum, a theatre complex at Hatfield.

Apart from considerable development by the former Development Corporation and the Commission for the New Towns, including factories, offices, shops and housing the council owns over 17,500 houses together with a municipal caravan park. Development in both the private and public sector of housing is continuing.

The council aims at a progressive form of local government in order to serve well a community whose influence is felt in the fields of aviation, technology and pharmaceutical products.

Chairman's annual allowance: £4,000.

Agencies. The following regional water authority function is carried out by the district council on an agency basis: Sewerage.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Okehampton MB, Okehampton RD, Tavistock RD.

The district, geographically, is the largest in the county of Devon and one of the largest in the country. It is bounded on the west by the River Tamar which divides the counties of Devon and Cornwall. The district stretches from the outskirts of the city of Plymouth in the south for over 30 miles and the coastline and beaches of Devon and Cornwall both in the north and south are easily accessible.

The district is mainly agricultural (and predominantly pastoral) and includes many noted beauty spots. Probably nowhere else in the county can be seen such grandeur as is afforded by the lovely tors and ravines of the Dartmoor National Park, the major part of which is within the district, with picturesque valleys and hamlets in the richly wooded countryside.

The towns of Tavistock and Okehampton are the main residential areas, lying to the south and the north of the district respectively. Both provide perfect centres for visiting the many places of charm not only within the area of the district but also for the whole of the West Country.

Chairman's annual allowance: £750.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 7 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Bridport B, Dorchester B, Lyme Regis B, Sherborne U, Beaminster R, Bridport R, Dorchester R, Sherborne R.

The district covers 417 square miles bounded in the west, north and south by Devon, Somerset and the English Channel, which incorporates the Chesil Beach. Mainly rural in nature, the area includes five towns with many Neolithic, Stone Age, Iron Age and Roman settlements of which the gigantic prehistoric hill fortress of Maiden Castle is the finest example of its kind in Great Britain. An Iron Age settlement surmounts Pilsdon Pen (909 feet)—the highest point in Dorset—whilst Golden Cap (610 feet) is the highest cliff on the south coast.

Beaminster—even though the town suffered many disastrous fires in 1644, 1684 and 1781 there are many Georgian and older houses in existence.

Bridport—famous for its rope and net making; had its own mint from 978–1087. The town's first Charter was granted by Henry III in 1253 and Bridport elected two members of Parliament until 1868.

Dorchester—stands on the site of the Roman Durnovaria (AD 70); at Colliton Park are the foundations of a large Roman town house which was excavated in 1937–38. The Bloody Assize of 1685 was held here when the infamous Judge Jefferies was sent to the town to punish the Monmouth Rebels after the Battle of Sedgemoor. The six Tolpuddle Martyrs were sentenced to seven years transportation for the "crime" of forming in their village the "Friendly Society of Agricultural Labourers", forerunner of the Trade Union Movement, at the Old Crown Court, now part of the Council's offices.

Lyme Regis—was for many centuries one of the most important ports of England, and its first Charter was granted by Edward I in 1284. In 1644 the town was besieged by the King's forces under Prince Maurice, and in June 1685 the Duke of Monmouth landed near the Cobb. The famous ichthysaurus fossil was discovered in the cliffs near the town by Mary Anning.

Sherborne—In AD 705 the Kingdom of Wessex was divided into two Dioceses and St. Aldhelm chose Sherborne as the site for his Cathedral. For nearly 400 years Saxon Bishops ruled from here, and Sherborne is dominated by the Abbey Church on the site of the Saxon Cathedral. Sherborne has two Castles, the first, of which the gatehouse, curtain walls, chapel, keep and domestic buildings remain, was built by Henry I's Chancellor, Bishop Roger (1107–1139); the present castle being built by Sir Walter Raleigh in 1594.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,000.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 11 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

Gainsborough UD, Market Rasen UD, Caistor RD, Gainsborough RD, Welton RD.

The River Trent forms the western boundary of the district and separates the district from the adjoining county of Nottinghamshire. The district is predominantly rural in character, with the emphasis on agriculture, and incorporates the existing towns of Gainsborough and Market Rasen which are both ancient market towns. Gainsborough is an expanding town under the provisions of the Town Development Act, 1952 for the transfer from London to Gainsborough of population and industry and the town now has a wide diversification of industry ranging from heavy engineering to clothing manufacturers. The council's administration is conducted from The Guildhall, Gainsborough, which is a large modern building containing offices, council chamber and committee room, constructed in 1966.

The district incorporates part of the Lincolnshire Wolds which is an area of outstanding natural beauty.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Chipping Norton MB, Woodstock MB, Witney UD, Chipping Norton RD, Witney RD.

West Oxfordshire consists of a low clay vale, bordering the Thames in the south-east and the Cotswold Hills dominating the north-west part. The district is well served by the small limestone market towns and villages of Witney, Chipping Norton, Woodstock, Charlbury and Burford. In addition there is an RAF station at Brize Norton with housing at Carterton.

It is a very attractive area which is increasingly being visited by tourists. The population is growing extremely fast with some employment being provided in the city of Oxford, but most employment being provided within the district in agriculture, precision industry, furniture manufacture, and, in Witney, the manufacture of blankets.

Chairman's annual allowance: £500.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Weymouth and Melcombe Regis MB, Portland UD.

The borough comprises the popular holiday resort of Weymouth, being noted for its safe bathing and excellent facilities for yachting, swimming and angling, and the Isle of Portland, well known for its harbour and rugged coastal scenery, joined to the mainland by the famous Chesil beach.

The borough is situated in the 'Hardy country' and within easy reach of many of the places referred to in the works of Thomas Hardy, OM, the famous Dorset novelist.

Entertainment is provided throughout the year in the Weymouth Pavilion Theatre and Ballroom which is well equipped with all modern amenities and is ideal for conferences. There are museums maintained by the borough council both in Weymouth and in Portland.

There are excellent facilities for golf, tennis, bowls and putting, and there are delightful pleasure gardens with attractive floral displays. Excellent train services are provided to London, the Midlands and South Wales, and there is a roll-on/roll-off car-ferry service operating to the Channel Islands and Cherbourg. The borough council owns the Harbour Undertaking and industrial sites dealing principally with light engineering.

Special attention is being given to balancing the housing stock and the total housing service.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,800.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 12 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The Royal borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
Maidenhead MB, New Windsor MB, Eton UD, Cookham RD, Eton RD (parishes of Datchet, Horton, Wraysbury), Windsor RD.

The Royal borough includes two ancient boroughs each with its own tradition and history. Windsor is known throughout the world for its castle which has been a fortress and Royal residence for 850 years. This fact makes the town a major tourist attraction.

The area of the Royal Borough extends along both banks of the River Thames between Runnymede and Windsor and on the south bank of the Thames from Windsor to Hurley. This area includes Windsor Great Park, the Ascot racecourse, the castle and the town of Windsor, Eton with its famous college, Maidenhead, the villages of Cookham and Hurley, White Waltham and Waltham St. Lawrence.

Maidenhead is also well known because of its history and geographical position on one of the most beautiful stretches of the river Thames.

The whole of Eton town is a conservation area and there are significant areas of Windsor and Cookham similarly designated.

The district includes 420 acres of parks, open spaces and recreational grounds administered by the local authority. The district also enjoys extensive riverside frontage with associated amenity areas.

The Council plans to enhance the leisure and recreational facilities available within the area. A new sports and leisure centre costing £700,000 was completed in 1974.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,300.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 5 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

The county boroughs of Birkenhead and Wallasey.
In the administrative county of Chester:
the borough of Bebington;
the urban districts of Hoylake and Wirral.

The new Wirral district is situated on the Wirral Peninsula which is bounded by the River Mersey, the Irish Sea and the River Dee.

The area is an ideal blend of town, country and seaside, with a balanced industrial, maritime, agricultural and residential structure. A good labour market coupled with the excellent sites available offers a high potential for industrial and commercial expansion.

Whilst urban, industrial and commercial development is largely concentrated on the Mersey side of the peninsula, a considerable part of the area contains country parks, National Trust and rich farm lands interspersed with pleasant small towns and attractive villages. At the northern end of the peninsula, facing the Irish Sea, are the popular resorts of Hoylake and New Brighton; Deeside, with its sailing clubs and other amenities and peaceful, wide, tidal river overlooked by the Welsh Hills, provides a sharp contrast to the commercial bustle of the Mersey.

A good road network, including a new motor-way (M53) running down the spine of the Wirral and two road tunnels under the Mersey to Liverpool, provides the motorist with an ease of access not only within the area but also to North Wales, the Lake District, the Peak District and the Yorkshire Dales. A diesel and electric rail service connects most parts of the Wirral with Liverpool (by rail tunnel under the Mersey) and its inter city rail service and airport, whilst the Mersey ferries provide a convenient and pleasant service between Wallasey/Birkenhead and Liverpool.

Shopping facilities range from the larger centres in Birkenhead and Wallasey to more modest provision in the smaller towns and villages. There are excellent educational facilities, ranging from nursery schools to all aspects of further education; there is also a number of independent schools. Amenities within the area cater for all indoor and outdoor leisure pursuits and there is a wide range of residential property.

Mayoral personal annual allowance: £2,950.

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of the Woking UD which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The borough of Woking lies about 25 miles south-west of London. It is primarily a residential area and contains over 1,000 acres of common land and open spaces. The area comprises the civil parishes of Woking (which includes Knaphill and Brookwood), Byfleet, Horsell and Pyrford, all of which have long associations with the past. All bring some special contribution to help make Woking popular and attractive. In addition there are a number of well established industries and four modern industrial estates in the district.

Very extensive redevelopment of the town centre has changed much of the face of the town. The 'all weather' shopping complex covers about 8½ acres and includes three major retail stores and seventy-four other shops. Three lifts link the shops with a multi-storey car park and this in turn is linked with the relief road which surrounds the town. Three other major features of the new town centre are the indoor pool; a complex of public halls which include a theatre and a banqueting and dinner dance suite; and the largest library in the county. There are further plans for the future. A new Divisional Police Headquarters and Magistrates' Courts are to be built on a site between the Centre Pool and the Centre Halls. New council offices also have a site and are at an advanced planning stage.

Another major development is the Leisure Centre in Woking Park which has been designated as the sub-regional sports centre for Surrey. It includes seven squash courts, a projectile room and a covered 36·5 m × 32 m (120 ft. × 105 ft.) sports hall with a viewing gallery and is available for use as required for a variety of sports.

The council owns the council offices, public parks and pleasure grounds, allotments and car parks. A new private development covering some 500/600 acres which will ultimately house 14,000 people is now under construction at Goldsworth Park.

Mayoral annual allowance: £2,000.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 12 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA
The district comprises the areas of the Wokingham MB and Wokingham RD, which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The River Loddon, which flows placidly through this district, is joined by the River Blackwater after its course along the Hampshire border. The deeply winding Thames forms the natural boundary of this district from Reading, around under the Chiltern Hills, past Henley to Remenham, where it provides some of the most contrasting scenic beauty in the south of England. Riverside villages such as Sonning and Wargrave are celebrated beauty spots. The regatta course, stretching below the steep and richly wooded hills between Henley and Remenham, is world renowned.

The scenery in the south of the district is also very beautiful although it lacks the contrasting charm of hills and water. Here are miles of most lovely woodlands, with undulating rides and high-set commons affording panoramic views, of which the best known is Finchampstead Ridges. Unlike the splendid beech-clad heights in the north, these are mixed woodlands where the remnants of the old royal chase of Windsor Forest are interspersed by scented pinewoods and extensive plantations of conifers. Many of the roads run through splendid avenues, of which the Wellingtonia Avenue at Finchampstead is perhaps the most impressive and all around are luxuriating rhododendrons which make a glorious display of colour in early summer.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Roads (design, construction, improvement and maintenance); Traffic Management; Parking; Public Utilities Street Works; Road Safety; Drainage.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 4 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of Wolverhampton CB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

Wolverhampton is one of the principal manufacturing centres of the West Midlands, where industry and countryside meet. To the south-east is the industrial Black Country, while to the west, north and south lies beautiful countryside—Shropshire and Wales, agricultural Worcestershire and Staffordshire.

The town centre has been transformed in recent years by the building of two large traffic-free shopping precincts, and the pedestrianization of some of the main shopping streets.

On the cultural front, Wolverhampton possesses three museums and two art galleries, a live theatre, several cinemas, and the versatile civic hall. On the sporting front, too, facilities are wide and various.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,300.

Agencies. The following county council and regional water authority functions are carried out by the borough council on an agency basis: Highways; Refuse Disposal; Water; Sewerage and Sewage Disposal.

Audit by approved auditor (Armitage and Norton).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the area of the former Worthing MB which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974.

The second largest town in Sussex and 58 miles from London, Worthing is a continually growing residential seaside resort situated on the South Coast at the foot of the Sussex Downs. Its original Charter was granted in 1890 when the area was 1,790 acres and the population 16,000. A new Charter was granted with effect from 1st April 1974 conferring borough status on the new Worthing District created by the Local Government Act 1972. The present day area is 8,065 acres and the population just under 90,000. With the surrounding rural area, it is a natural shopping centre for approximately 175,000 people. Worthing is noted for the mildness and equability of its climate and most of the town is situated on level ground.

The Guildbourn Shopping Centre, which adjoins the town's fourth multi-storey car park, comprises 36 shops on two levels, a public house, restaurant, supermarket, kiosks and offices. The new Central Library forms the headquarters of the south east area of the West Sussex County Library Service and provides extensive reference and lending facilities together with a lecture theatre, meeting room and administrative accommodation.

There are five miles of gradually inclined beach giving safe sea bathing, and in addition to a heated outdoor swimming pool there is the Aquarena, a modern indoor swimming centre including a Solarium. The Council's trading undertakings include a catering department providing three licensed bars, and refreshments in municipal entertainment buildings.

The Pier, owned by the Borough Council, has a Pavilion at the northern end with a seating capacity of 850 and is used for concerts, Summer Season stage entertainments, dancing and Winter productions. Adjacent to the Town Hall, which was opened in 1933, is the Assembly Hall used for meetings, banquets, dances, national conferences and choral and symphony concerts; seating capacity is 1,000 and refreshment facilities with licensed bar are available. In the adjoining Richmond Room there is an additional licensed bar. There is a Music Festival held annually in November.

Within the Borough, the Council provides and maintains an area of approximately 950 acres open to the enjoyment of the population, and on the Downs the Council has acquired over 400 acres for preservation as public open space. Ornamental parks are distributed throughout the Borough with a total of over 100 acres, and a special feature is made of the town's floral displays. There is an 8½ acre boating lagoon, and sporting facilities include cricket, football, tennis, bowls, putting, pitch and putt, boating, riding, sailing and indoor bowling. There are three 18-hole golf courses in the town including a municipal course at Hill Barn

Worthing's multi-purpose sports complex, one of the first in the South of England, caters for participants in a wide range of activities and with varying abilities from the enthusiastic beginner to the experienced international. Facilities include large sports hall, squash courts, rifle and archery range, practice hall, weight training room, floodlit outside Redgra area, cafeteria, bar and social facilities.

Electricity Board: Mersyside and North Wales.

Gas Region: Wales.

Regional Water Authority: Welsh Water Authority.

Health Authority: Clywd.

Superannuation Scheme administered by Clwyd CC.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 6 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The borough comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:
In the administrative county of Denbigh:
  the borough of Wrexham;
  the rural district of Wrexham (part).
In the administrative county of Flintshire:
  the rural district of Maelor;
  in the rural district of Hawarden, the parish of Marford and Hoseley.

The Wrexham Maelor area can justifiably claim to have some of the finest scenery that Wales has to offer. Visitors will find that its 90,000 acres provide an unrivalled blend of thriving and expanding urban, commercial and industrial development with large areas of outstanding natural beauty. Indeed, one of its principal attractions is that it offers a scenic paradise on the very doorstep of its houses and factories. For those wishing to venture further afield, it provides a convenient and interesting starting off point for touring with direct and easy access to the beaches, rivers, lakes and mountains of North Wales and the Snowdonia National Park.

As to the future, there is every reason to forecast with confidence that the area will rapidly increase in size and importance during the next decade or so. The past few years have witnessed a significant change in the industrial character of the region with an encouraging inflow of a wide variety of new factories compensating for the decline in the older traditional extractive industries such as coal-mining and brickmaking. There is every indication that expansion will make the Wrexham area one of the most important industrial regions of Wales.

Wrexham Maelor is well located for this kind of industrial growth, offering good industrial estates and having good communications with the north-west and the Midlands. It is listed as a development area and full advantage has been taken of this special status to attract a variety of industries to compensate for the decline in the more traditional industry.

Mayoral annual allowance: £3,500.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 8 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

High Wycombe MB, Marlow UD, Wycombe RD.

Situated in the south-east of the district, High Wycombe lies 29 miles north-west of London, 26 miles south-east of Oxford, 10 miles north of Maidenhead and 17 miles south of the county town of Aylesbury. A completed section of the M40 motorway London to Oxford passes through the district; and the Marlow by-pass links the M40 at Handy Cross with the M4 near Maidenhead. There are comprehensive train, bus and coach services throughout the district. Although the district includes the urban areas of High Wycombe, Marlow, Bourne End and Princes Risborough, a large proportion is rural, set in the Chilterns, a designated area of outstanding natural beauty, with extensive beechwoods and some of the most celebrated reaches of the Thames, from Henley past Hambleden, Medmenham and Marlow to Bourne End and Hedsor. The area is rich in history; prehistoric relics, bronze and iron age burial mounds and earthworks have been discovered, and many local places are mentioned in the Norman Domesday Book.

Chairman's annual allowance and travelling allowance: £2,500.

DEFINITION OF AREA

Fleetwood MB, Poulton-le-Fylde UD, Preesall UD, Thornton Cleveleys UD, Garstang RD.

The borough comprises the coastal resorts of Fleetwood and Thornton Cleveleys, the towns of Poulton-le-Fylde and Preesall and the rural area of Garstang. There are 21 parish councils within the district, one of which, Preesall, was constituted under Part V of Schedule 1 to the Local Government Act 1972. The Council owns much of the foreshore of the river Wyre and maintains a market, a ferry and swimming baths at Fleetwood, a sports centre at Thornton Cleveleys and swimming baths and a nine hole golf course at Poulton-le-Fylde. Fleetwood is a development port where roll on/roll off facilities are operated to deal with container traffic. Extensive promenades and seaside amenities have been provided at Thornton Cleveleys and Fleetwood and the Marine Hall at Fleetwood is owned and managed by the Council.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,800.

Audit by District Auditor (No. 4 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA
The district comprises the areas of the following local authorities which ceased to exist on 1st April 1974:

Bewdley MB, Kidderminster MB, Stourport-on-Severn UD, Kidderminister RD.

The Wyre Forest District Council has been formed by the amalgamation of the boroughs of Kidderminster and Bewdley, the urban district of Stourport-on-Severn and the rural district of Kidderminster. Kidderminster is an industrial town with the manufacture of carpets as the staple industry. Both Stourport-on-Severn and Bewdley have extensive frontages to the river Severn with facilities for boating, sailing and fishing. A substantial part of the Wyre Forest is within the new district as is also a large part of the Kingsford Country Park. There are therefore extensive recreation and leisure areas within the district, serving the industrial and commuter population. The centre of the ancient borough of Bewdley and the canal basin at Stourport-on-Severn are conservation areas. The river Stour and part of the Staffordshire and Worcestershire Canal both run through the district and join the river Severn at Stourport-on-Severn.

Chairman's annual allowance: £1,600.

Disposal of refuse and abandoned vehicles. Highway functions relating to the construction, improvement, maintenance, repair of highways for which the County Council is responsible as the local highway authority and including such functions as traffic management, highway lighting and road safety. The County Council reserves the right to itself undertaking any schemes of highway construction or improvement estimated to cost in excess of £100,000 (excluding land costs at November 1973 prices) or any new road bridge.

The sewerage function encompassing the repair and maintenance of public sewers and the design and construction of new sewers necessary effectually to serve the area.

Audit by District Auditor (No: 3 Audit District).

DEFINITION OF AREA

The city comprises York CB which ceased to exist on 1st April, 1974.

In 1971, York celebrated 1,900 years of recorded history, having been founded by the Romans in AD 71, when Petilius Cerealis built a legionary fortress at the junction of the rivers Ouse and Foss.

The important medieval guilds, including the Merchant Adventurers and the Merchant Taylors, whose guildhalls still remain, were responsible for the annual presentation of the cycle of mystery plays performed on wagons which moved around the city. These plays in a modern version were revived in 1951, and are still performed against the splendid background of the ruined St. Mary's Abbey on the occasion of the City's Festival of the Arts.

York retains so many historic buildings, of which about 850 are listed, and has now become a major centre for international tourism. Visitors flock to see its ancient walls, streets, bars, churches, guildhalls and castle. The glorious Minster, the largest Gothic church in England, built between 1220 and 1472, was restored at a cost of over £2,000,000, in time for its five-hundredth anniversary in 1972. The ancient Guildhall was destroyed in an air raid in 1942, but has been rebuilt and was re-opened in 1960.

The coming of the railways in the nineteenth century made York a major transport centre. Today the city is still the headquarters of the Eastern Region of British Railways. The University of York opened in 1963 and is now a flourishing institution.

The principal industries are the manufacture of chocolate and sugar confectionery, optical instruments, glass containers, shock absorbers and railway carriages.

The Strays, covering 818 acres, are held by the Council as Trustees for the Freemen of certain Wards and are managed by the Council. They include the famous Knavesmire, where horse-racing has taken place since 1731. The city has also five parks and many gardens.

The omnibus system is jointly operated by the Council and the West Yorkshire Road Car Company. The Council also controls the navigation on the rivers Ouse and Foss.

The Castle Museum is one of the most successful folk museums of the world, and attracts many thousands of visitors annually. The Yorkshire Museum of archaeology and natural history has also a national reputation for its unique specimens and the Art Gallery boasts a fine collection of works of art representative of all the major schools of European painting. The new National Railway Museum opened in York during 1975 as did the Heritage Centre which tells the story of the City from Roman times to the present day.

Mayoral annual allowance: £1,500.

MEETING

Council Chamber, Guildhall, York. Monthly.

'. . . is duly elected Councillor for this ward'

When the Councillor's Handbook was first published in 1960 it was intended for the councillor new to local government. Even so, a very large number found their way into the hands of more experienced councillors.

With the coming into being of the new local government on 1 April 1974 all councillors were to some extent 'new'. In England and Wales alone there were nearly 22,000 councillors, all facing a new range of problems. The scale and complexity of local government had changed overnight, presenting elected representatives with a major challenge.

With this in mind, the Municipal Journal commissioned a new version of the Councillor's Handbook, defining the role and tasks of councillors in terms of the new local government situation. This completely re-written version is the work of Professor J. D. Stewart, Director of the Institute of Local Government Studies, University of Birmingham, and John K. Boynton, Chief Executive of Cheshire County Council and a Past President of the Society of Local Authority Chief Executives.

This second edition incorporates much new material and takes account of changes which have occurred since 1974.

The cost of the Councillor's Handbook is £1.00 per copy including postage, with Bulk orders (40 or more) receiving 15 per cent discount.

LOCAL COUNCILS IN ENGLAND AND WALES

The Local Government Act 1972 makes the following provisions regarding parish and community councils.

England

For every parish there is a parish meeting to discuss parish affairs. Parish councils in being before 1st April 1974 continued and 296 boroughs and urban districts became parishes on that day.

If a parish has no parish council, the district council must (and if the parish is grouped under a common parish council, may) establish a separate parish council for that parish:

(a) if the population includes 200 or more local government electors or

(b) where the population includes 150–200 local government electors, if the parish meeting so resolves.

If the electorate is not more than 150, the district council may

(a) establish a separate parish council if the parish meeting so resolves;

(b) dissolve the parish council at the request of the parish meeting; if rejected a further application is barred for two years.

A district council may, if requested, order the grouping of parishes under a common parish council, or dissolve a group and it fixes the number of councillors for each parish. Besides existing parishes, this review may result in new parishes being created in areas at present outside the parish structure.

The above procedures are subject to the general review of parishes and their boundaries which began after Easter 1978. It is hoped that all areas will have been reviewed by 1983. District councils are asked to review the pattern of parishes in their area and to make recommendations to the Local Government Boundary Commission for England. This body may either propose these recommendations (with or without amendments) to the Secretary of State or may carry out its own review and make proposals to him. He may by order give effect to proposals, either as made to him, or with modifications. Guidelines for the reviews were issued by the Department of the Environment in its Circular 121/77 and the Commission set out procedures in its Report No. 286.

A parish council consists of the chairman and not less than five councillors, and future elections will be held in 1979 and every fourth year thereafter. The term of office will be four years, but three years for councillors elected in 1976.

Parish councils may provide or maintain shelters, clocks, village halls, playing fields, gymnasiums, open spaces and camping sites; baths, washhouses and bathing places; allotments, war memorials, street lighting, car parks, burial grounds, certain public improvements such as public walks, roadside verges, playgrounds, seats, litter bins, and wcs. Important duties are assigned to parish councils in connection with public footpaths and churchyards. Lately they have made enterprising and widespread use of their power of discretionary expenditure under s. 137 of the 1972 Act. Parish councils also administer or are concerned in the administration of tens of thousands of local charities (other than ecclesiastical and eleemosynary charities). They are also the custodians of parochial public documents; in addition to the foregoing they have miscellaneous powers relating to the prevention of unlawful inclosure of common land, obstruction of rights of way and the regulation of recreation grounds, village greens, open spaces and public walks. In addition all planning applications must be notified to them and they must be consulted on the making of certain types of byelaws. (Further information on Powers and Constitution of Local Councils is available in a Handbook published at 30p by the National Association of Local Councils.)

Every parish in England must have a Parish Meeting which all the local government electors in the parish are entitled to attend. If there is a council for the parish, the Parish Meeting must meet at least once a year between 1st March and 1st June; its main function is to discuss parish affairs. Most of its legal powers have been abolished.

If there is no Parish Council the Parish Meeting is the local government authority for the parish but with restricted powers, and it must assemble at least twice a year. In such a parish the chairman of the Parish Meeting and the proper officer of the District Council are a body corporate known as "The Parish Trustees". They must in all respects act as directed by the Parish Meeting.

Wales

Since 1st April, 1974 every district consists of one or more areas called "communities", namely the boroughs, urban districts and rural parishes existing before that date together with six small special areas. A community council was established, in place of every parish council, and for these 90 ex-urban communities whose urban councils so requested.

Community councils could not be established in Cardiff, Merthyr Tydfil, Newport, Port Talbot, Rhondda or Swansea. A Special Community Review is being conducted by the Local Government Boundary Commission for Wales to provide for a revision of community geography and the possible creation of community councils in those 6 excepted boroughs. It is hoped that by the end of 1978 the Commission will have published Draft Proposals for every Welsh district and that many Final Proposals will have been submitted to the Secretary of State.

A community council consists of the chairman and community councillors and elections will take place in 1979 and every fourth year thereafter. The term of office is four years except those elected in 1974.

In functions and other respects community councils are very similar to parish councils in England, but community meetings have no formal legal status or obligation to meet annually, and there is no equivalent to the parish meetings or parish trustees established in England above.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF LOCAL COUNCILS

100, Great Russell St., London, WC1B 3LD. (01-636 4066)

The National Association of Local Councils is a federation of county associations formed in 1947 to promote the interests and privileges of local, that is to say parish and community councils; to foster the co-operation of these councils with other local authorities and voluntary organizations; to assist local councils in the performance of their duties; to make available to them opportunities for securing information and literature and for meeting together in conference; generally to develop social, cultural and recreational life in all villages and to promote good local government. It provides its member councils with a variety of services such as advice and information, and it publishes a quarterly journal The Local Council Review and Handbooks on Powers, Constitution, Chairmanship, etc. of Local Councils.

OFFICERS OF THE ASSOCIATION

President of the Association: His Grace the Duke of Grafton, KG. Vice Presidents: The Rt. Hon. Earl of Kinnoull, FLAS, The Rt. Hon. Lady Phillips, The Hon C. Morrison, MP, A. Beith, MP, N. Winterton, MP, I. Davies, MP, Prof Bryan Keith-Lucas. Chairman of the Council: D. Miles. General Secretary: John Clark. Deputy Secretary: J. H. Whitfield. Treasurer: A. J. Seale.

Editor of the Local Council Review: C. J. Campbell Nairne, Tanglewood Cottage, Brittains Ln., Sevenoaks, Kent (0732 53025).

The addresses of the County Associations are set out under each County listing of parishes in this Section, and the names and addresses of clerks to parish councils, town councils and parish meetings in England, and to community councils in Wales may be obtained from the Secretary of the particular County Association or from the County or District Council.

ASSOCIATION OF CHARTER TRUSTEES

Town Hall, Burton upon Trent, Staffs. (0283 45369 ext. 42).

Chairman: Coun. J. W. Parker (East Staffordshire).
Secretary: Coun. Mrs. G. E. Haynes, JP (East Staffordshire).

Objects

(a) To protect and further the interest of Charter Trustees insofar as they may be effected by legislation or proposed legislation or otherwise.

(b) To press Her Majesty's Government to confer upon Charter Trustees permanent status with defined powers.

(c) To provide such central services for Charter Trustees as may be considered appropriate.

Further information on FORMER BOROUGHS WHICH ARE NOW TOWNS WITH CHARTER TRUSTEES can be found in Section 34.

TOWN COUNCILS

Section 245(6) of the Local Government Act 1972 provides that:

> The council of a parish or community which is not grouped with any other parish or community may resolve that the parish or community shall have the status of a town and thereupon—
> (a) The council of the parish or community shall bear the name of the council of the town;
> (b) The chairman and vice-chairman of the council shall be respectively entitled to the style of town mayor and deputy town mayor;
> (c) The parish meeting or a community meeting shall have the style of town meeting.

The following lists are marked (TC) where it could be ascertained that parish councils in England and community councils in Wales had adopted town status. The change of status does not confer additional powers.

The names of parish and community councils which have been granted city status will be found under "Cities" in Section 34.

The Act does not require a parish or community council to notify any official body of its change of status and the lists may therefore be incomplete.

PARISHES IN ENGLAND

The Municipal Year Book is the only source for a comprehensive list of the 10,040 parishes in England. This form of local government is currently subject to review of boundaries, and meanwhile only minor changes are taking place in relation to grouping etc. of parishes under the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1972.

At this stage the parishes are set down so far as possible in a County and District area basis, and the name of the Secretary of the County Branch of the National Association of Local Councils is quoted as being the source of information. The Editor acknowledges the willing co-operation of the Association's Secretary and of the County Branch Secretaries in the preparation of this section of the Municipal Year Book, and the help from County Councils and District Councils in correcting and now extending the original listings.

All these parishes have a parish council or are in a group/joint parish council, except where the letters PM indicate that there is a Parish Meeting only as the local government authority for the parish within the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1972. Some parishes have resolved under Section 245(6) of this Act to have the status of a town, and below these parishes are noted with the letters TC.

(B) indicates the District has Borough Status.
